

Worth Careful Thought

Do you read the label to know whether your baking powder is made from cream of tartar or, on the other hand, from alum or phosphate?

Royal Baking Powder is made from cream of tartar, derived from grapes, and adds to the food only wholesome qualities.

Other baking powders contain alum or phosphate, both of mineral origin, and used as substitutes for cream of tartar because of their cheapness.

Never sacrifice quality and healthfulness for low price.

The children of 1400 rural Oregon schools have been using lessons on the fight against tuberculosis as texts in their class work during the past year. The lessons were furnished free by the Oregon Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis as a part of its work.

Now they are organizing to help the Red Cross Seal sale of the Association so that this method of disseminating information may be continued and the be strengthened in its campaign to exterminate the dread disease in this state.

Acting under the formal approval and permission of the Board of School Directors the children of 52 Portland schools will also join in the big movement.

Last year the children secured $775.74 from the sale of Red Cross Seals. It is expected that more than $1000 will result from their enthusiastic work this year. Their efforts will be made principally during "Tuberculosis Week."

This comes December 3 to 10, reaching a climax with "Tuberculosis Sunday," December 10, when every pulpit in the state is asked to join the campaign by recounting progress and repeating the warnings against the disease.

The Association has sent a letter direct to the children of each school. It tells them how to proceed. It tells them why the work is so much worth while. It tells them the story of Danny.

Danny had a penny. It was a bright, shiny, new penny. He took it to school. Instead of spending it for a stick of candy he bought with it a Red Cross Seal. Danny knew a boy who could not run or play because he had what was called tuberculosis. Teacher said the Red Cross Seals were sold to help this boy and to tell other boys and girls, and grown people, too, how to keep well and strong and happy.

He put the seal on his desk. As he looked at it, the picture of Santa Claus seemed to grow larger. Santa seemed to wink, seemed to smile. Then he stepped out of the seal. He took Danny on a wonderful ride behind his reindeer.

Danny saw tiny germs cause tuberculosis. He saw a boy who whined when told to go out in the fresh air and play. He almost ran over a sunbeam that was bound earth-ward to kill the germs. He saw the building where the multitude of pennies given by boys and girls were being assembled to use their united power against the disease. Suddenly Danny found himself back in the school. But he was glad that with his penny, the only penny he had, he had bought a Red Cross Seal.
