FERTILE ALASKA.

Uncle Sam's Big North Farm and its Great Possibilities.

Alaska is an unknown world as to its farming resources. I stood on the hills near Fairbanks and looked over a million or so of acres of tillable soil in the Tanana valley. The whole territory is said to have 30,000,000 acres of possible farm lands, and the Aleutian Islands will feed thousands of cattle. Here and there I visited the homesteaders, and I stopped for some time at all of Uncle Sam's experimental farms. Upon one of them the grain which stood in the fields reached to the height of my head, and I saw them growing oats, barley and hay and even alfalfa. I saw potato patches that were yielding four tons to the acre and one potato field, which I was told, had a crop in the ground that will sell for $10,000.

Another surprise was the wild berries that grow all over Alaska and another the wild flowers that make the sides of the hills and the lower slopes of the mountain blazes of color. I found plenty of grass everywhere, and in places the weeds were as high as my head. I saw fat stock on the homesteads of the Tanana valley and visited dairies which were supplying butter and milk to the towns and mining camps near by. The Aleutian Islands have a climate milder than Scotland, and on the island of Kodiak, which is as big as Porto Rico, they are now raising Galloway cattle and long woolled sheep.—Cor. of Christian Herald.

LINCOLN'S ARMCHAIR.

It Had One Great Charm Despite Its Fiercely Condition.

There is an interesting story of Abraham Lincoln's quaint humor that turns on his habit of sitting with his long legs thrown over one arm of his chair. That was a habit common among country lawyers sixty or seventy years ago, and Lincoln never got over it.

Very fond of the ease he found in old slippers, he would often meet his official family with them on his feet, and during cabinet meetings he would sometimes sit with one or both legs dangling across the chair.

In the cabinet room was an armchair which from the constant battering of the presidential legs had grown weak and seemed almost ready to shake to bits. A few days after Lincoln's second inauguration there was a cabinet meeting, and one of the cabinet ministers noticed the old chair and remarked on its rickety appearance.

"It seems to me," he said as he gazed down on the old wreck that stood at the head of the table, "that the United States ought to furnish the president with a better chair than that."

Lincoln screwed up his face into a comical smile.

"What is the matter with that chair?" he asked. "Shabby as it is, there are thousands of men in this country who would be delighted to occupy it."—Youth's Companion.

A Pirate's Model Kingdom.

Pitcairn island is in latitude 25 degrees 3 minutes south and longitude 130 degrees 6 minutes west, or almost exactly south of Vancouver island and just a little south of the tropic of Capricorn. It was first settled in 1790 by nine mutineers from the English ship Bounty and eighteen natives of Tahiti. By the year 1808, when the island was discovered by the English, the population had grown to sixty-six persons, who formed a model community under the patriarchal government of John Adams, the only surviving mutineer, who had saved a Bible from the ship and was ruling with wisdom and justice his little kingdom of slightly over two miles in length. The island is under the British flag and has a couple of hundred inhabitants.—Christian Herald.

It Wouldn't Work.

Some time since a learned doctor was giving a friend a bit of good advice with regard to mastication.

"No matter what you eat," said the physician, "you should chew each mouthful thirty times. If—"

"That's all right, doctor," smilingly interjected the friend, "but that would not work in my case."

"It wouldn't work?" responded the doctor wondering. "Why not?"

"I live in a boarding house," answered the friend, "and my voracious fellow feeders would have the table cleaned while I was eating one mouthful."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Getting Around It.

"When I was your age I worked fourteen hours a day," said the worried father.

"Well, what of it?" replied the young man who squanders.

"Nothing much; only when you get to be my age that is probably what you will have to do."—Washington Star.

Bathed in Blood.

Not always was a bottle of wine used in christening a ship. In the days of sacrifice to the gods, it is said, it was customary to sacrifice a human being when a boat was being launched and to cut his throat over the prow so that his blood baptized it.—Argonaut.

Relief.

"Is your daughter improving in her music?"

"No; but the next best thing is happening. She's getting tired of it and won't practice."—Washington Star.

Those who eat most are not always the fattest, so those who read much have not always the most knowledge.—Calcott.

BIG CIRCUS DAY

DRAWS NEARER

The day of all days in the calendar of the small boy has almost arrived and the youngsters of this vicinity are anxiously counting the hours until circus day. It looks now as though a large percentage of the local population, both young and old, will be present at one of the performances when the Barnum & Bailey Greatest Show on Earth exhibits in Salem on September 9.

Not in several years has so much local interest been evinced in a circus event as has been displayed this season in the coming exhibition of the Barnum & Bailey Circus. It is promised that the show will display more new and novel features than ever before, including 100 new acts from Europe.

The principal feature is the new Oriental, spectacular pageant, "Persia, or the Pageants of the Thousand and One Nights." This great display, which is portrayed by 1,350 persons, and hundreds of horses, Elephants and camels, depicts in pageantry the famous tales of the Arabian Nights. In New York City, where this pageant was produced for the first time this Spring, it was announced the most gorgeous and stupendous Oriental display ever presented in America.

Among the foreign circus novelties to be seen for the first time this season are four troupes of wonderful Chinese performers direct from Peking, the Great Hanneford family of riders; Sinnor Bagonghi, famous dwarf equestrian from Italy; James Teddy, champion jumper of the world; Pallenberg's two troupes of trained bears, and a host of other novel acts too numerous to mention individually.

The Barnum & Bailey circus traveling this season on five trains, made up of 89 cars. More than 1,400 persons are carried in the various departments of the great show, which also includes an enlarged menagerie of 100 cages and 41 elephants.

A brilliant, new, three mile street parade will be given on the streets during the morning hours preceding the first performance.
