September 8, 9 and 10 will be held the Lincoln county fair.

Travel to the beach is rapidly increasing and Newport, the chief seaside resort of the Northwest, is rapidly filling with health and pleasure seekers.

The Dallas Observer is installing a linotype. Editor Hayter who has been on a vacation for a year, has again taken charge of the paper. The Observer is one of the very best and most progressive papers in Oregon.

The Lincoln county fair will be over just a few days before the State fair at Salem opens. It will give us just time enough to go home and arrange for the latter fair. The State fair promises to be the best ever held in the state, the County fair will be the biggest thing ever held in the county.

Chief of Police Gritzmacer of Portland, who left the office of chief the first of the month, has been a member of the Portland police force since 1873. When Mr. Gritzmacer joined the force Portland had a population of 6000 people he has seen the city grow till its population numbers over 250,000.

A newcomer remarked the other day that the thing which most impressed him with Lincoln county when he first arrived was the hospitality with which a stranger is received by the residents of the county. Lincoln county people have long been known for their sociability, and it is a very good trait. Receive the homeseeker with the hearty hand shake and the chances are you have won him as a citizen among us.

The Oregon State Teachers' Association completed its ninth annual convention at Albany during the past week. The gathering was pronounced the most successful in the history of the organization. An interesting and valuable program was given, with many notable addresses. The second annual convention of county superintendents of schools was held at Salem just preceding the meeting of the state pedagogues. A higher standard for school work in this state was set and many matters of mutual helpfulness were discussed.
