

WITHOUT AND WITHIN.

My coachman, in the moonlight there, Looks through the side-light of the door, I hear him with his brethren swear...

May's Sutor.

"Has May come? Yes Bertha; I have stowed her away safe and sound in the carriage." And Mr. Webb, of Framington Hall, bustled himself in lifting various parcels, bags, etc., from the old family carriage.

"Miss May, will you come with me and take a ride?" "What! at this hour! Why, surely not, Mr. Oakland!"

"Well, that was very fine of you to go off in that fashion, without letting anyone know of it. I began to think that Mr. Oakland had eloped with you, but mamma thought otherwise, and she insisted upon my dragging the pond."

A Drunken Elephant.

"I saw little Betsy as drunk as a fiddler one day, and she was a funny sight. We were sailing late in the Fall in Indiana, in very severe weather. Some monkeys and birds and snakes had already frozen, and Betsy showed that she was suffering greatly from the cold. Long John went to manager Older, and said to him—'You'd better get some whisky for Betsy or she'll freeze.'"

"Thank God, I was not too late! My darling, what should I have done had I lost you?" She opened her eyes, wet with thankful tears, and whispered: "Would you have cared, Gerald?"

At this interesting point they were interrupted by the appearance of Edwin Webb, who could hardly conceal his laughter at the turn affairs had taken.

Hypnotism.

A distinguished German scientific person has recently been making a series of experiments in hypnotism which has attracted a great deal of attention. He takes any casual German who is willing to be experimented upon, and holds a small bright object within a few inches of his eyes. After gazing steadfastly at this bright object for a little while, the German appears to lose his own individuality and becomes the passive instrument of the experimenter.

Dyspepsia Cured. ROCHESTER, N. Y., October 5, 1879. H. H. WARNER & Co.—GENTS: I have for some time past been afflicted with dyspepsia, from which I could obtain no permanent relief, until I used your Safe Bitters and Pills, and since using them I have had no trouble from my former complaint, and I can now truly say that I am a well man.

What Bret Harte Said.

Bret Harte was at the banquet of the Royal Academy in London, May 1st, Sir Frederick Leighton presiding, the Prince of Wales, Duke of Cambridge and Mr. Gladstone being among the distinguished guests.

What Bret Harte Said.

I presume I am selected to answer to this toast as a native of a country which reads more English books and pays less for them than any other nation. [A laugh.] Certainly, representing as I do a free people—who of their own accord read four volumes of Tennyson to one of Longfellow [a laugh]—I might claim a hearing here. [A laugh.]

Wm. E. Clarke, of Providence, R. I., has issued a pamphlet which he sends free to any address, setting forth the results of his experience with reference to Bright's Disease of the Kidneys.

I have tested the Oregon Blood Purifier, the original botanical remedy, first introduced by Wm. Pfander, of Portland, Oregon, and can state with confidence that as a Tonic and Purgative, it is really superior to any other preparation and worthy of the confidence of the medical faculty and public.

About Fat People.

No doubt it is unpleasant to be excessively obese, says the London Lancet, but the morbid dream of fat which has in recent years become fashionable has no foundation in physiological fact.

CHAPTER II.

Several days later, Oakland called at the Hall, and was taken into the parlor where the family were assembled. They all welcomed him gladly, for it was a dull, wet day, and they did not expect any callers.

He was Liabie to Sneeze.

Writers use such similes as "so still one could hear a pin drop" and "as silent as the grave," but for absolute awe-inspiring quiet command us to that profoundly concentrated hush of a variety theater audience as some "monarch of song" retires after perpetrating, say, some fifteen "encores."

Funny Philology.

"How do you pronounce s-t-i-n-g-y?" Prof. Stearns asked the young gentleman nearest the foot of the class. And the smart lad boy stood up and said it depended a great deal whether the word applied to a man or a bee.

Cheap, Because Good.

Butter! You remember the story of the guest who was eating more butter than biscuit, while the landlady looked on and fidgeted and hinted until she fairly went into a nervous fit. Finally she said: "Do you know butter is up to sixty-five cents a pound?"
