

MR. I. M. WRONG
TAKES IT BACK

Editor Leader:—Last Saturday I met Mr. I. M. Wright, the editor of the Enterprise, and the game warden in Elk City and had a long talk with them. Mr. Wright says he has nothing against the county court; says the people need that bridge, but says he is down on the "sistum" as Billy Boy says, that is some people's "sistum." He says we will have to read the Watchman to find out whose "sistum," and he says the reason Billy Boy likes his maw best is because she is his mother.

Now, the editor of the Enterprise is a nice young chap and says he is not to blame for what Mr. Wright has him print. He says there is a half dozen people working in his office, but that he is the whole team, a horse in the lead and a dog under the wagon. So there must not be the hidden editor I spoke of in my former article.

I think Mr. I. M. Wright will be more careful how he attacks the "sistum" and his former spouse or some of us will get wheels in our think tank and they are bound to get loose.

Yours for Peace,
J. A. Hodges,
Salado, Oregon.

TWENTY-TWO YEARS

AGO TODAY
Mr. Cross of Eddyville sold three cows last week to E. D. Young for $25. The Populist state convention was held at Oregon City the 15th and nominated a state ticket.

FAIR PLAY—CO-OPERATION

Eddyville, Oregon.—(Special)
Editor Leader:—After I got home with the Leader of March 17th, I read a letter on the inside corner of page five, from Salado. I was just starting in on my exceedingly rich flow of adjectives when my wife exclaimed, "Why, Web, your'e on fire!"

Sure enough. Where I once had whiskers two feet long, I now have none. That letter just naturally singed my face as smooth as a new laid egg.

Now, if I had something like that to say to the dog in the manger, I wouldn't stand up on my hind legs and bawl, but would try to put up a real argument. This is the way I'd say it:

"Now, doggy, listen. Newport and Toledo will both benefit by a bridge across the bay at Toledo. The shorter the route to Newport by automobile the more will go. When the bridge comes there will also come a road called the Mill Creek road, I believe, which will open up the Big Elk country. At Salado another road will be built, it is said, going cross-country to Eddyville or a little above.

"Listen hard, doggy. I have been over this route myself, and it is shorter than the old one. The automobilists like scenery. This road will have the finest. It will be shorter and drier. More automobiles will be attracted and Newport will be the gainer. Toledo will have a large and fertile region to trade with, which now she hasn't. They both gain, so why not boost together? Co-Operate—That's it."

That's the way I'd say it. I agree with the safe and sane half of Mr. Hodges' spell exactly, but he's hurting his own cause—"Fair Play." I do not believe that rabid, bow-wow abuse will get it. Perhaps Mr. Hodges is bilious. Here's a tip. Charcoal is good for gas—on the stomach.

Here's for Fair Play, and what is ten times better—Co-operation. For with fair play we merely divide up what we have, but with co-operation we can get a whole lot more.

Yours respectfully,
Web.
