THE LONE CABIN.

[There is a legend which says that years ago there stood on the bank of the Willamette River, near Portland, Oregon, a solitary cabin. The history of its owner is here given as the legend tells it.]

The cabin-house of the settler stood
In a valley of evergreen;
Above were forests of living pine,
Below was the river's stream;

Ever the voice of the river came
And went in its plaintive flow;
Ever the light of its gentle breeze
In the lines fell sweet below;

For, eye, it stood while the years rolled by,
A sign of the ever past;
It stood in the cheering noontide ray—
Its roof in the midnight blast;

Long years ago, ere the city man
His home in the young State found,
Ere the screen of the engine whistle woke
The echoes from far around;

He heard the song that the river sang,
As never it ceased to run;
He bent his ear to the gentle hum
Of the breeze in the pine above;

As the months rolled by the hunter's fire
Burned bright on the chimney-stove;
And his rifle hung on the pegs above,
And he sat with his hounds below;

But, alas! one day there came a change
O'er this happy woodland home—
The sun in the westen sky went down,
And the hunter did not come;

For the hunter's hand was still in death
In the willow-wood far away;
He had chased the deer for the final time
In the forest deeps that day;

His cabin stood in the valley still,
As the months and the years passed on;
But the cheerful smile of the hunter's face
From its door was forever gone;

Soap a nail to drive it into hard wood
Grease a screw and it will go in easy.
Sprinkle starch into a tight boot to get it on.

Mercurial ointment rubbed on a gun barrel will keep it from rusting.
To cure a child of colic rub the back gently between the shoulders.

Sugar mixed with salt, when you have no saltpetre, will give meat a fine color.
No less than six insane men have appeared in Washington, of late, to be inaugurated as President.

"What's the use of making such a fuss about a little water?" said a judge before whom motion after motion had come, in a case where a small spring was the object of contention. "The parties are both milkmen," quietly remarked one of the lawyers. "Oh! I see," said the judge.

Alleger, Bowby & Co's

STAR

PARLOR

ORGAN

surpasses in tone and power any Reed Organ heretofore manufactured in this country. It has been tested by many competent judges, and gives

UNIVERSAL SATISFACTION

By a skilful use of the stops, and of the patent knee swell, the music is adapted to the human voice, ranging from the softest flute-like tone to a volume of sound

UNSURPASSED BY ANY OTHER

Instrument. The proprietors have tested carefully, for many years, the imperfect tone and reeds of the reed instruments, and direct their practical experience to the correction of such imperfections, and the experiments have resulted in the production of a quality of tone which assimilates so closely to the

PIPE ORGAN QUALITY

That is difficult to distinguish between the two. This instrument has all the

MODERN IMPROVEMENTS.

And every organ is fully warranted. Large Organ, with 120 keys, and 120 pipes, in a case that forms, in addition to a splendid instrument of music, a

BEAUTIFUL PIECE OF FURNITURE

This organ needs only to be seen to be appreciated and is sold at extremely
