DAIRY AND FOOD COMMISSIONER MICKLE WRITES

Portland, Oregon,
August 20th, 1917.

To the Editor Leader:

Would you kindly give me space in your valuable columns to sound a word of caution and advice to farmers who are preparing dressed meats to be sold in Portland and other cities within the state.

A great amount of this meat is condemned and ordered destroyed because of reaching the market in such a condition that it is unfit for food. This is not only a direct loss to the farmer who ships it, but in such times when we are exercising every effort in the line of food conservation, it is a loss to the consuming public, and we feel a great deal of such loss could be avoided if farmers and butchers would properly prepare their meats, taking necessary precaution to see that it reaches the market in the best possible condition.

Dr. E. E. Chase, Chief Meat Inspector of the City Health Department of Portland, informs me that during the last 16 months there has been condemned 18,426 pounds of meat that was killed and dressed by farmers, and this condemnation has not been on account of a diseased condition of the meat but simply on account of what is termed "Spoiled Meat." We feel that if the farmers and butchers will observe the following requirements, much of this loss can be eliminated:

1st. The carcasses of veal and hogs must be entirely free from animal heat before being offered to the transportation company for shipment.

2nd. All carcasses of veal should have two sticks, one in the thoracic cavity, the other in the abdominal cavity, so as to spread the carcass and hold it apart. In hogs weighing over 200 pounds it would be well to have them split through the hips and shoulders, as hogs sour very quickly during hot weather. Thoroughly wash the inside of the veal with hot water and wipe with a clean cloth until all slime and dampness is thoroughly removed; the sprinkling of cayenne pepper on the insides of the carcass tends to prevent the work of flies.

All carcasses except veal, must be wrapped in a clean cloth before being offered for shipment.

(Signed) J. D. Mickle,
Dairy and Food Commissioner.

REMINGTON UMC REVOLVER and PISTOL CARTRIDGES

MOST men use their revolvers but seldom. Yet they hold pronounced opinions about their ammunition—due to the force of example!

That is Remington UMC opinion. You see your guide with a belt full of Remington UMC. You find your dealer handing you Remington UMC as a matter of course. You hear the men at the Pistol and Rifle Club insisting on Remington UMC as strongly in .22 caliber shorts as in the .45 automatics.

There's a thought here for every man who is shooting any kind or make of pistol or revolver. Remington UMC Revolver or Pistol Cartridges are produced for every standard make and caliber of arm.
