W. F. Wakefield had a tussle with his Jersey bull one day last week, from which he is badly bruised and somewhat crippled. He was leading the animal when attacked and knocked down, falling on his back. He seized the ring in the brute's nose with one hand and a horn with the other, thus preventing the animal from goring him.

After a scuffle of several minutes in which the bull carried Billy some 15 feet or more, he succeeded in getting on his feet and tying the brute. It was a close call for Billy, as he is in luck to escape as well as he did.

Mr. Rogers of Portland was in Eddyville Friday representing the Likhresh Evaporator company of that city. He gave a lecture on their method of preserving fruits, vegetables, meats and fish, and showed samples that had been treated by their system of evaporation, with the result that the people of Eddyville formed a company and will install an evaporator of three tons capacity in time to handle small fruits. The company will incorporate under the State laws. The directors elected are, C. C. McBride, S. T. Loudon and N. T. Hibben.
