

For Thin, Poor Blood

You can trust a medicine tested 60 years! Sixty years of experience, think of that! Experience with Ayer's Sarsaparilla; the original Sarsaparilla; the strongest Sarsaparilla; the Sarsaparilla the doctors endorse for thin blood, weak nerves, general debility.

But even this grand old medicine cannot do its best work if the liver is inactive and the bowels constipated. For the best possible results, you should take laxative doses of Ayer's Pills while taking the Sarsaparilla. The liver will quickly respond, and so will the bowels.

The Origin of Salmon.

The name salmon is given in England and all western states to a large trout-like fish which lives in the sea, chiefly about the mouths of rivers, and which enters the streams to spawn, running for a considerable distance up the stream and returning to the sea after the act of spawning is accomplished, says a writer in the Pacific Monthly. The old males become somewhat distorted, especially through the lengthening of the jaws, but the changes with age and season are not much greater than in any large trout. The true salmon, like the true trout, is black spotted. It is called in science Salmo salar, and along with the true trout it belongs to the genus Salmo. There is only one species of Atlantic salmon; it is found on both sides of the ocean, and on both sides it becomes sometimes land-locked and dwarfish when it is shut up in a lake and when it cannot or does not go to the sea.

WORN TO A SKELETON.

A Wonderful Restoration Caused a Sensation in a Pennsylvania Town

Mrs. Charles M. Preston of Elkland, Pa., says: "Three years ago I found that my housework was becoming a burden. I tired easily, had no ambition and was fading fast. My complexion got yellow, and I lost over 50 pounds. My thirst was terrible, and there was sugar in the kidney secretions. My doctor kept me on a strict diet, but as his medicine was not helping me I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. They helped me at once, and soon all traces of sugar disappeared. I have regained my former weight and am perfectly well." Sold by all dealers. 50 cents a box Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

"Is this car perfectly safe?" queried the old lady.
"Perfectly," replied the conductor, reaching to assist her on.
"You are sure they won't no accident happen to it?"
"Absolutely sure, ma'am."
"Well, I'll risk it; ye see (confidentially) I've got a hole in one of my stockings an' I'd hate dreadful for anything to happen."—Houston Post.

"Mr. Upp," said the merchant, sternly, to Adam Upp, his bookkeeper, "I saw you at the baseball game yesterday. When you asked me to let you off for the afternoon you said you were going to a funeral."
"That's so," replied the bookkeeper, "and I'm pretty near a prophet, ain't I? Did you ever see a slower game in your life?"—The Catholic Standard and Times.

A Tour of Europe

The tourist generally spends a quiet day at Heidelberg, the famous "student city," with its noted castle, an ivied ruin which looks down on the gentle Neckar, upon vineyards, on the hill slopes and the solid queer stone houses of the town itself. All of Heidelberg has witchery about it, especially the steep and narrow Hauptstrasse, where every casement has its swinging bird cage and pots of flowers gayly bloom. The Stueckgarten here was Goethe's favorite nook at Heidelberg. Then there is the great tun of Heidelberg, a monster wine cask capable of holding 40,000 gallons. Afternoons the students sit on the terrace of the Schloss Hotel and listen to the band. Each student society appropriates a long table to itself, and each one wears its special colored cap, of blue, or gold, or red, or white. The young men in white caps are all of noble birth. Many of them have strips of white court plaster on their faces, a fact which causes tourist girls to become excited, for they know that these men have been fighting duels. All of the students have frivolous little canes, and with each group of them is an enormous dog, their mascot, which belongs to their society collectively.

The country between Heidelberg and Darmstadt is more than merely pretty. Almost all the towns on the route are wine towns, with extensive vineyards. The traveler passes "Bingen on the Rhine," and looks for the old "Mouse Tower," where the wicked bishop of Hatto perished miserably after assembling the poor in his barns and burning them up. It stands in a quartz rock in the middle of a waterway. A trip down the river takes the steamer past Lorch, where the sweet bells ring on Sabbath from St. Martin's gothic tower, by the "Devil's Ladder," that steep cliff which once a lover, helped by the mountain sprites, scaled successfully on horseback and won the lady of his love. Then come the rocks of "The Seven Virgins," and then the home of the Lorelei, about which so many stories are told by poets and peasants along the princely Rhine.

At Ehrenbreitstein is the noble rock and mighty fortress that guard the western gateway of the German independence, commanding both the Rhine and the Moselle. Then comes Cologne, "the holy city." Its pride is pre-eminently in its churches. The transcendent charm of its grand old cathedral is its magnificent harmony. Its interior reminds of a virgin forest, whose trees rise to a height sublime, powerful, majestic in their outlines, yet so delicate in detail that their foliage loses itself in a maze of lines and shadows.

Tombs of saints and images of angels, the golden coffin of the Magi, guarded by close iron gates, altars gleaming brightly as a good man's dream of heaven, beauty that floods mortal sense with rapture, reverence that leads thoughts to God; this is what fortunate pilgrims find in the great cathedral of Cologne.

Berlin is a city of long, straight lines. Its houses march down the street like endless files of soldiers, especially on the famous Unter den Linden. Its great park of 630 acres and Zoological gardens are very beautiful. Everywhere is music—of the best. Everywhere is the influence of the emperor. The traveler is subtly reminded of the German art exhibit at the St. Louis exposition, where every second picture was of his imperial majesty. Berlin's impressive monuments, her many palaces, shining arcades, fine public buildings, her museum, her statues and her park, her soldiers and her people are all subservient to this central figure of the emperor. Splendid as she really is, he is more splendid who rules her with an iron hand and a majestic presence.

As for public monuments, there is no capital in the world which has honored its distinguished men as Berlin has. Notable among the royal figures is the masterly statue of Frederick the Great. On the elaborate pedestal the great king is majestic indeed; he is on horseback, with his ermine mantle on his shoulder and his crutch handled stick in his hand. The national monument of Emperor William I. was unveiled in 1897, on the hundredth anniversary of the Emperor's birthday. This also is an immense equestrian figure, in bronze. The horse he rides is his favorite war charger, Hippocrates, which is led along by a graceful figure of Peace. Then there is the marble figure of Queen Louise, which, the work of Encke, was erected in the park at the north of the Tiergarten strasse in 1880, and which has upon its pedestal reliefs which represent different phases of woman's work in war. This recognition of woman's services to the state is a final evidence of the new Berlin in the new Germany.

THE "OLD SWIMMING HOLE."

It seems easier to remember the fun of running off Sunday afternoons and paddling around in it than to recollect

How He Remembered It.

When they met on Chestnut street after some months in which they hadn't seen each other the one chap told the other he had taken a little house in Germantown and was there with his lars, penates and coal bill. "Come up and see me some evening—any evening. We're rarely out, you know, and then, we have a telephone, so you can let us know when you're coming."
"I suppose your name is in the telephone directory?" queried the other.
"Well, no, not yet, as we've just got the telephone, but our number is—really it's funny, but just this minute I can't—it's something like—Ding it all, it's strange I forget that number, for just on purpose I multiplied it by two and divided the result by four, so as to enable me to remember it, and I can't recall the first thing about it."

Ever know the like? I'll write you the number.—Philadelphia Record.

Painless Chiropody.

An author, paying his first visit to a married acquaintance, asked the name of a sprightly little girl whose winning ways had attracted his attention.
"We call her Ella," said the child's mother.
"That is a good name," remarked the author. "It has been made classic by Charles Lamb."
"Well, to tell the truth," explained the lady, "her name is Cornelia, but it's easier to call her Ella."
"I see," the caller rejoined. "It is the painless extraction of a corn!"—London Tit-Bits.

The "400" Defined.
"Pop," said Tommy, "what do the newspapers mean when they say 'a member of the 400'?"

"They refer, Tommy, to certain society men and women who think they are better than anybody else, and that's about all the thinking they do."

"Did you ever see one of 'em, pop?"
"I don't know, Tommy; but you can easily tell one if you happen to run across it."

"If it's in a street car it talks so loudly that you can't hear the roar of the wheels."

"If it's in church, the plumes on its hat hide the preacher."

"If it's at a party, the most of its clothes are in the dressing room."

"If it's in an automobile, dodge it, if you are quick enough, and come home to mamma alive."

"If it's walking on the sidewalk, it usually strides along as if it was taking the street home with it."

"If it's in a theater, you can tell by the stony stare in its face that the actors are doing good and intelligent work."

"If it's in a railroad station, in full dress, you'll wonder why the locomotive doesn't jump the track and take to the woods."

"You can't miss it, Tommy."

The Faith of the Boy.

The four-year-old son of a certain western senator had a very high opinion of the importance of his father. The latter tells how, on one occasion in their western home, the lad came across a magazine in which, by some chance, there were engraved side by side portraits of the President and the Senator mentioned.

When the lad caught sight of his father's features he broke into a broad smile. "That's a good picture of you, daddy," said he.

"Very good, my son."
"Who's the man next to you, daddy?" asked the youngster.

"Why, my son!" exclaimed the Senator, "don't you know? That is one of the greatest men of the world, a man more admirable and more powerful than any king. That, my son, is President Roosevelt."

The lad again looked at the picture of the President. Then, after a thoughtful pause, he observed:

"Say, daddy, the people in the east will be awful proud when they see the President's picture next to yours, won't they?"—American Spectator.
