? Jonathan ?

Jonathan Bourne, Jr., of Portland—nearly everybody knows more or less about Jonathan—is sending out circular letters over his own signature, the first paragraph of which reads as follows:

"Dear Sir:—Understanding that you have given the Direct Primary Law much thought and rendered valuable assistance in effecting its adoption, I take the liberty of writing you as to the desirability of using your influence in urging the voters to register in January so that the letter and spirit of the law can be made more effective by securing a very large registration prior to the Primaries to be held April 20th, next."

There is a lot more of the same strain, but touching principally upon the election of United States Senators. Now all this is more or less all right, but still

I'd like to know what Jonathan wants—Would much relieve my anxious mind. Will this appeal bring a response, or will the secret be confined

Until the blooming days of spring burst open and expose the thing? Perhaps sly Jonathan would fill

The scented shoes of Governor George; I so, I wonder if he will. Without delay, the wish disgorge.

I really do not deem it meet To keep on the anxious seat.

Or, mayhap, Jonathan prefers The vacant Senatorial chair;

If so, to me it now occurs He'd best come out and on the square

Get off the overburdened fence, And thus relieve this great suspense.

With Mr. Heney's permission, you may now go and cut down a Christmas tree.

Sara Bernhardt is contemplating a tour of Texas, accompanied by a two-headed giant nine feet high. The giant is ossified—and Sara is supposed to be rapidly nearing that stage.

Hon. Charles V. Galloway of Yamhill county announces himself as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congressman of this district. Mr. Galloway is a bright young man, but he won't do. The next Congressman for this district will come from Marion county, and will be a Republican.

There has for some time, in various parts of Oregon, been considerable discussion of the question of teachers' salaries in this state, and the prevailing opinion apparently is that said salaries average too low. There are but few good teachers in the state who receive what they are worth—especially women teachers—and this agitation will probably result in due time in making this all-important profession more attractive in Oregon. The laborer in the schoolroom, as in all other vocations, is worthy of his hire—which in this state should average a little higher.

Ex-Governor Geer has at last announced that he will again be a candidate for that office. This means that if the Republicans of Oregon are foolish enough to honor Mr. Geer with the nomination, Governor Chamberlain will succeed himself without as much effort as was put forth to defeat Mr. Furnish. Regardless of the fact that he is not a speechmaker, Mr. Furnish is a good citizen, a brainy and thorough business man, and has a host of friends. Mr. Geer was largely responsible for the defeat of Mr. Furnish, and a large number of Republicans in Oregon will not forget it. Mr. Geer cannot consistently ask for himself better treatment than he has extended to others. The golden rule is not obsolete.

Cool Bay citizens continue to be all stirred up because Senator Fulton promised to help them in an effort to get 20 feet of water on their little bar, when they want at least 40 feet. Senator Fulton is an honest, conscientious and thoughtful representative, and is properly shy of promising more goods than he can deliver. This does not prevent some of the candidates for Congress in this district making love to Coos county by promising all kinds of water—and other liquids, perhaps. The appropriation which Coos harbor will not get under the present Administration may be expressed in six figures. Hot air is still at a discount. All the money appropriated for river and harbor improvements in Oregon during the coming session will be branded "Columbian"—that is, any sum worth mentioning. Watch the returns.

Said bids will be received up to 12 o'clock, noon, of the various days upon which they are listed to be opened in above schedule, and must be enclosed in sealed envelopes directed to Knott C. Egbert, Superintendent, Siletz, Oregon. Envelopes containing such bids should not have noted thereon the description of the lands to which the bids relate, but there shall be noted on such envelopes the date upon which the bid is to be opened. Bidders should submit a draft on some Portland bank; otherwise remit enough to cover exchange on outside banks.

KNOTT C. EGBERT,
Supt. and Special Disbursing Agent, in Charge of Siletz Agency, Oregon.

Of course, Senator Gearin of Oregon will do his best, and, being a Democrat, perhaps Mr. Heney will assist him in getting a stand-in with the powers that be.

The fruit growers of Polk county are getting together for the purpose of waging war on orchard pests. Every fruit-growing county in the state should follow the lead of prolific and progressive Polk.

Teller's Tribute.

Under date of December 18, the Portland Journal publishes the following dispatch from its Washington bureau:

The failure of the senate to take formal notice of the death of Senator Mitchell was dramatically discussed in this morning's proceedings, when a resolution naming senate committees was offered for adoption. Bailey brought the matter up by his inquiring as to the reason for the non-assignment of Burton to committee duty. He alluded to the fact that the death of a member had not been announced to the senate, although his successor was on his way to take his place.

Senator Teller opened the subject even wider than Bailey had done, and in a voice trembling with emotion, he paid an eloquent tribute to the late Senator Mitchell, saying:

"To quote, Mr. President, we all know that Senator Mitchell is dead. I never would have mentioned his case in the senate but for the fact that the senator has referred to it. Whether the law is as the judges have held in his case, I would not believe, if called on here to act, that the dead senator was guilty of any crime which would justify his expulsion from the senate."

"Against the sworn testimony of confessed perjurers, forgers, bribers and thieves, I will put his long years of honest service in this body. I will put against his devotion to interests of his people, and the interests of people at large.

"I will put against it the fact that this man with unnumbered opportunities to create for himself wealth, went down to his grave practically a pauper."

"It will need more than the testimony of any self-convicted thief and forger to convince me that Senator Mitchell was a criminal at the time of his death, or at any time in his history."

Senator Fulton was not in the chamber when the discussion arose. He came in while it was in progress, but took no part in it. His course in not presenting the notice of his colleague's death was defended by Senator Spooner, who said:

It is easy to criticize the failure of the senator from Oregon to announce the death of his colleague, but it is but justice to him to say that he wished to do so. Some of us think he was not only excusable, but had he done it, he would unnecessarily have intensified the tragedy and brought fresh sorrow to the hearts of those who loved John H. Mitchell.

Life is something more than a good dinner, a cigar, a bottle of beer, a game of pool, a pike with the pikers. Life is the orbit in which swings lofty and aspiring possibilities—chances to become noble, great and good; chances to make the whole world happier with your songs in their hearts, to stir the pulses of thousands and make your name immortal. Which will you choose, the lofty or the sodden way?—Ex.
