

THE ASHLAND TIDINGS

FRIDAY, APRIL 24, 1890. INDEPENDENCE.

The thought of independence in thinking and independence in voting in Jackson county is worse than the nightmare to our neighbor of the Democratic Times. He speaks of independence as though it were a disgrace, as though it were a term calculated to bring odium upon those to whom it may be applied.

The interruption of the mail service on the route between Linkville and Lakeview has caused great inconvenience to the people of Lake county, and they are justly indignant.

The Portland papers contain every day or two a long article about the condemned Chinese murderer, Ah Lee, surrounded by such pathetic caption as "Will he Hang?" "His Forlorn Hope," etc.

The exodus investigation committee still continues its labors, and the testimony elicited is all that could be desired, as far as variety goes.

Upon all hands we find an increased interest in the Crescent City Wagon Road project, and a growing conviction that the road will be put through at once.

The auditor of Walla Walla county redeemed 13,000 squirrel scalps, at two cents each, the other day.

LANE VS. "HONEST" JOHN.

At the Democratic State Convention Gen. Lane refused to vote for the unanimous nomination of John Whiteaker for Congress, and has been criticized severely by some Democrats.

"The General freely gave us his reason for the action on his part. Prominent Democrats and men of responsibility had informed him that it was within their power to prove that John Whiteaker, while a member of the Oregon Legislature, had accepted a bribe amounting in the end to $3,000.

"The circumstances of John Whiteaker being bribed are stated about as follows: As before said, Whiteaker was a member of the Oregon Legislature. He was one of the warmest of the advocates of the Oregon City look and dam swindle.

"Gen. Lane says he has never voted for a Democrat under a cloud of suspicion, especially when that cloud was raised by that Democrat's own party friends.

The giant powder works at Berkeley, near Oakland, blew up last Friday; twelve white men and twelve or fifteen Chinamen were killed.

The Iowa Republican Convention met on the 14th, and a resolution endorsing Blaine as the choice of Iowa was adopted by a vote of five to one.

The impression appears to be gaining that Tilden will receive the nomination without difficulty at the St. Louis convention.

The Salt Lake Tribune says: Stock men in all portions of the Territory report feed entirely exhausted, and cattle are still dying by the hundreds.

Wm. H. Vanderbilt will defray the traveling expenses of the Egyptian obelisk on its journey to the United States.
