

THE ASHLAND TIDINGS

FRIDAY, MARCH 26, 1886

"Job Billings." A mule is a gun on a hoas. Common sense in the instinct of reason.

Success has no pedigree, and only a short breed. Patients have won more victories than logic ever has.

All genuine humor is truth, and that's what makes it so powerful. It is better not to know so much, than to know so much that ain't so.

What a man can win with politeness is out of the reach of everything except a kick. Lies are like a legitimate child, liable to call a man father when he least expects it.

A man has as much rice to sow as a seed as it is pronounced as he has to pronounce it the way it ain't spled.

In this country there is a grate or what is called virted than is nothing more than vice, virted out.

These things are such a thing as butiflery. The other name for it is an allegory. It ain't the lies of this world that are so much or a burden as it is the vulgar knitters who are trying to prove that it ain't so.

Reason was given us, not to prove what we want understood, but to rationally understand what we can prove. Ridicule that ain't true is a dangerous weapon to use, the handle is sharper than the point.

There is a hundred different kinds of religion, but one kind of piety. Flattery is like Kolum water, to be smelt of, not swallowed.

Living on hope is like living on wind, a good way to get full, but a poor way to get platt.

Many people spend their time trying to find the hole where sin goes into the world; if two men broke through the ice into a mill pond they had better hunt for a hole to get out rather than get into a long argument about the hole they come to fall in.

There is sun holes in this world that spend their whole time a hunting after rightness, and can't find any time to work for it.

Whenever a minister has preached his sermon that pleases the whole congregation, he probably has preached one that the Lord won't condone.

Laziness is a good deal like money—the more a man has, the more he seems to want.

Duty that don't make a woman vain makes her very pretifal. Advice is like kaster, it easy enuff to give, but dis-e-fil uneasy to take.

A puppy plays with every pup he meets, but old dogs have but few associates. If you want to get at the circumference of a man examine him among folks, but if you want to get at his actual diameter, measure him at his own family fireside.

I don't care how much people talk if they will only say it in a few words. Men of genius are like eagles, they live on high; while men of talent are like crabs they live on what has been killed for them.

There are two things in this life for which we are never prepared and that is twins. Love is like the measles, we can't have it but once and the later in life we have it the tuffer and ruffer it goes with us.

Teve pick out a good husband—shut up both eyes, grab hard, and trust in the Lord.

Natural History—The Baby. (Detroit Free Press.) "What animal is this?"

"This is a baby. He is now about three years old and at the wickedest point of his earthly career."

"What countries does the baby most inhabit?"

"He can be found in every inhabited country on the globe, in some as mosquitoes and boils."

"Can they be tamed?"

"Yes, quite easily. After a little judicious discipline they cease to struggle and become subservient to the will of man."

"Does the baby eat grass?"

"Yes, or anything else. They swallow pocket-knives, thumbtacks, buttons, spoons, or any subject a little smaller than a teacup. If offered milk they seldom refuse it."

"Do they graze during the day, or only at night?"

"They are always grazing, paying not the least heed to the hour. When not actually eating they generally give utterance to a peculiar cry. Strong men often jump out of bed at midnight in the coldest weather when hearing that cry."

"What meaning is attached to this cry?"

"Men of deepest thought have agreed that it signifies to wake up the neighborhood and have some fun."

"Of what benefit to mankind is a domesticated baby?"

"They are an earthly account, paying not the least heed to the hour. When not actually eating they generally give utterance to a peculiar cry. Strong men often jump out of bed at midnight in the coldest weather when hearing that cry."

"Such instances have been related by such eminent naturalists as George Francis Train and Texas Jack, but we don't put much faith in them. However, if the baby was malicious and persistently provoked, there's no knowing what it might do."

"Are they a healthy animal?"

"No. On the contrary, no druggist could make enough profit in a year to buy him a pair of Arctic overboots for the presence of the baby in every household. There is hardly an hour in the day that the baby does not demand peppermint, paragon, milk, sugar, cordial, cod liver emulsion, ipecac or something else costing money."

Another "Lost Cabbie" Find.

Mr. Clark, who lives beyond the slab, brings the following news from Dry creek: The country adjacent to Dry creek has been prospected for years by different parties, but they all have kept near the line of the old ditch, which was staked, (and the dates there on stumps can yet be found) in 1838. It is supposed that a party had intended mining for gold on a big scale and had expended about $500 on his said ditch, and were either unsuccessful or run off by Indians, or else perished during a severe winter.

No one now seems to know anything reliable concerning their operations, but the dates and initials still remain, and their prospecting holes. Mr. Clark was told by a Major Indian that there was plenty of "gold money" there. But unlike other prospectors, Mr. Clark did not confine himself to the old ditch, but searched for the drift, and found the ledge about two miles from the ditch stakes. He found a hole about ten feet square which is supposed to have been a part of their cabin, as Indians were very warlike in those days, and they probably had most of their cabin under the ground. Mr. C. found the ledge to be not less than 130 feet through and probably more, as the snow was too deep to prospect much. He found that the first parties were one or two hundred feet from the ledge. The quartz was decomposed, and looked as though it had been burned by volcanic action, and he thinks that consequently the rock would not carry much metal, and the ore will be found further down, and will be what is known as gravel diggings. The dig silver from the rock with his knife blade, and he also thinks it is very rich in gold.

If this find is what it seems to be, it will be a big thing for this section. It is a ledge of gold ore, and is located through Quartz valley, clear on through Jackson county to the Pacific coast. Also on the same line across Goose lake near Willow Ranch free gold has been found, and "cobbles" can be found at that place any day. Who knows but what this same ledge crosses the lake on the same line, and that some day placer mining will be carried on extensively in the bed of the lake?

Mr. Clark is an old miner and is not given to visionary schemes, and we hope his expectations will be fully realized. As soon as the weather settles he will do more prospecting, and in the meantime will have an assay made of his find.

Sherman When Not Thin-Skinned. (New York Tribune.) General Sherman has not always been as irritable over newspaper criticism as he has lately shown himself. When he was starting on his march to the south papers at the North which were sympathetic with the Confederate cause were printing long columns of attacks on him which were based on various pretenses. One of them attacked the lady members of the Sherman family considerably. Women are always more ready to resent a charge of low birth or antecedents than men are. In this instance the charge was made that General Sherman was a low-bred man, and in proof of it was set the awful fact that he once kept a corner grocery. One of his relatives wrote to him that she thought he ought to take some notice of the charge. The General replied with the utmost good nature that he did not think it worth while. As for himself, and he believed he would be sustained by the rest of mankind, he thought a corner was a mighty good place to keep a grocery.
