Indian Lands.

The Umatilla Indian reservation and the Yakima reservation occupy the best territory near Pendleton, in Umatilla county, and near North Yakima in Eastern Oregon and Washington. These reservations contain much more land than the Indians who occupy them can use or cultivate, and how to manage so as to give the Indians land in severalty and allow them mountain lands for pasture and then dispose of the rest for the use of white settlers is a question. At Umatilla 1ndian reservation and the Yakima reservation cocupy the best territory near Pendleton, in Umatilla 2nd the Yakima reservation and the Yakima reservation and the Yakima reservation and the Yakima reservation and the Yakima Ayers, Barbour & Elviage.

They told him that high water had come very unseasonably since they last saw him, and he was undoubtedly the cause of it, and though he invited attention to the fact though he invited attention to the fact that it had been raining incessantly, nothing could alter their conviction that he had added several feet to the average level of the river.

One peculiar development of Mrs.

Harrison's independence of character is a dislike to be copied after or made average level of the river.
