

THE ASHLAND TIDINGS

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1876.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

That grape festival at Mr. Tozer's was a decided success.

Rev. Geo. Nutley, the shoemaker, is erecting a new shop near the Postoffice.

Goods of every conceivable variety continue to arrive at J. M. McCall & Co's. Their new ad. will appear next week.

Kat-lux ca-wate non-oke mook-fox, peck-a-lial Gambler, said Capt. Blow, and the mook-fox straightway gambled for Klamath.

Remember that the people will always find at the Pioneer Store an excellent assortment of just such things as they need.

Mr. Amos Shock of Dairy, Lake Co., is spending some days with his friends in Ashland. He reports all quiet at Alkali Lake.

We regret to learn that S. M. Watt, formerly of Ashland, is lying very low with consumption, at the residence of Hon. J. C. Tolman.

We had a pleasant call, a few days ago, from Edward Ivory, of Clover Swain, Modoc county. He started on his return on Monday last.

INEXCUSABLE—Gen. Schenoldishushadjacopotoff was impaled on a Turkish lance at Plevra, and some of the papers have got the name split wrong.

O. Coolidge is building a very handsome residence on his lot west of his home place in Ashland. The new building is for rent when completed.

B. F. Reser in addition to a full line of hardware, always keeps on hand an excellent assortment of dry goods, tobacco, wooden ware etc. See his ad.

The Ashland minstrel club practice. Judging from the racket they make at their rehearsals we expect some rousing entertainments in the future.

We regret to learn that E. F. Billings recovers very slowly from his late attack of fever. He manages the Eagle Mills energetically however. Patronize him.

Hon. L. S. Dyer and Capt. D. J. Ferree of Lake, arrived in Ashland on Wednesday evening with their teams. They come for fruit and other supplies for the winter.

A RED SHAUL—We forgot to give notice last week that on the day of the Pioneer Banquet, a red shawl was left by a guest at the Ashland Hotel. Please call on Jasper Henck for it.

Mr. W. W. Watson, late of the Tidings office, is now employed as a clerk in the Post Office and the store of Helman & Fountain. We have tried Mr. Watson and know he will give satisfaction.

Rev. J. B. Donaldson our new Presbyterian pastor made us a pleasant call this week. He has lately returned from the annual session of the Synod at Portland where he was ordained for his pastoral work.

Dr. Conlan died in Jacksonville on Saturday morning last from his wounds. He had passed through many fiery ordeals in his time, having been shot a number of times, but his turbulent spirit is at last at rest.

A NEW PHYSICIAN.—Dr. J. S. Jackson of 1624 Clay street, San Francisco, writes us that he has decided to make immediate preparations to remove to Ashland, being much pleased with the reputation of the Granite City.

We acknowledge the pleasure of meeting with Mr. Leech, a very intelligent Californian, who has decided to Ashlandize with his family. He likes the place very much and will doubtless make an enterprising and worthy citizen.

Dr. J. S. Jackson, before referred to, arrived in Ashland with his family on Tuesday last. He is a pleasant and intelligent gentleman, comes well recommended and doubtless is well posted in his profession. See his card in another column.

From Mr. W. H. Howard, of the Ashland Soap factory, who crossed the Siskiyou mountains on last Thursday, we learn that the road is in better condition than for some years past. The Messrs. Dollarhide seem to be the right men to manage the road.

ABSENT MINDED.—An absent minded gentleman of our acquaintance met with a peculiar episode a few evenings ago. While conversing with an absorbingly interesting lady at a front gate, he handed her his hat that she might keep the dew off her raven hair, and soon after tore himself away hatless into the night. We have watched Acorn avenue intently, but as yet, no hatless man has returned for the missing shelter.

Every energy is exerted to push the work on Capt. McCall's new brick. The walls are nearly completed, the joists are in position and the roof will go on in a few days. J. M. McCall & Co. will be in readiness to place an immense stock of goods in the building as soon as completed.

One day last week we received from Miss Annie Jaquette some specimens of Chestnuts and black and white walnuts, taken from trees in Mr. Jaquette's nursery. It is said by those who know (we natives do not) that old Missouri herself could not produce finer specimens than these.

ON A HUNT.—We learn that our old friend Thos. G. Reames, of Jacksonville, has "gone off in a band to himself," and is supposed to be encamped on the summit of Wagner's Butte on a hunting expedition. Tom has the skill and sand required for such a raid and will doubtless make it warm for the muskitch up there.

The new building of Dr. Inlow, near the Post Office, is nearly completed and adds no little to the appearance of that part of town. The Doctor's drug store will occupy a part of the lower story and the remainder will be used as a residence by J. W. Riggs, whose photograph gallery will occupy a part of the upper story.

FINE TUBERS.—We acknowledge a call, a few days ago, from A. W. Bish, who left on our table some of the finest potatoes we have ever seen. They are of such colossal proportions that we talk of hollowing one out for a waste basket. Mr. Bish has raised this year not less than 75,000 lbs. of these magnificent tubers in his gardens, a few miles south of Ashland.

FIRE.—In the hurry of going to press yesterday we were unable to get all the details of the conflagration which occurred on Wednesday night near the residence of Mr. Jacobs. We learn, however, that the ash-hopper was spirited away by the destroying fiend in a fearful short time. The ashes have been saved however. Let us not delay the organization of our fire company another moment.

We attended Mr. O. H. Park's panoramic exhibition of the Centennial last Saturday evening, and are glad to say that we considered it a decided success. One can certainly get an excellent idea of the colossal buildings which grew up as by magic in Fairmount park last year, and of many of the interesting objects on exhibition, by taking a look at this panorama.

Rev. J. H. Rook, U. S. Indian Agent at Klamath, spent several days in Ashland, and left on Wednesday's stage for Portland where he is to receive and open bids for Agency supplies. Mr. Rook has undertaken to fill an office of peculiar responsibility, one requiring much patience, judgment and experience, but we have confidence that he will acquit himself quite creditably in his new field.

Dr. J. S. Dennison, Physician at Klamath Agency, arrived in Ashland a few days ago, accompanied by a score or two of the Klamaths. The Doctor has the reputation among the Sineahs of being very skillful in the practice of leech and is exerting no little influence in the way of breaking up unreasonably and barbarous practices of the native Keoc or Medicine Men. He left again for his station on Wednesday morning.

A GOOD BUSINESS.—Mr. L. S. P. Marsh of the firm of Marsh & Valpey, informs us that the new steam saw mill on Batte creek, which only began running on Sept. 14th, has already cut more than 150,000 feet of excellent lumber. Teams are at hand ready to take the lumber away as fast as it can be turned out. The outlook for business is certainly very flattering. It is the design of the enterprising firm to cut a million of feet of lumber and make 500,000 shingles, during the winter, so as to be in readiness for the spring trade.

YAINAX.—Rev. Geo. W. Rook, now in charge of Yainax station on the Klamath Reservation, was in Ashland a few days this week purchasing his winter supplies. He reports everything as tranquil as usual among the redskins on Sprague River. Henry Jackson, alias Skedaddle, a Pit river, formerly held as a slave by the Klamaths, who has of late won an enviable reputation as a rail-splitter, accompanied Mr. Rook to assist in the transportation of the muck-a-muck.

THE SOAP MAN'S GRATITUDE.—We acknowledge the receipt, from J. B. Rigdon & Co., of soap enough to keep our epidermis undefiled for many a long day. Mr. Rigdon's presentation address abounds in the happiest thoughts and expressions, and concludes with the hope that the TIDINGS may ever continue to gladden the hearts of the sons of enterprise and toil, purifying and elevating society as the soap of J. B. Rigdon & Co. purifies the surface of the physical man, and thus entitles him to a higher place in the social scale.

The Indians.

Among the Indians who came in from Klamath this week to purchase winter supplies, were Capt. Blowe the head chief; Dave Hill, second chief, and sub chiefs Captain and Link River Jack. The two first are the most notable of these representatives of the Klamath nation, having been conspicuous as the allies of the whites during both the Snake and Modoc wars, and now being the recognized leaders of their people in civilization. Dave Hill or Wabalks Skidat, is the man who was kidnapped in New York City, while a member of Redpath's Indian Lecture Company, and whose disappearance created so much of a sensation in the great Metropolis. Dave's thrilling experiences on the war-path in the early days, his lecturing campaign in the East, his abduction and the circumstances of his long and weary march, friendless and penniless, across the continent, would make a volume of unusual interest, and prove him no ordinary man, though a member of a fallen and fading race. On Sunday evening the Indians attended church, in Ashland, and, by request of Elder Peterson and others, addressed the congregation briefly on the civilization of their people, contrasting their present situation with that of former days, before the advent of the white man, showing that their condition is now immeasurably better and their prospects brighter than ever before in their history. They said they had been taught that the white man's enlightenment had come to him through the bible, and that they were anxious to learn more of the truth contained in the book, as well as to make progress in the arts of civilized life. They anticipated good results from the school now in progress on the Reservation, hoping through its agency, to see their little ones master the mysteries of the white man's paper language. They spoke in the native Klamath and the emphatic Chenook and the English interpretation was rendered by an old scout, long familiar with the peculiarities of the Indian tongue. The speeches abounded in the peculiar and striking metaphors so common to Indian oratory, interesting the audience exceedingly, and we regret that we cannot reproduce them for the edification of our readers, as we were requested to do by the congregation. The Klamaths as a tribe have never been at war with the whites, but on the contrary, were our allies in the darkest days that ever came to our frontier settlements and are consequently more entitled to friendly feeling than almost any other of the Indian tribes now extant.

THE FALLEN.—May will no doubt read the tribute to Jonathan A. Pedigo in to-day's paper with no little interest. There are doubtless many others besides the author, now in various parts of the country, who remember the same brave and generous hearted soldier boy. But his case was that of many others who fell in Indian warfare, in an early day. We may visit the graves of some and perchance muse among the thick growing brambles that cling around a rotting head-board, but alas, others fell we know not where. We only know that, somewhere, among the mountains, they became the red man's prey. It is plainly our duty to remember with gratitude those who have fallen in Indian warfare, "when the tomahawk and not the laurel, was the meed of heroic daring." For "their blood calls to us from the ground we tread;" from forest and mountain and plain; from the sombre walls of the Big Horn where the "White Chief with Yellow Hair" went down in the whirlwind of charging horses and whistling bullets to the rocky hill sides of Tule Lake and the pleasant valleys of Rogue River, where many an enterprising wanderer, from the land of his fathers, was offered up as a sacrifice upon the altar of American civilization. The homes of plenty and peace, which we enjoy to-day have come to us through the efforts of men like Pedigo, and though we were to hew from our solid granite monument and engrave upon it a record of the deeds of those who went down in the struggle of the early days, we would yet but poorly repay the debt we owe them.

ELOQUENT.—She carried away the door key that morning and forgot it at a neighbor's. At midnight's silent hour she stood with her body guard by the window. Through it she would soon disappear and, in the fragrant hush of morning" would be enroute to the foreign land of Webfoot. There, under the rose leaves, he poured the accents of love. Into her sun burnt ear and proposed a correspondence which would perhaps keep alive the fervent feelings of their hearts until two more souls might be welded on the matrimonial forge. Such a moment comes rarely in a lifetime, but, when it does come, it calls for the most pathetic and and heroic eloquence. He was the possessor of this rare gift and her father, who had found his way in at the window already, crouched quietly in a corner and reflected on "the native eloquence of his mother tongue."

Dr. H. F. Adams will visit Ashland Oct. 21st and 22d for the treatment of chronic diseases. Dr. Adams treats all diseases of the chest; catarrh and bronchial affections successfully. Dr. Adams makes a specialty of all kinds of diseases of the eye and ear. Call on Dr. Adams at the Ashland House.

TOLMAN'S GRAVEL MINES ON COW CREEK—Judge Tolman writes to an Ashland friend that he has enrolled as laborers 44 white men and 36 Chinamen. He has probably opened the ditch to paying ground by this time. The design is to complete a line of ditches extending over 10 miles, but there is supposed to be paying ground, at intervals, all along the route, which is to be developed as the work proceeds, thus making the ditch pay all or a considerable part of the expense of its construction. The Judge, who is superintending the work, writes that the directors of the company, to-wit: Gov. Chadwick, Judge Willis, J. Brandt jr., Sol Abrahams, D. A. Levens and Mr. Hinkle, lately made the mines a visit and, after a thorough examination, went away in full confidence of the future success of the enterprise "but badly worried for the want of a better place to sleep."
