The annual report of the state fish commissioners, just filed with Governor Pennoyer, sets forth that the law governing saimon fishing is generally obeyed; that the establishment of more hatcheries would increase the number of salmon and decrease the difficulty between fishermen and canners about the price. It recommends the remedying of the law so as to prohibit salmon from being handled in the close season, to prohibit the practice of taking fish near the spawning grounds; advises the offering of a bounty for sea lions, and other salmon destroyers, and the extension of the season to April 15. A fine old man is Mrs. Harrison's father. He occupies a common clerkship in the pension bureau in Washington, and sits there at his desk in-dustriously opening and answering letters every day, in spite of his 88 years.
