International Harvester Service

For the best proof of the thoroughness and effectiveness of International Harvester service, take the word of the man who has paid his good money for an International Motor Truck. He knows that the world-wide Harvester organization is the jealous guardian of the daily performance of each individual International Motor Truck—and that this unexcelled "after-sale" service is one of the secrets of the lasting economy and success of International Motor hauling equipment.

International construction makes International Motor Trucks worth buying—International service makes them worth keeping.
