To Keep American Ships on the Seas

For the first time since the Civil War we have a real merchant marine. It cost us $3,000,000,000 to get it.

The farmer, manufacturer, laborer—every American is interested in holding our position on the seas.

As a first step in this direction it is necessary to modify those articles of existing commercial treaties which have operated to thwart the upbuilding of our merchant marine—By giving the notice of termination for which the several treaties provide.

This action is directed in the constructive Shipping Bill now before Congress:

Which declares it to be the policy of the United States "to do whatever may be necessary to develop and encourage" a merchant marine.

This policy deserves the support of every American.

Lacking this support the present effort to maintain our merchant marine may suffer the fate of many ineffective attempts of the past.

Send for a copy of "For an American Merchant Marine."

HAS RAILWAY SYSTEM FOR HIS FARM

W. C. Gage, former New York broker, quit the big city and bought a farm at Fishkill, N. Y. He liked the farm but he didn't care for the extensive walking—so he built a miniature railway system to all parts of the entire acreage. He got the lumber for the track from an old hen-house—251 feet long. His engine power is from a small gasoline motor. The cars are built to handle all farm produce. The picture shows the "tourist" car for carrying holiday passengers. Mr. Gage is shown at the throttle of the engine—an route to gather the eggs—as the tracks run through the new hen-house.
