YANK INVENTORS MASTER WIRELESS

As predicted when America entered the war—Yank inventions have come fast—necessity being the mother of such. It now develops that wireless telephony from airplane to artillery—has been used on the American front for the last six months. Now Roy A. Weagant of New York has invented a method of control for wireless telegraph which makes static and other interference with messages impossible.

STOLEN FROM THE PEAVEY

Following are some items taken from the Soldiers' paper, The Peavey.

Toledo Camp Personals

Pvt. Walter G. Rackley, gourmand of the 80th, has increased his capacity almost two-fold by the judicious use of a preparation known as "Tan-lac" or "85 per cent." When all others have left the mess hall it still takes some ten minutes more before "Rack" is loaded to the plimsol mark. (This is not a paid Adv. for "Tan-lac.")

Pvt. Cotton wrote his contributions this week on his own paper, instead of the Y. M. C. A. stationery, and put a notation to that effect at the head of his contribution.

Privates Pritchard, Harvie, Washburn, LeMunyan and Claybourn are among those who have lately returned from the hospital at South Beach. They all tell a tale of wonderful soup made by Cook Hobson of that place. They say the soup is so good that they wish Hobson himself could get sick for about a month so he would be permitted to live on soup made by the same recipe for a while.

Nelnhuis says he inherited characteristics of both his grandfather and grandmother. He says Grandpa ate an awful lot and Grandma ate a long time.

Pvt. Froom has not quite decided whether to name his new son and heir "Jazz, Jr." or "Spruce." "A. S. A. P." has been suggested.

A certain private in the 80th Squadron has applied for a commission as a civilian. Someone told him that a civilian outranks even a captain.

Pvt. Boyd: I used to be called "Sergeant." Were you ever accorded that distinction?

Pvt. Coughlan: No I was not called. I enlisted.

Toledo Editor of Peavey:

I wish to state that the noise heard in my ear at the wee, small hours of the morning is not my snoring. Also wish to make the statement that I can snore in eight keys at the same time, instead of only seven as you stated last week, and with a volume that cannot be compared with a locomotive whistle, let alone such a small noise as Caruso's tenor. The noise you heard was simply Pvt. Rapsey gargling his throat. I am not guilty. Respectfully, Pvt. Hartfield.

The 101st Squadron Peavey Correspondent had finally managed to obtain an interview with Sergeant Balcom. "What do you think of the S.P.D. as far as you have gone?" inquired the correspondent. "I may get to like it after a while," replied the Sergeant. "but just now I think their is altogether too much drilling, working and fussing around between meals."

Corp. Phillips: Why do you always buy two kinds of note-paper? Corp. Thomas: Well, when I write to Hazel I use red paper—that means love; and when I write to Irene I use blue paper—that means faithful and true.

Dr. Baker is back from his leave of absence. The boys are glad to have him back again.

The officers of the Regiment held a dance in honor of Captain and Mrs. R. D. Grant last Wednesday evening.

THE OLD "DONK"

The Spruce Division has a type of artillery all its own. Where the men of the Heavy Artillery look with pride to their shining "Big Berthas" and the Anti-Aircraft men to their "sky-ticklers" and the field artillery drills with its "75's", the soldiers of the Northwest feel a close comradeship with the Big Donkey engines affectionately known as the "old Donk."

Through the creek bottoms up the most impassable mountain side and down the steepest draws, the Donk pulls itself with the help of the slender steel cable. Atlas himself never could have travelled so far or so certainly as this mechanical Terseus. Where the famous Tank-devils would give up in despair the men of the Spruce division have made their way with their strange looking steeds.

Then, when the travelling is over, situated on a "side" a jim pole erected, the donkey again gets busy. Reaching out hundred and even thousands of feet into the thick forest, he picks up the fallen logs and pulls it into the clearing where his small brother, the loader" places the log on the tracks.

The record of spruce production which was made this last fall by the men of the S. P. D. would never have been possible without the help of the "old Donk." No wonder every Spruce will always regard his noisy helper with gratitude and friendship.

IT MIGHT BE WORSE

Instead of a warm easy-going rain it might be a driving snow such as old lumbermen in the Gopher state tell about. Instead of good clean food cooked under army supervision, it might be cats of the old logging camp style where dirt was the first item in every dish. Instead of a liberal pay check each month, it might be labor performed for German slave-rasters. Instead of the pride that every man in the Yaquina Bay District feels in the work that he has helped accomplish as a soldier for Uncle Sam you might be going home to a slacker war-bride. IT MIGHT BE WORSE.

You'd hardly know Pete was chewing. Image of a man chewing a plug of tobacco.

Yet he says he gets more satisfaction out of his small chew of Gravelly than he ever got out of a big chew of ordinary tobacco. "Real Gravelly has a pure, rich taste," says Pete. "It's sweetened just enough, and one small chew holds its good taste so long. I figure that this class of tobacco costs me nothing extra—maybe less than I'd have to spend for ordinary plug."
