THE ASHLAND TIDINGS

IDAY.....NOVEMBER 21, 1879.

THE CRESCENT CITY ROAD.

The Sentinel makes a strong point in an article under the above caption in its last issue when it says that the people of Jackson country are throwing away annually in the matter of unnecessary freighting expenses a sum equal to their taxation. This is easily demonstrable. As at present imported, the merchandise from San Francisco comes to us by the overland route over nearly two hundred and fifty miles of railroad and then has to be hauled in freight wagons about a hundred and seventy miles; by the circumlocution route it travels some seven hundred miles by water and is then about three hundred miles north of us. Of this distance it comes two hundred miles by rail and still has to be hauled over a hundred miles by wagon, making a trip of about a thousand miles. Our merchants now find it cheaper to ship by the northern route, notwithstanding the great distance, so we may compare the Crescent City route with that. By way of Crescent City freight would need to be hauled over a wagon road a little shorter than that between us and Roseburg, a road, however, which would doubtless, if properly built, be more easily traveled than the latter; from San Francisco to Crescent City is but a little over three hundred miles by water. So we should save the freightage upon the two hundred miles of railroad, never less than half a cent a pound, and the difference in ocean freightage which the saving of about four hundred miles in distance and the towage and pilotage on the Columbia river would make. Add to this the saving of the cost of handling the freight once and the slight difference in favor of the Crescent City road which teamsters will be able to make in hauling, and we may safely conclude that the people of Jackson county would save nearly twenty dollars upon every ton of freight which they ship to or from San Francisco. This saving, it must be remembered, would not fall into the hands of those only who are directly engaged in the shipping or mercantile trade; it would be shared by every individual who buys a pound of sugar or nails or leather, by everyone who takes part in the consumption or use of the merchandise brought from the outside world into our valley. What the people of this valley would save in one year is amply sufficient to meet their share of the expense of building the road. To take a simple example: Something over 200,000 pounds of wool is exported annually from Jackson county. The saving of one cent per pound upon this would amount to two thousand dollars. Let those directly interested in wool growing contribute two thousand dollars to the building of the new road, and when they ship their next year's clip of wool by the new route they will get the two thousand dollars back in the one cent per pound more which they will receive for their wool. So it will be with all who may contribute. To speak of our people collectively, they will in contributing toward the building of the new road only be paying in advance a small portion of their next year's freight bill. The road will cost them absolutely nothing but the interest for a few months on the amount of about one-fourth of their annual freight bill, and when once built it will be dropping money into their pockets every year.

Thus, in the narrowest view of the subject, it is seen that the simplest rules of economy leave our people but one course to pursue in this matter. What would be thought of the business sagacity of a man who could save his taxes every year hereafter by simply paying them in advance for the next year if, having the means at command, he should neglect to take advantage of the extraordinary opportunity? This is the situation of our people on the Crescent City wagon road matter. Will they act upon business principles?

The Scientific American says the year 1879 will pass into American history as a year of wonderful prosperity. The cotton crop is larger by half a million bales than ever before, the tobacco crop 12,000,000 pounds greater, and the sugar crop exceeds by some 200,000 hogsheads all previous yields. These are crops which belong almost exclusively to the southern half of the Republic. In behalf of the Northern States the excess of products this year over the crops of any previous year is, according to the Chicago Journal of Commerce, 20,000,000 bushels of wheat and nearly 100,000,000 bushels of corn. The hog crop also is larger this year than for a number of years past—if it be not the largest ever raised.

The latest election news from New York shows that the Republicans carried all the state offices, except that of Engineer and Surveyor. Following are the majorities of the various candidates: Hoskins (Rep.), the candidate for Lieutenant Governor, has defeated Clarkson N. Potter by about 1,100 majority; Carr (Rep.), candidate for Secretary of State, is elected by nearly the same majority; Wadsworth (Rep.), candidate for Comptroller, will have an increased majority, and Ward and Wendell, Republicans, are also elected as Attorney-General and Treasurer. The majority for Horatio Seymour, Jr., (Dem.), candidate for Engineer and Surveyor, will be toward ten thousand. John Kelly's vote is increased over the previous estimates, and will reach seventy-five thousand.

The Boston Post paragraphs thus: Limerick: No; it will not be necessary, at least until Postmaster-General Key issues another order, for you to state the exact longitude and latitude of the city to which your letters are directed. You are merely obliged to give the state, county, township, street, number, post-office box, age, sex, color and previous condition of servitude of the person addressed.

The real issue in Massachusetts, this year the New York Sun asserts is sixty-one years old, weighs something like two hundred pounds, has a defect in one eye, is supposed to be worth several millions of dollars, expects to be the next Governor of Massachusetts, and to that end is at present making speeches which even the hostile Boston critics admit to be models of tact and adroitness.

It is roughly estimated that the next census, the taking of which will be begun on the first of June next by the twenty thousand enumerators, will show the population of the United States to be over fifty-five millions.

Fernando C. Beaman has been appointed by the Governor of Michigan to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Chandler.

An alliance between Turkey and Russia is actually contemplated. Reality is stranger than fiction.

IGNITED BY SUNLIGHT.—The Portland Bee tells of a table being set on fire by sunshine in a house in Portland one day recently. Perhaps some people who have heard of the Willamette country may doubt this, but it is true, nevertheless. Says the Bee: "The shutters to an east window in a side sewing room had been left open. A table was standing immediately in front of it with a woolen cover on. A glass paper weight which was used by the gentleman of the house while clerk in the legislature, had been placed on it, and the sun shining on it formed a perfect lens, focalizing the rays, setting the cloth on fire, and when discovered was rapidly burning into the table, a circular column of smoke ascending to the ceiling. Had the family been absent from home, a conflagration would undoubtedly have followed, and the question as to the cause never known. A curl or defect in a piece of glass will sometimes form a lens and curtains beset on fire if at a proper distance."
