THE UNIVERSAL CAR

THE FORD ONE-TON TRUCK

As a matter of fact we might almost as well call it a Three-Ton Truck for it very rarely carries a smaller sized load. The owners of the Ford truck take advantage of the high qualities of materials which are known to be put in the Ford car, take advantage of the high quality of Ford workmanship which characterizes Ford cars and they overload to the limit. Well, the Ford truck has never broken down with any of these overloads. It delivers expectations and double expectations, so far as carrying capacity is concerned, and while that is not fair to the truck, still the owners are satisfied.

But the Ford one-ton truck, with its aluminum bronze worm drive, its greater weight and strength of frame and its incomparable power plant, is without a reasonable competitor in price, in service, in cost of operation. It is the lowest priced truck on the market, of equal capacity. No other truck on the market operates so economically and we believe there is no other truck that will give as satisfactory and profitable results. Our allotment is limited. Better leave your order without delay.

REGARDING DAIRYMAN'S LEAGUE

As the farmers of this vicinity are seriously considering the advisability of affiliating with the Oregon Dairyman's League and as they seem desirous of obtaining all information possible regarding the matter, we herewith publish a letter which we received some little time ago from the Manager of the Mutual Creamery Co. The letter is submitted for what it is worth, and not with an idea of influencing the dairymen one way or the other, but rather with the idea of assisting the dairymen to view the situation from every angle possible before committing themselves to any proposition.

The letter follows:
Portland, Oregon, Jan. 20, 1921.
F. N. Hayden, Publisher
Lincoln County Leader,
Toledo, Oregon.

Dear Sir:
The writer read with much interest the activities of Mr. J. D. Mickle, ex-Dairy & Food Commissioner, set forth in your issue of Friday, January 14th. Although we have believed from the outset that the Oregon Dairyman's League cannot possibly succeed, particularly when they attempted to go into the marketing business, yet our opposition to them has never been very active, because their activities were confined principally to milk in the city of Portland and the manufacture of cheese in Coos county, but when we found their competition in Portland on the selling end, our interests naturally become opposite, and we feel that to parade the League before your subscribers is doing you and them an injustice, unless you suggest, or someone suggests to them that under no consideration should they sign an agreement to tie themselves up for five years without investigating carefully the results that the League have shown up to date.

To get our view point on marketing, may we suggest that you read a very able article in the last issue of the Saturday Evening Post, by a Mr. Atwood, entitled "Eliminating the Middle Man". There has been entirely too much loose talk about the middle man. It would seem that anyone who makes a profit in the distribution of goods, particularly in the food line, is a menace to the public, absolutely dishonest, and, in fact, the whole propaganda of those who have fostered the League, and who have fostered selling associations of all kinds, seems to have been one of creating distrust in the mind of the producer, particularly eliminating the covering up the fact that services is positively the most expensive part of marketing, and even exceeds in many cases the original cost of production.

We certainly believe that organizations which co-operate for the benefit of standardizing their product, and even marketing same under their own labels, are doing a wonderful work, and the results that have been obtained by the Citrus Growers Union, the Raisin Growers, the Apple Growers Associations in different sections, and the Tillamook Cheese Association, are due entirely to the fact that someone is responsible for quality, and that when goods go out bearing the label of the Association, they are absolutely reliable, and the best part of it all is that the producer himself is forced to have his produce graded, and our experience has shown that, for instance, in the case of the Oregon Poultry & Egg Association, the grading is much more severe than the patron gets from the so-called middle man, and their final results are no better, but all of the Associations which have been successful have spent their own money in advertising their products, and that their products are handled through channels of trade already established, and not marketed directly to the retailer.

The Tillamook people, for instance, do not sell a pound of cheese to retailers, but their shipments are all made through legitimate wholesalers and jobbers and the result is that they have the good will and support of everybody in the business.

The butter that is being made by the League at present is being sold 2c under the Portland market. Margins are very close in our line, and it is not possible to continue a system whereby the groceryman will constantly buy his butter for less, and the producer will constantly be given more when not only does the League have the same overhead and the same service charge that we do, but a greater one in every case, with limited market. There is a difference of 3c per pound between the price the League is receiving for their cheese at Portland, and Tillamook cheese, so that evidently there is no long margin of profit being made by them on this item.

The competition in milk is very severe. The Portland-Damasus Co., who are the biggest competitor of the League, have a surplus of milk. We know that in Coos county members of the League are greatly dissatisfied. They have waited three and four months for their money, and at the end of that time the results are no better than if they sold through legitimate dealers.

We do believe that those who fostered the League are honest, but misguided, and are simply theorists. It might be possible to take a combination of dairymen, insurance agents, college professors, politicians, etc., and by some invisible means work out a system that will constantly give the consumer goods for less, and the producer more for his product. The only thing we say is that not a single dairymen should continue to sign up with the League until they find out personally the results they have already obtained in Coos county, and it will not be necessary for them to come to us as competitors to find out the results. If any number of them are seriously considering joining the League it would pay them to appoint one or two men as a committee and pay their expenses into Coos county for a week or ten days and let them personally interview the members, and they will find that there are a mighty sore lot of dairymen there. We have refrained from openly attacking the League heretofore because naturally we would be considered as having an ax to grind, but we believe if we simply passed out the suggestion as to how information can be obtained, we will have at least caused some thought, and possibly have saved some money for some of these people who have listened to some of the glib talk of Mr. Mickle, and others, who have absolutely nothing at stake.

Yours truly,
Mutual Creamery Company,
By E. J. Cashire, Mgr.

THEY FEED THE LIZZIES HAY NOW

When automobiles took the place of the faithful old nag, little was it thought that in a few years America would be feeding the automobile hay. The Department of Agriculture at Washington has produced an illuminating and power gas from straw, cornstalks, hay and other vegetable matter. Fifty pounds of straw will produce enough gas to run a light auto 15 miles. The picture above shows an expert manufacturing the gas in one of the experimental rooms.

FEEDING FOR TWELVE DOZEN EGGS A YEAR

At Uncle Sam's experimental farm in Maryland, across the Potomac from Washington, D. C., the Department of Agriculture develops many helpful, progressive and profitable new methods for the producers of the nation. This photo shows the consumption and production in one year from one of the hens in a feeding test there.

FOUR GREAT AMERICANS FROLIC FOR A DAY

When we hear of such men as Henry Ford, the automobile marvel; Thomas Edison, the electrical wizard; John Burroughs, the great naturalist, and Harvey S. Firestone, the great rubber king, having a reunion, we naturally think of splendid hotels and a large city as the site of their day-of-frolic together. Not so, however, with them, for the one day that they set aside each year is spent in the country. This year they all reported at Yama Farms Inn, at Napanoch, N. Y., where they cast aside all formalities and cares; forgot that they are really great men and romped in frolic like so many boys. They indulged in woodsplitting contests, telling yarns by the fireside and being just plain boys once more.

SEVENTEEN TIMES HER WEIGHT IN MILK

Mary, owned by F W Ayer of Bangor, Me., is the new champion Jersey milk and butterfat producer of the world. In one year she set the mark of 15,255 pounds of milk and 1040 pounds of butterfat. It was a remarkable feat—dairymen say it was about 17 times her weight in milk—and at the present retail price of butter her production brought in $532. Her weight is 800 pounds.
