If you are not busy, get up a petition and "referendum" something.

Good rains are reported from Chehalis Wash.; also an increase in the milk supply. Water will do it every time.

Mark Twain confesses to a liking for peek-a-boo waists. The old boy has always had a leaning toward the light and airy things of life.

Anyhow, there are worse men in California than there are in Oregon, and Oregon prunes are much better than the California brand.

Lincoln county isn't booming. It's just going forward at a nice clip because its wonderful natural resources are receiving some overdue attention.

The editor of the Jefferson Review is going to jump his salaryless job as "hello girl" and turn it over to some person who isn't so busy and cranky.

It is rumored that a telegraph trust has been formed. A wicked scheme seems to have been hatched to give the manipulator of the big stick more business than he can attend to.

It is reported that Albany boys and girls ship booze in from Portland and go out on the bridge and get drunk. They're foolish to take such chances. They might fall off the bridge and get wet.

Pennsylvania Republicans are booming United States Senator Philander C. Knox as the only logical successor to President Roosevelt. Which reminds us that the longest pole Knox the persimmons.

Being unable to crawl from under a load of debt with the aid of liquor license money, Oregon City's council is getting ready to plaster an occupation tax on all other lines of business. Watch Oregon City grow—indignant.

The Oaks, the famous Portland pleasure resort, will be "dry" this season. This will compel the high-rollers, rowdies and other booze-fighters who congregate there to take their loads with them. It makes a little difference.

The United States supreme court has decided that states have a right to compel railroads to make connections with competing lines. That has little interest in Oregon, where there are no competing lines. Still it gives us a better excuse for swearing when trains are late.—Oregon City Enterprise.

United States Senator Jonathan Bourne of Oregon has been interviewed again back in Washington, D. C., and again declares that "the people demand that President Roosevelt shall serve their interests for a second elective term." The Senator is undoubtedly terribly in earnest, but he has evidently neglected to consult with two certain Oregon newspaper men.

The oldest person in the United States—perhaps in the world—lives in Oregon. On Monday, May 20, Mrs. Mary Ramsey Woods of Hillsboro celebrated the 120th anniversary of her birth. Mrs. Woods is still quite active, has a good memory, eats three square meals every day and washes the same down with liberal quantities of good strong coffee. If she would discard coffee and fill with Postum, she might live to a green old age.

The scheme to finance another Peary hike to—or toward—the north pole by pulling the legs of school children is meeting with favor in only a few spots. If school children wish to do some real good in the world with their surplus change, there are many opportunities. The north pole is a hoary, frozen chestnut. Its discovery would result only in a little glory for the discoverer—and then we'd have to take his word for it.
