

PE-RU-NA AS A LAST RESORT

MR. WM. F. VAHLBERG.

Mr. William F. Vahlberg, Oklahoma City, Okla., writes: "One bottle of Peruna which I have taken did more toward relieving me of an aggravated case of catarrh of the stomach, than years of treatment with the best physicians. "I had given up hopes of relief, and only tried Peruna as a last resort. "I shall continue using it, as I feel satisfied it will effect an entire and permanent cure. "I most cheerfully recommend Peruna to all who may read this." Peruna is usually taken as a last resort. Doctors have been tried and failed. Other remedies have been used. Sanitariums have been visited. Travel has been resorted to. At last Peruna is tried. Relief is found. This history is repeated over and over again, every day in the year. It is such results as this that gives Peruna its unassailable hold upon the people. We could say nothing that would add force to such testimonials as the above. That people who have had catarrh and have tried every other remedy available, find relief in Peruna, constitutes the best argument that could be made.

The man who can say "yes" and "no" at the right time has a sufficient command of language. The art of glove cutting requires great skill, and in France some of the best workmen are paid $100 a week. Australia exports 24,000,000 rabbit skins a year. To kill this great number costs about $325,000.

Dr. Joseph Samde, the royal dentist to the Khedive of Egypt, studied surgery in Chicago for three years. Wages in the machine factories of Germany advanced last year 10 to 15 per cent. The Japanese have established a steamship line connecting their ports with Chile. Dresden has opened a bathing establishment for dogs. It is owned and governed by the municipality. About 44,000 square miles of arable land are available in Cuba for sugar culture.

Hadn't Forgotten. Miss Sorecher—I wonder if Uncle Jim remembered me when he made his will? I used to sing for him. Lawyer—Yes, he evidently remembered you—at least your name isn't mentioned in the document. Thirst for Knowledge. "I will wait a few moments," said the lecturer, who had delivered an eloquent and instructive address on "The High Mission of Women in Our Modern Civilization," to answer any question that may be asked. "There's one thing I'd like to know, Mr. Croxton," spoke up a dyspeptic looking man with a thin, straggling beard. "Where do they fit the names for all these breakfast foods?"

The Only Way. "This bathing pool on the lot you sold me is a fake," blustered the irate purchaser. "In what way, sir?" asked the crafty real estate agent. "Why, you told me I would find the water up to my neck. Instead of that I find it only 12 inches deep." "Well, er—I meant you would find it up to your neck, sir, if you jumped in head first."

A Positive Identification. Stranger (at post office window)—Any mail here for John Jones? Postmaster—What Jones are you? Stranger—I am the John Jones what wants his mail.

WEALTHY MAN SHINES SHOES.

Ohlson Worth $50,000 Still Sticks to Old Trade—Cooks for Vacation. If you had $50,000 stowed comfortably away in a bank, would you shine shoes at 10 cents a clip seven days, year in and year out? It is not very likely you would, but that is just what Al Shartle, one of the unique financiers of Dayton, is doing, and, moreover, he is happy and can't be induced to quit his job, says the Ohio State Journal. The only time Shartle gives up his "shine box" is during the autumn, when, accompanied by his brother, he makes the rounds of the country fairs of Ohio. This week he is at the State fair, conducting a restaurant under the grand stand. This is his vacation. It gives him a rest from bending over the muddy boot and at the same time he is adding to his fortune and having a good time, which means something to a fellow who is making thousands of dollars, 10 cents at a time. Shartle began his moneymaking career in Dayton in 1867, when he discovered that there was more money in polishing a pair of shoes at 10 cents than in cooking meals for which some one else obtained the profit. He had been a cook in his youth. When he changed his trade business was small at first, but gradually he increased it, until at the present time his clientele is sufficient to keep him busy all day—every day. When Shartle shines your shoes they reflect your face and the heavens above. Most of his trade is confined to office buildings and large stores. Moneymaking is a habit with him. He likes it. He says he does not care to amass a big fortune like some of the money kings of the country, but he wants to get what he can. When asked why he continued to shine shoes after becoming well to do, he replied, "To make another fortune." Shartle will not tell what he is worth, but it is stated in his home city that he has $1,000 for every year of his life. He is 57 years old. His money is invested in real estate, from which he receives a good return. He was never known to speculate. Shartle is married, and his wife entertains frequently. Her wardrobe is in strong contrast to the simple things which satisfy him. The Shartle home is more than comfortable and has been the scene of many a gay gathering.

INTERNATIONAL EDUCATION

There is room for a school of international education. Let the youth of the "dark" countries, such as Russia, be sent to the enlightened ones for a time, and then let them return home to use their knowledge. A writer in the Independent illustrates this principle under the caption, "Liberty to Keep the Laws." "Here is a place where you can't go, anyway." "But I do not want to go there, so I am in no danger of the penalty." The first speaker was a Russian lad, who was surprised that the Capitol, the White House, public buildings of all kinds in Washington, were open to the world, without even the formality of asking permission. The second speaker was the American friend who was showing him round the city, and the forbidden spot which they at last had reached was the grass in a park, with the sign, "Trespass forbidden, under penalty of the law." "But your President can go there." "Oh, no," was the reply. "He would not want to walk there and spoil the grass, and he would not break the law, anyway." "What?" said the boy. "Does your President have to obey the law?" He gasped in surprise at such a thought. "By all means," replied his companion. "The President must obey the laws, of course." "He must?" cried the boy. "That is queer. Our Czar and grand dukes never have to obey the law." At the close of the day the lad was taken into the Congressional Library, where scores of men were bending over magazines under pleasant evening lights. He caught the arm of his friend as though he saw a ghost. "See! a soldier, a soldier! and he has no gun! and he is reading! You could not see that in my country."

Would Do as Well.

"I am sorry to have to tell you," said the eminent surgeon, "that we shall have to perform an operation." "That's all right," answered the patient. "Go ahead." "But the condition of your heart is such that we do not dare to use any anesthetic." "O, well; tell me what the bill is going to be, doctor. That will be sufficiently stupefying."

Mix for Rheumatism.

The following is a never failing remedy for rheumatism, and if followed up it will effect a complete cure of the very worst cases: "Mix one-half pint of good whiskey with one ounce of Toris compound and add one ounce Syrup Sarsaparilla Compound. Take in tablespoonful doses before each meal and at bed time." The ingredients can be procured at any drug store and easily mixed at home.

To Shut Off Papa's Income.

"But why are you in such a hurry to get married? I love you and you are on the right side of papa." "I know, but it's this keeping on the right side of papa that is worrying me; when we are married I won't have to let him win at poker when he plays."—Houston Post.
