FUEL AND HEAT.

And Why a Blackened Stove Will Give the Best Results.

The typical household operates on the hit or miss rule of thumb. Effectiveness is secured either through happy chance or the coincidence of that rule with some sound principle.

Why is the stove in the kitchen kept black? The United States bureau of standards asserts that not one woman in ten knows. It says that the reason is that a blackened stove is the hottest of stoves. A nickel plated stove loses half of its capacity for hotness.

Do you want your hot water pipes to transfer heat without loss? "Black them bright and shining," says the bureau. A bright pipe loses less heat than one insulated in thin asbestos.
Pans and pots kept bright stay hot longer than those not so. An ideal kettle is black on the bottom to take heat easily and bright on the sides to keep heat long.

Fuels are too frequently used without understanding of their special fitnesses for specific purposes. A coal fire takes half an hour of coaxing to proper enthusiasm for frying eggs.

Many furnaces work better on small than on large coal, which also is more expensive. The heating surfaces and the flues of furnaces should be kept clean. Soot insulates the source of warmth, as if an asbestos mat were put between the stove and the pot of coffee.

PORTUGAL'S HOMER.

Camoens, Who Wrote "The Lusiad," Died in Abject Poverty.

"The Lusiad" is one of the noblest records ever written of national glory and success.

Camoens, its gifted author, determined to do for Portugal what Homer had done for Greece. The great poem was written in the sixteenth century, which has been called the heroic age of Portugal, and its main feature is the rounding of the Cape of Good Hope by Vasco da Gama, while a most interesting episode is the crowning after death of Inez de Castro as queen of Portugal.

"The Lusiad" took its name from Lusitania, who was said to have founded Lisbon. Its author was born about 1520, and his career, which began brilliantly, was blighted by the death of a broken heart of the lady of his love, for whose sake he was banished from the land.

Camoens wrote "The Lusiad" in his banishment and was recalled in 1571, losing on the way all his property except his poem. Pensioned at first by the king, this great epic poet of Portugal died in great poverty and misery in 1570, when his patron was also dead.

Knowledge and Culture.
A great memory does not make a philosopher any more than a dictionary can be called a grammar. There are men who embrace in their minds a vast multitude of ideas, but with little sensitivity about their real relations toward each other. These may be antiquarians, annalists, naturalists; they may be learned in the law; they may be versed in statistics; they are most useful in their own place. I should shrink from speaking disrespectfully of them. Still, there is nothing in such attainments to guarantee the absence of narrowness of mind. If they are nothing more than well read men or men of information they have not what specially deserves the name of culture of mind or fulfills the type of liberal education.—Newman.

England's First Almanac.

The first almanac printed in England was the "Kalendar of Shepherdes," which appeared in 1497, just forty years after Gutenberg printed his first almanac at Mentz. From that time onward almanacs were numerous, "omens and prognostications" being added in most cases to the calendar information.
One of the earliest specimens preserved enjoys the title of "The Prognosticacyon of Master John Tybant, of the influence of the moon, of pens and warre and of syknesses of the yere, with the constellacions that be under the planets and the revolutions of kynges and princes."—London Mirror.

Melba's Name.

Mme. Melba's name was Nellie Mitchell until her marriage, when it became Mrs. C. N. F. Armstrong. At the time of her debut into opera she decided to adopt a stage name, and her intense loyalty to the land of her birth moved her to combine the first four letters of Melbourne, her native town, and the last letter of Victoria, the reigning queen of that time, together making Melba.—New York Telegraph.

The Diamond.

While the diamond is the hardest substance known, it is also brittle and may be fractured by a blow. But if it is placed between two hard steel faces in a hydraulic press and a slowly accelerating pressure applied the hard steel will become indented.

Musical Hash.

New Boarder—What is the landlady's daughter playing? Old Boarder—A mixture of airs from a lot of old operas —a sort of musical hash, you know.—
St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

No Excuse Whatever.

New York Man—Are you going to be at home this evening? New York Girl —Why should I? I feel perfectly well.
—Puck.

According to Rule.

"Did he die a natural death?"
"Yes, so I understand. He was run over in the streets of New York."—

F. H. WALTERS MUSIC HOUSE

Announcement

I wish to announce that owing to my accepting a position with a large music house I was unable to continue my regular tuning trips, established two years ago, in this city.

I have now opened a complete music store in Corvallis with a ull line of Pianos, Player Pianos, Organs, Talking Machines, Sheet Music and Everything Musical, and will now continue my twice a year tuning trips to Toledo.

To those of my patrons with whom I established a yearly business I will give one free tuning this coming Spring.

F. H. Walters,
Tuner of Pianos at O.A.C.
