

By Our Formula

We produce in Hood's Sarsaparilla a medicine that has an unapproached record of cures of Scrofula, eczema, eruptions, catarrh, rheumatism, anemia, nervousness, that tired feeling, loss of appetite, etc.

The combination and proportions of the more than twenty different remedial agents contained in Hood's Sarsaparilla are known only to ourselves, so there can be no substitute.

This medicine makes healthy and strong the "Little Soldiers" in your blood—those corpuscles that fight the disease germs constantly attacking you.

Courteous Highwayman.

"You don't mean to say you would accept this old timepiece?" faltered the man who was being held up. "Why, it is only an apology for a watch."
"That's all right, friend," laughed the bold highwayman. "I'll accept the apology."—Chicago Daily News.

PILES

"I have suffered with piles for thirty-six years. One year ago last April I began taking Cascarets for constipation. In the course of a week I noticed the piles began to disappear and at the end of six weeks they did not trouble me at all. Cascarets have done wonders for me. I am entirely cured and feel like a new man." George Kryder, Napoleon, O.

Reform.

"What will you do, Rivers," asked Brooks, "when they do away with the smoking cars?"
"I shall circulate a petition," answered Rivers, savagely, "demanding that the chewing gum cars be abolished!"

Misunderstood Sympathy.

Paul Morton, at a banquet of insurance men, said of a rival company:
"They had our sympathy in their bad luck, but they took our sympathy in ill part. It was like the widow who called on us the other day. This widow came to collect a small policy due her on her husband's death. Our clerk, as he counted out her money, said sympathetically:
"I am very sorry to hear of your sad misfortune, ma'am."
"Well, that's just like you men," snapped the widow. "You're all the same—always sorry when a poor woman gets a chance at a little money."

No Serious Consequences.

"Yes," said Mrs. Lapsling, "Johnny's all right now. When he was bitten by that strange dog I took him to a doctor's and had the wound ostaricized right away."

Up to Arthur.

"Art is long, and time is fleeting!"
Murmured the spinster prim;
"If he doesn't pop next time we're meeting I'll drop him and take Jim!"

Her Dear Friends.

Nan was sitting for her photograph.
"What is that strange noise I hear?" she asked.
"I think it's the camera, trying to sound a 'C. Q. D.' alarm," said Fan.

BRIGANDS OF TONKIN

Lives of Native Soldiers Too Precious to Risk Against Them.

The outlaws of Tonkin whom the French called pirates, are, properly speaking, brigands, who infest the country both on land and water.

One of their resorts is the province of Bac Ninh, where they have just murdered a French officer. There the brigands openly and successfully defy the forces of the government. Long immunity in that quarter has made them numerous and formidable. This need arouse no wonder, considering that the troops in the field consist of native soldiers whose lives are too precious to be risked in frontal attacks on brigand fastnesses.

Just before the murder of the officer a band of brigands made its appearance on the railway line between Hanoi and Bac Ninh and inflicted loss on some native levies who encountered them. Upon this the resident went for a detachment of native regulars to deal a blow at the enemy. The troops met the brigands entrenched in a village, one house in which they had turned into a fortress, so to speak.

The commander of the troops found himself in a fix. To send the regulars across the open to carry the stronghold by storm, under heavy fire from the brigands, meant heavy loss and certain death to many of his men to little purpose. The only alternative was to blow up the house along with its garrison. But this resource failed him from no explosives being at hand. The result was that the brigands escaped.

The Haiphong paper rightly wonders why the troops in the field are not supplied with melinite bombs. Such engines of destruction would save much loss of life among the soldiery operating against the brigands.

Yet no bombs are supplied to the troops, though the brigands have often defied them safely from fortified houses, which the troops would not attack from fear of loss of life not worth while to incur against outlaws.

The result of this weak-kneed policy is that the brigand bands in that section of Tonkin increase steadily in numbers and strength. Pessimists say that in time they will become too many to be terrified by melinite bombs.—South China News.

NEW PRESIDENT OF DAUGHTERS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION

Mrs. Matthew T. Scott, elected national president of the Daughters of the American Revolution, has been prominent in the society for many years and has carried on an aggressive fight for the presidency, against reports that she was physically incapacitated for the duties of the office. She has been supported by the outgoing officers of the society and by the Illinois members, her home being in Bloomington, Ill. She comes from distinguished revolutionary stock on both her father's and mother's side. As vice president general from Illinois her services on the national board have been notable and she has been a leader in Illinois. Mrs. Scott is the widow of a coal mine owner and the mother of Mrs. Bromwell, wife of Colonel Charles S. Bromwell, for the last four years in charge of government buildings in Washington.
