Vast Business by Rail.

The United States Commissioner of Labor has just compiled a report of nulroad labor in the United States, from which it is learned that there are 1718 railroad corporations the United States, operating 156,360 miles of road, and employing 689,912 persons

During the year 1889 there traveled over the railroads of the United States, 401,637,433 passengers. The average distance traveled by each passenger was 25.98 miles. By multiplying the numbers of persons by the average miles traveled it will be found that the total number of miles if extended in a single stretch would reach 10,436,080,360. This would coil around the world 418,441 times. In harling these hundreds of millions of people such an enormous distance, 315 persons were killed by accadents, and 2138 were crippled. For every 33,130,474 miles traveled or many the content of the stolen money.
