

Help! Help! I'm Falling

Thus cried the hair. And a kind neighbor came to the rescue with a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor. The hair was saved! In gratitude, it grew long and heavy, and with all the deep, rich color of early life. Sold in all parts of the world for sixty years.

"About one year ago I lost nearly all of my hair following an attack of measles. I was advised by a friend to use Ayer's Hair Vigor. I did so, and as a result I now have a beautiful head of hair."—Mrs. W. J. Brown, Menomonee Falls, Wis.

"Well," said the customer, as he paid the barber and moved toward the door, "I feel like congratulating myself on getting safely out of a mighty bad scrape."

By placing himself promptly on the outside of the barber shop he avoided getting himself into a mighty bad scrape.

His Reception.

The lathmus mosquitoes gathered enthusiastically around the genial Secretary of War.

"Here's a candidate," they hummed, "exactly to our liking!"

At the succeeding banquet it was agreed by all present that a very enjoyable time was had.

The Crow.

Faithful friends of the white man, comrades of the pioneer and the soldier in battle with the Sioux and the Cheyenne, the Crow, or Absarake, are now passing from the face of the earth, almost forgotten. The tribe inhabits a splendid reservation in southern Montana, and the whites are striving to open it for settlement, which causes protest from the Crows—a protest which will go unheeded. Gratitude for past favors done should protect the Absarake to-day, but when did the white man show gratitude to the Indian who owned good lands?

The Crow, according to some ethnologists, are of the Shoshoni race, while others classify them as a branch of the Dakota. They are probably a mixture of the two races, crystallized into a compact tribe by the exigencies of war and the pressure of powerful enemies. It is doubtful if they ever numbered more than 4,500 souls—that was an estimate placed on them by Catlin seventy years ago—and they now total about 1,700. The decrease among them has been greater in time of peace than when they were at war. In 1884 they numbered 3,226; this number fell to 2,456 in 1888, and has now shrunk to about 1,720. Consumption is mainly responsible for the immense death rate of the tribe.

The Crows are of great stature, and proud, yet courteous bearing. As warriors, they ranked high among the tribes, and, for their small number, did splendid fighting against the Sioux, Cheyenne and Blackfoot. Their Montana hunting range was one of the richest in the country, and the Absarake managed to hold it despite the ceaseless attacks of far more numerous foes. From the first arrival of the white man, the Crow nation was the newcomer's friend. The Crow warriors fought in countless battles with the prairie terrorists, and it was a Crow who alone escaped from the slaughter of the Custer massacre.

Of late years the Absarake have taken great interest in farming, stock raising and irrigation. They are fast acquiring civilization, but are dying so rapidly that only a few of them will be left in another generation.

SECRET OF AEROPLANE.

Wright Brothers' Airship is Described by Builders.

What purports to be a complete description of the Wright brothers' successful aeroplane has been given out. The description was taken from drawings and descriptions filed with the French patent office when application was made for patents which the French government issued last January.

To the partial description of the invention given by the Wrights themselves, but one new fact is advanced, the plan by which the aviator is enabled to maintain the equilibrium of the aeroplane despite sudden and variable to maintain the equilibrium of by means of building the main planes in three sections, the center one of which is rigid while the other wings are so pivoted that a turn of a wheel at the operator's hand causes one wing to lift slightly while the other is correspondingly depressed, thereby increasing the angle of resistance in one wing and decreasing it in the other, the effect of which is to return the machine to an even keel.

Prevention of a rotary movement being given to the machine by the action of the air currents on the wings is effected by a "fish-tail" rudder that is set at the rear of the machine and is connected by cables with a similar rudder on the front of the machine. A horizontal rudder is also fixed to the front of the machine.

Orville Wright's description of the machine is quoted as follows:

"Approximately it consists of a box-like frame 40 feet wide, 7 feet long and 7 1/2 feet deep, made of spruce and ash. At the center and top front is a front rudder, a feature which the Wrights introduced and which has proved superior to the old method of a rear rudder.

"In the center, to the rear, is the tail of the machine, approximately twelve feet in length, less than one-third the length of those on French flyers. This consists in different models of one or two vertical cloth-covered frames.

"At the rear, balancing the machine and as near the center as possible, are two propellers. Below the frame work and toward the rear is a skid, similar to the runners of sleds. This is used for landing and differs in this particular from the French machines, which are equipped with wheels. For a portion of twelve feet at each end the upper and lower frame work is provided with a surface of strong cotton cloth.

"In the center of the machine at the bottom is a small double-wheel truck, which, running on a monorail, is used while the machine is acquiring speed enough to leave the ground. The monorail is easily movable in any direction.

"The Wright machine weighs about 800 pounds, and in addition to its own weight, including a four-cylinder motor of between twenty-five and thirty horsepower, devised and made by the Wright brothers, the machine can carry two men and fuel enough to drive the machine 300 miles. It can carry enough fuel with one man aboard to travel 500 miles."

Women Wear Overalls.

A woman can wear overalls any old time in the State of Arkansas and not violate any of the laws, providing that she does not attempt to disguise herself as a man.

This, according to a Little Rock dispatch, is the gist of a decision handed down by Attorney General Kirby, at the behest of woman inquirers. Kirby, it is said, admitted in his opinion that the wearing of overalls by women might be desirable at times, but hoped that it may not become a general prevailing style.

But there is a lot of uneasiness all over Arkansas, from the hotel rotundas of the cities to the front porches of cross-road stores. For it is feared that, in view of the decision, "women's rights" leagues may be started and the members urged to wear overalls if they care to.

Some Men.

Some men spend most of their lives making the rest miserable.

Some men are so little that they cannot see the greatness of trifles.

Some men will waste four dollars worth of time trying to save twenty-five cents.

Some men think they see everything. They are the ones who invariably "go it blind."

Some men are so dishonest that they suspect every honest man of playing a game too deep for them to get on to.

Some men are only a little removed from their monkey ancestors—they are always busy, yet never accomplish anything.

Some men, who readily admit that a straight line is the shortest distance between two mathematical points, cannot see that exactly the same principle applies in morals.

Some men manage to succeed in spite of their most earnest endeavors.—Warwick James Price.

When a girl looks pretty in a ban, mock, it took her half an hour to get her skirts and feet arranged. The girl who founces down regardless of her appearance, may be comfortable, but she looks as bad as a woman who rides a horse astride.

Every boy is proud of the fact that he chews tobacco, and every man is ashamed of it.

Painful Etiquette.

The royal court of France used to be a great place for etiquette. Louis XIV. once caught a severe cold owing to the fact that on his arising from his bed one cold morning the lord of the chamber, whose duty it was to hand him his shirt, happened to be absent. Not one of the numerous courtiers present had the courage to transgress etiquette by handing the garment to the shivering monarch.—London Scrap Book.

"Young man, you write a good deal of poetry to my daughter."

"Yes, sir."

The explanation was satisfactory.—Exchange.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Truth and Quality

appeal to the Well-Informed in every walk of life and are essential to permanent success and creditable standing. Accordingly, it is not claimed that Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is the only remedy of known value, but one of many reasons why it is the best of personal and family laxatives is the fact that it cleanses, sweetens and relieves the internal organs on which it acts without any debilitating after effects and without having to increase the quantity from time to time.

It acts pleasantly and naturally and truly as a laxative, and its component parts are known to and approved by physicians, as it is free from all objectionable substances. To get its beneficial effects always purchase the genuine—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, and for sale by all leading druggists.
