

A young man's interest and duty both dictate that he should make himself indispensable to his employers. He should be so industrious, prompt and careful that the accident of his temporary absence should be noticed by his being missed. A young man should make his employer his friend by doing faithfully and mientally all that is entrusted to him. It is a great mistake to be over-nice or fastidious about work. Pitch in readily and your willingness will be appreciated, while the "high-toned" young man who quibbles about what it is and what it is not his place to do, will get the cold shoulder. There is a story that George Washington once helped roll a log that one of his corporals would not handle, and the greatest Emperor of Russia worked as a shipwright in England—to learn the business. That's just what you want to do. Be energetic, look and act with alacrity, take an interest in your employer's success, work as though the business was your own and let your employer know that he may place absolute reliance in your word on your act. Be mindful; have your mind on your business; because it is that which is going to help you, not those outside attractions which some of the "boys" are thinking about. Take a pleasure in work; do not go about it in a listless, formal manner, but with alacrity and cheerfulness, and remember that while working thus for others, you are laying the foundation of your own success in life.—Ex

When you speak to a person, look him in the face.

Boss Tweed formed in procession and marched around his cell on the Fourth. You can't kill patriotism.

Two souls with but a single thought—Two ragmuffins climbing over an orchard fence, with a fierce eyed dog in pursuit.

"Are these soaps one scent?" inquired a lady of a juvenile salesman. "No, ma'am, they're all ten cents," replied the innocent youngster.

The man who cries out for 'the dollars of his fathers' is pretty certain to be a man whose father got trusted instead of paying out any of his dollars.

Boys that have been properly reared are men, in point of usefulness, at sixteen; while those who have been brought up in idle habits are useless at twenty-one.

Man has evil qualities as well as good qualities peculiar to himself. Drunkenness places him as much below the level of the brutes as reason elevates him above them.

Prayer is the pitcher that fetcheth water from the brook wherewith to water the herbs; break the pitcher and, it will fetch no water, and for want of water the garden will wither.

The West sends her money to the East. The East pockets it and goes on a pleasure excursion to Europe, and the Europeans get it. This is the way in which we are building up this country.

Mrs. Strasberger, of Reading, has recently found a cluster diamond ring in a package of coffee. If she'd only let the public know what brand of coffee that was, there are grounds for believing that it would be in demand.

Love is a big thing for convicts. An Illinoisan, on his way to the penitentiary, was kissed by his sweetheart, and with her lips she passed into his mouth the key with which he subsequently unlocked his handcuffs and gained his liberty.

In a court room—A lawyer to his client: "I am sorry, poor fellow; but notwithstanding my eloquence you are sentenced to three months." "Oh, don't let that worry you. In the neighborhood where I live they will think I have gone to the country, and that will give me social status."

Yesterday the world appeared dark and gloomy, and humanity seemed plunged in deep despair, but to day the sun breaks through the clouds and we are made happy by the assurance that high buttoned vests will be in style this season to cover up the gray on a fellow's shirt bosom.

A Writer in "St. Nicholas" dredged the backs of his bees with flour as they were leaving the hives in the morning during a very dry time doing this by a reconcocted arrangement with a friend who had a fine clover-field in bloom forty miles away. The friend wrote back directly. "There are plenty of your white-jacket bees here in the clover."

It was a Frenchman—the famous Carlingo—who, contentedly laying his head upon a large stone jar for a pillow, replied to one who inquired if it were not rather hard, "Not at all for I have stuffed it with hay." It was an American lecturer who solemnly said one evening, "Parents, you may have children; or if not, your daughters may have." It was a German orator who, warning with his subject, exclaimed "There is no man, woman or child in the house who has arrived at the age of fifty years, but what has felt the truth thundering through their mind for centuries."

SQUIRRELS TURNED TO WOOD—The Marshall (Texas) "Stat-smen" says that a large maple tree was recently cut in that vicinity, and in the very centre of the trunk, surrounded by about a foot of sound wood, was discovered a squirrel's nest. Fine grass, bits of cedar bark and beechnuts filled the cavity almost full. The slightest touch reduced the contents to dust, and further research revealed the little occupants of the nest, coiled snugly under the covering, and turned to wood. There they lay almost perfect in form, smothered to death. They had become a part of the tree itself. They had not starved to death, because their store of nuts was not exhausted when they died. The only explanation that seems reasonable is that they entered the tree in the fall, through a small aperture, which then grew too small for use and exit, and they were gradually sealed in.
