The clerk solved this. At a certain

bour the clerk took a large portion of meat from the cook's box and left it at a point at which the bear was frequently seen. Ragan followed with his camera. In due time the bear came down from his retreat. The clerk was a safe diviance away when the hear appeared but Ragan stood his ground. The the stood its ground until the odor of the meat was wafted his way. The bear made for the luncheon, picked it up greedily, and then, as if grateful for the feast, it reared on its unches and remained in that attitude for a minute, a sufficient time for a "sitting." At the next presidential election six new states will be represented in the electorial college, casting a total vote of 19. The situation is figured out in Washington political circles to be like this: In 1888 the electoral vote was 101, of which 233 were cast for Harrion and 168 for Cleveland. The sure republican vote was was 182, and Harrison carried the two doubtful states of New York and Indiana, with a combined vote of 51. At the next election it is safe to say that five of the six new states will be republican, and one, Montana, may be classed doubtful. The "sure republican vote" will thus be increased by 198. But the total electoral vote will probably be 420, making 211 necessary to a choice, so that the republicans will be 13 short of victory. If they carry Indiana, they will have 4 majority in the elecall the states they carried in 1888 and New York and Montana, they will still lack 4 votes of victory. The conclusion is plain, therefore, that New York and Indiana will be pivotal states in 1892, as they were in 1888, with this difference, however, that the republicans must carry one or the other in order to win, while the democrats must carry both.

To Pauncefote: The president is surprised at the attitude of Lord Salisbury who, no longer ago than summer before last, came to an agreement with Minister Phelps that the fisher-men of each nation should fish or cut bait in their own waters. The president insists that British sealers have no business in Behring sea, and would request that her majesty's government should direct its subjects to make themselves scarce in its vicinity during the pending of further negotia-

To Blaine: Lord Salisbury regrets that he cannot comply with the ex-traordinary request of the president, and also desires to inform him that he wouldn't if he could. To Blaine: It pains me to notify struct the president to go to the devil. Kitty Lewis. Assuming that it is your desire as well as mine to avert if possible the calamity of war between those two great nations, may I suggest that a conference between the president, yourself and myself might result in a solution of the difficulty which would be at once honorable and satisfactory to both nations. If I may be allowed to go so far, I would respectfully recommend a private room at the Shoreham: and as there is a possibility that the conference may last rather late into the night, I trust you will pardon me if I take the precau-tion to bring a pack of cards. Might I also suggest that the presence of a fourth gentleman would undoubtedly add much to the interest of the occassion. May I also be so bold as to request that you lower your voices a trifle, as I fear the house is now in immediate danger of being pulled.

To Blaine: Agreeably to the terms of our conference, I wired Lord Salisbury that the president offered to recall his reflections upon his lordship's ability as fisherman if his lordship would withdraw his characterization of the president as a sucker. His lordship in reply expresses his willingness to withdraw the obnoxious expression, provided the president withdraw all United States cruisers from the Behring sea and guarantee immunity to British sealers in the future. Some years since the largest irrigation scheme in the west was put on foot in Southern Idaho. The idea was to take water from the Snake river and its tributaries and distribute it as wanted on the plains of Alturas and Owyhee counties and elsewhere as the wants and necessities required. Advice to Mothers. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect suc-cess. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub wakes "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, sooths the child, softens the gums, allays pain, re-lieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for disorbe friend's perhaps for the last time.

"'I would, indeed," said Robertson.

"'Then you take it,' said Ward.
