He is now eighty-nine years old, has been a Methodist minister for more than 50 years in Oregon and has preached more sermons and visited more people the frog and warm sunshiny than any other minister in the days. state. În pioneer days he rode the circuit with a pair of old fashioned saddle bags and the Bible, Hymn book and a change of clothing was all he took with him. In this way he traveled hundreds of miles over the state preaching in school and private houses, wherever he could get a hearing. He went through storms, crossed swollen rivers, often sleeping out at night, going through all kinds of hard-ships and exposures. He says Oregon in it's primative state, was one of the most beautiful ed with all kinds of fowls—geese ver was a caller in Ona last mountains with game and wild animals and Indians. Mr. Ho-
