

THE ASHLAND TIDINGS

FRIDAY, MAY 21, 1886

GENERAL NEWS.

The cholera continues to spread in Italy.

Nevada pays her male school teachers an average salary of $140 per month, her females $96.

The World's Washington correspondence says: John A. King, an old friend of Sherman and Levi P. Morton for 1888.

President Cleveland has vetoed several pension bills, for private parties, and shows that many bills thus passed have no foundation in justice.

At the American institute held in New York, on the 17th, was held an interesting sale of Senator Stanford's California colts. Forty-seven head brought $46,855.

English journals comment on the recent anarchist riots in this country by saying we should be very careful not to let our mistakes in opening our door to the worst element of European life.

The house committee on postoffices has ordered a favorable report on a bill to extend the free-delivery system to all towns of 10,000 inhabitants where the revenues were $10,000 or more the preceding year.

The St. Paul Pioneer Press says: "Cabinet overwork, of which we hear much, and whose effects are wretched realities, is but another name for the prostration which follows an attempt to reiterate periodically the spoils of a government which has grown to the size of ours."

Cincinnati is under martial rule and regiments are camped ready for duty. The police have discovered that 600 socialists and anarchists are armed and have a manufactory of dynamite bombs, their measures have been taken. The bombs that proved so destructive in Chicago were made in Cincinnati.

The Sheffield Telegraph says that Gen. Wolsey considers Gladstone a traitor, and refuses to have social intercourse with him. The General will not even sit at the same table with Gladstone. The same paper also declares that Earl Russell's views on Irish affairs Lord Wolsey's views on Irish affairs.

General Butler has requested an opportunity to be heard in opposition to the confirmation of General Rowcans, and will charge him with having published a report to the house of representatives false, malicious statements affecting his (Butler's) honesty in connection with the management of funds of the soldiers' home.

Grand Master Workman Powerly, it seems, began his working life as a switch tender. Mr. Hoxie, manager of the Gould system of railroads in the south-west, was at one time hostler in a hotel near Des Moines. Afterward he became chairman of the republican state committee and United States marshal of Iowa. Mr. Gould himself earned his first money as a map peddler.

It is understood that Miss Cleveland, who has thus far performed the duties attendant upon her position so acceptably, is well pleased with the prospects of her marriage, and will be glad to be relieved from a mode of life which has not been thoroughly congenial to her. The old farm house at Holland Patent is being remodelled for her future residence, and new furniture has been purchased for the guest chamber.

Professor David Swing writes of "The Ideal Church" in the April number of the Forum. He concludes that "the ideal church will be one in which piety shall outrank doctrine; in which the word of Christ shall outrank all the words of the law-giver, prophet and apostle; in which the spirit of Christ shall be the overwhelming proof of the presence of a Christian; in which the infinite variety of thought, interpretation, belief and dress shall be forgotten in full toleration and full friendship which shall make a brotherhood out of sentiment, character and duty, rather than out of doctrines and definitions."

A new origin for the term "painting the town red" has been dug out by Tom Jones, of the Harrisburg Telegraph. He has discovered in the archives of the state that William Penn gave fifty gallons of red paint to the Indians for a certain tract of land. Thereupon he comments: "Just imagine that tribe of Indians filling themselves up with that fifty gallons of red and painting the town red!"

According to the report of the Denver mint, the output of mineral in Colorado, in 1885, was as follows: Gold, $5,000,000; silver, $13,500,000; copper, $1,700,000; lead, $3,301,000, making a total of $22,501,000. Oregon is as rich in minerals as Colorado, yet it only produced last year $600,000, in gold and silver. When the people of Oregon take more interest in the development of its great resources, this State will make as good a showing annually as its younger and more energetic sister. If properly developed, the product of the mines could be made to exceed the product of the fields, and the product of both would make a rich and prosperous State.—[News.]

A Peculiar Discovery.

The work of clearing away obstructions on the beach preparatory to extending the cribbing from the dock on down towards Ford's point, was inaugurated yesterday morning. In removing some of the large boulders torn from the bluff by the big blast put in by the engineers of the Oregon Pacific in the spring of 1882 to clear a way for the road-bed on which to lay the steel rails, scales or fragments were broken from them which were found to be the remains of a great, long, close examination the large rocks were found to be penetrated with holes and the holes crowded with oysters. The strange and curious fact in the matter is, these boulders, only four years ago, formed a part of the mainland, many feet above the highest tides, and were torn from the bosom of the high bluff by the use of giant powder, and hurled into the beach, where, twice every twenty-four hours, they were submerged by the tides. Now, the question to solve is, was the embryo oyster in the rock before thrown from its original home, or has it propagated since that time? The indications are that the oysters have taken their abode in the rocks during the four years they have been exposed to the semi-daily tides.—[Exchange.]

An Enormous Order.

According to a telegram from Post Townsend, says the Post-Intelligencer, the Post-Intelligencer will have received from Japan an order for ties to the amount of 120,000,000 feet. An adequate conception of this order can be formed when it is known that the mill has never cut more than 30,000,000 in one year. It would accordingly take four years of steady work to fill the Japanese order. Moreover, if ties can be procured here more cheaply than at any other place the same is true of large timbers, and further extensive orders may be expected. If the good news brought by this telegram is confirmed, better times may be expected on Puget sound.

STATE AND COAST.

Baker City is to have water works. Adams is to have a colt show on May 29th.

There are ten candidates for chief of police of Tacoma.

Washington territory has 16 national and 12 private banks.

All the sawmills on the Sound are running on three-fourths time.

Buildings to cost $100,000 in the aggregate are being constructed at Tacoma.

In Washington territory there are three persons that are a 100 years old, and they are females.

Work commenced on the Corvallis-Albany extension of the Oregon Pacific railroad last Monday at Corvallis.

The senate rejected the nomination of R. C. Pollard, of Indiana, to be a judge of the Montana supreme court.

While playing ball with her children Mrs. Hatley, of Columbia county, W. T., received injuries from the ball from which she died.

The managers of the Oregon Pacific railroad expect soon to send daily trains between Yaguna and Corvallis, also a daily stage line between the latter town and Albany.

A woman who publicly cures all sorts of diseases by the laying on of hands, in the sensation of the day at Los Angeles. Some remarkable cures are alleged to have been performed.

The President sent the following nominations to the Senate May 12: Frank W. Osburn to be postmaster at Eugene, Or.; James C. Crossen to be postmaster at the Dalles, Oregon; John Preist to be collector of customs at Yaguna, Oregon.

Rev. Haskell, a Walla Walla minister, jumped a land claim some time since and started a man to work plowing it up, but the man's horse congregated one night last week, felled the claim for the original claimant and placed the jumper's plow outside the fence.

On Wednesday night of last week the mill of T. Perry at North Yamhill was consumed by fire, together with four warehouses, cranes, etc. The loss is about $20,000, and but little was saved; insurance, $7,000. There were also several thousand bushels of wheat burned, which belonged to farmers.

An attempt will soon be made to take the steamer A. McCully over the falls of the Cascades. It is proposed to attach a hawser 360 fathoms in length to an island in the upper river, and then, by winding it around the steamer's capstan as it recedes, haul the steamer over the rapids. If this is successful the McCully will be the first steamer ever raised over the falls.

The Portland Board of Trade has found out that certain iron goods are sold cheaper in the Willamette than they can be had down in Portland, as freights are lower to Eugene and other towns up Yaguna, then to Portland, coming via Yaguna Bay to those places. Freight to San Francisco being lower from the East—goods reach the Willamette towns for less cost than they can be brought over the Northern line.

The Big Bend tunnel, on the Feather river, in Butte county, Cal., was completed recently. The tunnel is 12,400 feet long, and was begun two years ago, and has cost over a million of dollars. It will take the water from thirteen miles of the river, which runs around a mountain, and it is estimated that $100,000,000 worth of gold will be taken from the bed of the river. It is the largest and most expensive mining tunnel in the world. The Scientific American fully illustrates it.

In Shasta county Cal., the ordinary course of an estate left in the hands of an executor has been completely reversed. Fifteen years ago Larry Higgs died leaving several ranches, valued at $12,000, devised to his wife and four children. The widow acted as executrix, and so excellent was her management that in three years she has accumulated and educated her family, has drawn $50,000 in income from the property, and yet when the estate was probated last week it was valued at $24,000. A refreshing change this is from the style which we read of so frequently, in which the widow and children are left, after years of litigation, with insufficient means of support, while a great estate is wasted in fees of court and counsel.—[Chronicle.]

The Linekirk Club.

Colonel Erasmus White of the committee on military affairs reported that his committee had carefully investigated the subject of our coast defenses, as required by a late resolution, and had reached the following conclusions: 1. In case of war the enemy's fleet could easily bombard any city on the coast. We would, therefore, suggest that all these cities be moved back four miles.

2. The enemy would have no trouble in landing troops on any of our shores. The only trouble would be getting any of our live alives again. The only suggestion we have to offer is that Ben Butler be made to be on hand early in the morning.

3. If a new Paradise had been erected it should be at least twelve miles from any spot accessible to the gunboats.

4. We don't want war, but if one happens to fall out of a tree and hit us we don't run away.

5. It is better to apologize than to get licked. This advice is for such nations as may feel like knocking the chip off our shoulder.

The report was accepted and adopted, and all unfinished business being placed on a shelf to be taken up at the meeting adjourned.—[Detroit Free Press.]

Fruit Crop. A. F. Miller of the firm of Miller Bros., is a gentleman who is well informed in horticultural matters. Thursday he told a Portland News reporter that the pear, cherry, and prune crop will be very short this year. Mr. Miller said: "I have just made a short trip into Clackamas county and a portion of Marion, and I find that pears are falling off the trees. Pines will be very short. In the vicinity of houses the cherries were protected from frost and a two-thirds crop is assured. Fifty feet distant the trees bear no cherries. There will be a good crop of apples and peaches, I cannot tell anything about strawberries, further than that they are a month behind. All kinds of vegetables are late, and the ground is too cold to sustain life. Garden seeds are rotting in many places, will have to be replanted."

Grant's Last Written Word. In the first volume of Gen. Grant's Memoirs page 514 is taken up by a map entitled: "The Battle of Champion Hill."

Towards the close of his long sickness, while he was giving all time possible to the work of revising the manuscript for his book—and it was only a few moments daily that his strength would permit this—the sketch of this map was handed to the general. Holding it in his feeble hands he studied it long and carefully. Then beckoning for a pencil, one was brought to him by his son, and with it far up in the right hand corner of the map, he wrote the word "Sherman." This indicated the position occupied by Gen. Sherman's command when the battle was fought, and was the last word written by Gen. Grant in his book. His physical strength gave out then, and he could work no more.

An Enormous Order. According to a telegram from Post Townsend, says the Post-Intelligencer, the Post-Intelligencer will have received from Japan an order for ties to the amount of 120,000,000 feet. An adequate conception of this order can be formed when it is known that the mill has never cut more than 30,000,000 in one year.
