HAS FUND OF WAR TALES

Boer Captain's Experiences of Exciting Times Full of Interesting and Humorous Details.

Capt. C. Van de Watering, one of the heroes of the Boer war, and a man of wide experience in many parts of the world, was in Philadelphia recently and was prevailed upon to tell some of his opinions concerning the figures which loomed large in those troubled times in South Africa, according to the Philadelphia Ledger. The captain is a Dutchman born, but he speaks English perfectly, and likewise French and German. Since giving up the profession of soldier he has been in the much more peaceful pursuit of selling varnish. He is a remarkable developed man physically, and he carries his 240 pounds without any appearance of superfluous flesh.

According to the captain, Oom Paul was a sort of modern King Solomon for sagacity and wisdom, and he proves this by telling a story: "Cecil Rhodes and De Beers," he said, "had a diamond farm once near Kimberley, and they could not agree on how it should be divided. To settle the matter, they decided to leave it to Kruger. It was explained to him, and he said to Rhodes: 'You are the elder, so you may divide the property,' and to De Beers: 'You are the younger, so you may have the choice of the two pieces.'"

It was suggested to the captain that he must be interested in the Boy Scout movement, since he was himself a scout serving under General De Wet.

"I think the movement is a great thing," he replied enthusiastically. "Anything which will get the youngsters out of doors should be encouraged. I had my start in an outdoor life and every young fellow should have the same opportunity."

The captain doesn't think quite so much of Baden-Powell, the founder of the scout movement.

"Why, he couldn't scout a free lunch," he said. "You see, I helped to capture Baden-Powell once when he was scouting. It was down near Mafeking, and I was in a detachment with Eloff, the grandson of Kruger. We caught Baden-Powell and got him right, but he did not know everything about scouting then."

The captain was the man who arrested John Hays Hammond, in 1896. Mr. Hammond was not on a diplomatic mission in the Transvaal at that time, but was acting as an engineer for the Consolidated goldfields.

Misplaced Confidence.
I wonder how many quarrels, heartaches, broken engagements and ruined lives could be traced to the betrayal of little confidences which young girls are apt to confide to their women friends?

The German people, who are usually pretty level-headed when it comes to the philosophy of love, have an old proverb, which, being translated, would read thus: "When the devil thinks that matters are running along too smoothly between a man and a maid, he tempts the maid to tell her joy to another woman; then the devil retires, for he knows that the other woman will do all that seven devils could!"

Now, that seems rather hard on the "other woman," doesn't it?
Still, if one will but look back over her experiences, the proverb will prove true in more than one instance, I am sure.

Strange as it may seem to most people who are refined and educated, the fact remains, nevertheless; very few women can resist the desire to meddle with another girl's happiness—even when she has herself won the love and married the man of her choice.

Whether the ulterior motive is one of malicious origin only the woman herself could explain, but the mischief she does has the same results, even if she be entirely innocent of intentional wrong-doing.—Exchange.

Mummy as "Dried Fish."
The customs authorities at Cherbourg are in a quandary as to the admission of a postal package containing the cremated remains of a Frenchman who died in New York. Not long ago their colleagues at Marseilles were confronted with a somewhat similar difficulty. A well-known French Egyptologist arrived at that port with a royal mummy. The officials were informed, on inquiry, that the case contained a Pharaoh. The tariff list was searched in vain for any such article as a Pharaoh, and it was decided to levy duty on the highest scale in order to be on the safe side. The mummy was accordingly assessed as "dried fish."

Poetical Tip.
Should it be your ambition to write a humorous verse pick out an ancient subject and express in language terse. The editor may reject it if the meter's out of joint, but if you fashion it like this he'll surely see the point.

Beauty in Expression.
If the great number of women who believe that they are sadly lacking in beauty who pass valuable time and money in vainly trying to acquire it could but be brought to realize that the highest form of beauty is that of expression! This is attained by the possession of inward graces, which frequently transform a so-called plain face into one more beautiful and winning than the combination of a perfect complexion and regular features.

Simple Club Doings.
While Mrs. W. was busy in her kitchen preparing the light refreshments for her bridge club, which includes the more well-to-do of the neighboring county, Sally Hill, a poor farmer's child, came in with a donation of home-made pickles. "My mother belongs to a club, too," said Sally. "Does she? And what do they do? Play cards?" "No." "Sew?" "Oh, no; they just draw names out of a hat to see who'll have the next meeting."

Should Have Some Superstition.
We would not give a rap for the person who is without all superstition. We would a little bit prefer the man whose superstitions are pessimistic to the one who is so exceedingly superior as to think there is no luck in life, no favor nor disfavor in anything that may happen or in any circumstance that may surround our lives.—Exchange.

Origin of Popular Saying.
The origin of the saying that it takes nine tailors to make a man is thought by some to be a corruption of "nine tellers make a man," the "tellers" being another name for "tolls" of a bell. The English custom was to strike three times three tolls or "tellers" on the passing bell for the death of a man. It was three times two for a woman.

Two-Edged Sword.
Curiosity is finding out something about somebody else that doesn't concern you and which would make you mighty mad if somebody else found it out about you when it didn't concern somebody else.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Delicately Expressed.
Little Bobby had been eating raspberry pie and had left the marks of it at both sides of his mouth, when a little friend of three came in and said to Bobbie's mother: "Mrs. C., can I have some of what Bobbie's got on his face?"

Miss C. Mahoney, of 2708 K St., W. Washington, D. C., writes: "I suffered with rheumatism for five years and I have just got hold of your Liniment, and it has done me so much good. My knees do not pain and the swelling has gone."

Quiets the Nerves
Mrs. A. Weidman, of 408 Thompson St., Maryville, Mo., writes: "The nerve in my leg was destroyed five years ago and left me with a jerking at night so that I could not sleep. A friend told me to try your Liniment and now I could not do without it. I find after its use I can sleep."

African Ants.
These insects sometimes set forward in such multitudes that the whole earth seems to be in motion. A corps of them once was seen to attack and cover an elephant quietly feeding in a pasture. In eight hours nothing was to be seen but the skeleton of that enormous animal completely plucked. The business was done, and the enemy marched on after fresh prey. Such power have the smallest creatures acting in concert.

Wife (anxiously)—I do wish you were in some other work, dear. I am in constant fear that you will touch a charged wire at the shop." Hub—"Oh, the charged wire at the shop doesn't bother me; what I have more dread about is the charged account at the store."

Archbishop Ryan, of Philadelphia, was accosted one day by a drunken panhandler, who asked for a dime. The archbishop gave him the dime and said: "My friend, don't you think it would be possible for you to walk in the straight and narrow path?" The panhandler straightened up, "Who? me?" he asked. "Show it to me. I used to be a tight-rope walker."—Saturday Evening Post.
