

OUR BIG BUTTE LETTER.

Nov. 3, 1877.

EDITOR TIDINGS:—A vender of "patent soap" heard that our faces were soiled, and accordingly decided to act the part of the Good Samaritan, and offer succor. Our salubrious atmosphere had a vigorous effect on his palatal organs, unstrung his tongue at both ends, and it ranted away like a "Granger Watch." Finally his efforts to purify the outer man proved futile, and he turned him valde towards in disgust. Bulldozing us into purchasing an article which we do not want, don't win in this pure climate.

Our gallant sportsman discovered a fine group of ducks in the pond at the saw mill, and after carefully reconnoitering for a practicable site, found one. Then "one by one" came off their heels, and when the last one had "handed in his checks" and the water was crimsoned with gore, and our hero about to stretch out his boots, the episode came in. They were Mrs. S—'s tame ducks, and for a while things seemed rather Amazonian about those premises. We learn, however, that the matter has been amicably adjusted. "Money makes the mare go." To add to the ludicrousness of the joke, he found a band of wild geese the next day and would not shoot lest they might be tame ones.

This will be an inviting place for young men in a few years hence—about one and a half dozen of the babies are of the sex feminine.

If some Yankee would introduce a machine for manufacturing news items your correspondent would negotiate for a gross of them. This locality is entirely too pacific for news during the sombre seasons.

Mr. Editor, me no sabee jargon. Spose you talkee China; me heepee too muchee sabee.

Valpey is fat and saucy. Our crippled list is convalescent. W. H. Parker has purchased the Big Butte water power saw mill. When we get our winter's supply of edibles we shall not cure which way the wind blows. P.
