I've bought goods in Glasgow, Belfast and Cork, London and Liverpool and then in New York; I've purchased in Paris, yes, even in Rome, but I say to you truly, there's no place like home. Have sent to Chicago, I'm sorry to say, I got what I ordered, but first had to pay. When the boxes were opened I stood there alone, and said to myself, goods are better at home. The stove that I sent for had only three legs; What's the use of a stove if it hasn't its pegs? When I looked in the oven, it was cracked in the dome, then I wished to old Mike I had bought it at home. I'm all filled up with this buying away, I'll buy where I sell my good butter and hay; If the Lord will forgive me, no more will I roam, hereafter I'll spend all my dollars at home. I want to build Toledo, it's here I must stay, what's the use of me sending my business away? What the dickens does these fellows care for Mike Rhone?—I'll buy my tobacco and smoke it at home. It really don't pay—life is short at the best, it won't be so long till we're all laid at rest; Those chaps in Chicago don't care when I'm dead, they won't send a penny to place at my head. But my friends here in Toledo will come to my wake, and drop a good word for my family's sake; When they come back from Fairview and leave me alone, one thing about Pat, boys, he bought here at home.
