REPUBLICAN STATE PLATFORM.

We, the representatives of the repubican party of the state of Oregon, in convention assembled, proud of the achievements of our party in behalf of the freedom, material prosperity, and natural unity of our country, and reaffirming our devotion to the time-honored principles of our organization, do declare ourselves in favor of the following prop-

First-Honest, efficient and economic administration of all public offices. Second-Protection to the rights of labor and capital, with equal and exact

Third-A free school system-the foundation of free government. Fourth-The right and duty of the legislature, both state and national, to enact reasonable and essential initiations upon corporate powers and regulations upon corporate powers and regulations office a preventing unjust discrimination and fapreventing unjust discrimination and faprevent enact reasonable and essential limitations icy of the republican party in congress in the past, liberal appropriations have been made in favor of internal improvements, and especially for our rivers and harbors in this state, and we favor a continuation of the policy of using the publie money for the public welfare, believing that in the improvement of our waterways relief will be afforded in a large measure to the transportation interests of our state, and we urgently urge upon congress prompt and liberal appropriations for the improvement of the bar of the Columbia, the locks at the Cascades, the removal of obstructions at Celilo, the completion of the works at Yaquina, Coos bay and Coquille, the opening of all our navigable rivers, to the end that they may be made free publie highways, untrammeled by tolls and unnecessary delay, and generally, the improvement of all the entrances for commerce along our coast.

Sixth-That all unearned grants railroads and wagon roads should be forfeited and the public lands opened to actual settlement under the public laws, and to this end we demand the imme the land grant from Wallula to Portland, and a full investigation of the wagon road grants by both state and national legislatures, and in event of forfeiture we demand such provisions attached as will fully protect innocent purchasers of and actual settlers upon small tracts within forfeited limits. Seventh-We favor the most careful scrutiny in the disposal of the swamp lands of this state to swamp land claim ants, and demand that the rights of bona fide settlers on all lands on which agricultural crops can be raised without drainage, be recognized and respected. Eighth-That we are in favor of such an adjustment of our revenue from imports as will encourage the development of the industrial interests of the whole country and secure to our workingmen liberal wages, to our agriculturists remunerative prices, to our mechanics and manufacturers an adequate reward for their skill, labor and enterprise, and to just and equal share of 'axation.

|Washington Special. Passing by Senator Stanford's house. on the day when the Seventh Regiment paraded, I saw the Senator standing in a baw window of the first floor of a large gray-stone house upon the corner of K Seventeenth streets, in which he lives. The Senator was carelessly dressed in black. He had on a short sick coat, and stood with his hands in his pockets. In every other window and door of the house there was a very correct English servant in full evening dress. This imposing array of servants made his house look as if it was titted up for a reception. The Senator appeared quite common and ordinary standing in the foreground of so much elaborate respectability and de orum. The English servants never smiled or moved as the pocession passed. The Senator has a staff of eleven of these men. He uses the greater number of them as a guard between him and the ringing his door bell seeking the aid of relen'less beggars who are constantly this many times millionaire. Stanford's establishment is kept up in the English style. He, himselt, is very plain, and when about the Capitol is one of the most approachable men there. Once fortified in his house behind his array of English servants, he is one of the most unapproachable. If the Senator hopes to be the Pacific Coast candidate for the Presidency in 1888 he will find that compaign orators will make much of his staff of English servants. Mr. Stanford walks but very little. He has a very tall power lamook and Port Orford bays. erful figure and should need a good deal of exercise to keep from getting too stout. He generally drives to the Capitol in a close landaulet drawn by a pair of very large, powerful black horses, perfectly matched in color, form and action. The livery of his men on the box are also black. The carriage is dark in color. The entire outfit is in keeping with the mourning which the family is still wearing for young Stanford. The Senator is devoting a good deal of attention to his stables. There is to be a sale of horses brought on from his breeding farm within a few weeks. All the horses to be put or the market in this sale are trotters. He expects that they will bring an average of $1,000 each. If this sale is successful, he will bring on an additional and possibly better lot for the sec-

A Mormon's Story.

Correspondence Salt Lake Tribune. Thirty-three years ago I joined the Mormon church. Like many others I had paid hundreds of dollars in tithings and donations of various kinds, while the heads of the church grew fat and sleek on the earnings of us honest and deluded farmers. About six years ago I became thoroughly disgusted and convinced that the whole institution was rotten to the core and a base fraud upon the people.
