There are people who are sure to apply every compliment to themselves. They are the complaisant and cheerful and when good people are spoken of they think they are included at least, if, indeed, they are not the only ones referred to. Such folks are pleasant to be with, they are good company and always make one feel as though there were something to life besides standing around waiting to be kicked. On the other hand there are people in the world who think every gun is leveled at them, and every malevolent thing said is a thrust at them personally and individually. Like a sponge they absorb everything. Always expecting to be kicked they stand in an attitude more convenient for the kicker. They jump at the report of a gun, and dodge when the clock strikes for fear it may be striking at them. They are nervous, sensitive people who deserve a great deal more sympathy than they get.—Corvallis Republican.

A man who amassed quite a comfortable fortune in the practice of medicine bought a farm in later life. After some years' experience on the farm he made the following statements, which are worthy the consideration of many a boy who is cut out for a good farmer, but has aspirations for some profession for which he may have little more natural ability than a pig has for music. Hear his conclusions: "I would exchange my age, money and acres for youth and forty acres, and think that I had the best of the bargain; and I would start the farm by planting ten acres of orchard, buying two sows, two cows and two setting hens. Youth, strength and hustle are a great sight better than money, and the wise youth can have a finer farm than mine before he passes the half century mark, even though he have but a bare forty to begin with.—Rural Spirit.

Senator Fulton has promptly complied with the request of the Portland Chamber of Commerce that a revenue cutter be stationed at Astoria, and the Treasury Department will send the McCulloch to the Columbia River as soon as she can be repaired. This is a move that will be appreciated by the shipping interests, and with some improvement in the quarantine officers' movements and a ship-reporting station at Fort Canby, the mouth of the Columbia will be well equipped for looking after the steadily increasing fleet of vessels entering the river.—Oregonian.

It would be a great improvement to the lighthouse service if the light stations along the coast were connected with telephone, so that in cases where ships are disabled and in distress off the coast the news can be sent to where assistance can be obtained. For instance, word came from Portland on Monday that the Alliance was disabled off the coast. As there is no wire to Cape Meares light station and the wire being down in the south part of the county, this left a long stretch of seaboard without telephone connections.—Tillamook Herald.

It is a grand thing to be a victorious football player and be strong physically, but there is another way in which you can represent your college and also attain laurels. Be an orator or debater and go forth in this kind of contest with the same spirit, to win. Your name will go on record as a hero and you have attained a position that will help you through life.—O.A.C. Barometer.
