Ingersoll on Napoleon.
A little while ago I stood by the grave of the great Napoleon—a magnificent tomb of gilt and gold. I saw him take an empire by the force of his genius. I saw him upon the frightful field of Waterloo, when chance and fate combined to wreck the fortunes of the former king, and I saw him at St. Helena with his hands crossed behind him gazing out at the sad and solemn sea. I thought of the orphans and widows he had made, of the tears that had been shed for his glory, and of the only woman who had ever loved him pushed from his heart by the cruel hand of ambition, and I said I would rather have been a French peasant and worn wooden shoes. I would rather have been that poor peasant with my loving wife by my side, knitting as the day died out in the skies, with my children upon my knees and their arms about me. I would rather have been that man and gone down to the tongueless silence of the dreamless dust than to have been that imperial impersonation of force and murder known as Napoleon the Great—Woman's Home Companion.

Blowing the Nose.
Medical experts are calling the attention of the public to the importance of performing the nose blowing operation in a scientific and hygienic manner. First one nostril and then the other should be blown without undue violence. Doctors state that the two nasal passages should never be closed at the same time. If they are obstructed, as in the case of a cold, the back of the throat is filled with compressed air, and this, together with the discharge and the microbes which it contains, may be driven through the eustachian tube into the middle ear and lead to serious results. A great authority on the subject used to forbid his patients to blow their noses when suffering from a cold. The course is hardly one which will commend itself to those in the habit of catching colds. The best advice would seem to be that when it is necessary to blow the nose the blowing should be done gently.—London Mail.

Too Lively.
He was a solemn Scotchman, with an equally solemn and somewhat drowsy wife. The fact that they were receiving an excellent price for their "second pair front" from an American lodger did not blind them to her failings.
"Dear me, Mr. Macleod," said the lodger, one Sunday afternoon, when an errand took her to the parlor, where the family sat. "I should think you and your wife would be stifled sitting indoors this hot day with the windows shut. If you'd just open one and get some fresh air, I'm sure it would do Mrs. Macleod good; she looks pale."
Mr. Macleod looked at her with his usual stern and unbending gaze.
"We can have fresh air any day," he said calmly. "We've no need to have it rushing about the house on the Sabbath."

Germany the Modern Rome.
Let the German people keep a lesson from antiquity before their eyes. Once before an England and a Germany of no less different character have confronted each other. They were Carthage and Rome. And old Rome with its policy of force and power finally conquered the cash politics of Carthage and raised itself to the position of the first power upon earth. We have historical example when we say that the German people must return from the imitation of the un-German Carthaginian-British finance policy and must go back to the Roman-German policy of power and might. In no other way can a really great Weltpolitik be promoted in the home perhaps of making ourselves ultimately the leading people in the world.—Berlin Grenzboten.

Spanish Sheep.
There are said to be 10,000,000 migratory sheep in Spain, which travel on occasions as much as 200 miles from the plains to the mountains. They are known as transhumantes, and their march, resting places and behavior are governed by special regulations dating from the fourteenth century. At certain times no one may travel the same route as the sheep, which have the right to graze on all open and common land on the way.

Much Embarassed.
"Tell me," said the inquisitive foreigner, "do American girls affect men's clothes?"
"No," replied the gallant native, "not to any extent."
"Well, well, is that really true?"
"Well, of course, a little rouge may stick to the shoulder of a fellow's coat occasionally, but then it's easily brushed off."—Philadelphia Press.

Chess and Intellect.
It is doubtful whether a great chess player is often, we are sure he is not of necessity, to be regarded as a man of powerful intellect. It has never been shown that the greatest masters of the game were men with big brains for anything out chess.—London Saturday Review.

Order.
Order is the sanity of the mind, the health of the body, the peace of the city, the security of the state. As the beams to a house, as the bones to the microcosm of man, so is order to all things.

An Itching One.
Miss Country Maid—I understand that in some hotels one often sees palms about the dining rooms. What kind of palm is the most prominent? Mr. Dine—The waiter's.

A Woman's Revenge.
It is perfectly incomprehensible how man can go on wearing the clothes he does—how he can balance on his head a huge black jam pot with a ledge to it, incase his limbs in long, tight sacks of dingy hue and wear round his manly throat something resembling a shining metal band. Every new fashion for man that comes out appears to me uglier than the last.—Spinster in M. A. P.

A Lofly Death.
Asama is a volcano in Japan. A young man of that country grew despondent the other day and threw himself into the crater, leaving this letter: "Suffering a feeling of despair impels me to throw myself into the crater of volcano Asama, thus winning a splendid death and ascending the mountain's smoke to a lofty life above the sky."

Unslaked Lime.
Unslaked lime is useful in preventing rust because of its extraordinary capacity for absorbing moisture. Some careful workmen who take pains that their tools shall always be in the best condition make a practice of keeping a piece of lime in their tool boxes to absorb any moisture which might otherwise cause rust.

A Safety Match.
"Papa, what is a safety match?" Mr. Henpecked (looking carefully about to see if his wife is within hearing distance)—A safety match, son, is when a half-headed man marries an amiable woman.

Poor Fellow.
Mrs. Browne—He certainly does live high. It seems to me his whole thought is of his viciniks. Mrs. Malprop—That's the truth. He's just what you might call a regular lopper.

It is with feelings as with water—the shallow murmurs, but the deeps are dumb.—Raleigh.

CONTEST NOTICE.
Land Office at Portland, Oregon,
January 8, 1907.
A sufficient contest affidavit having been filed in this office by Elizabeth W. Adams, contestant, against Homestead Entry No. 14573, made July 21, 1903, for the $\frac{1}{2}$ sec. 30, township 8 S., range 9 W., by William T. Conates, contestee, in which it is alleged that from information and belief, she is well acquainted with the tract of land embraced in the homestead entry, and from such information and belief, knows the present condition of the same; also that said William T. Conates has never resided upon or made his home upon said land, but has abandoned the same, especially for the last six months; that no cultivation has been made thereon, and that there are no improvements except a small house; and that said alleged absence from the said land was not due to his employment in the army, navy or marine corps of the United States as a private soldier, officer, seaman or any other war in which the United States may be engaged, said parties are hereby notified to appear, respond and offer evidence touching said allegation at 2 o'clock p. m. on February 20, 1907, before the Register and Receiver at the United States Land Office in Portland, Oregon.
The said contestant having, in a proper affidavit, filed December 27, 1906, set forth facts which show that after due diligence personal service of this notice can not be made, it is hereby ordered and directed that such notice be given by due and proper publication.
