WRITING A FAMOUS FOEM.

The poem of "Curfew Must Not Bing To-night" was suggested to me by the reading of a story called "Love and Loyalty," in April, 1867. I was me, I wrote the poem roughly on my slate. I was forced to carry on my literary work under these difficulties because of the opinion of my parents that my time could be better employed than in idle dreams and useless rhymes." I wrote the first copy on my slate between four and six o'clock in the afternoon; but much time since has been spent in correcting and revertiser in the fall of 1870. The editor upon receipt of my manuscript, at once wrote me a lengthy letter of congratulation and praise, in which he predicted the popularity for the verses which they have since enjoyed. I had no literary friends, not even a literary acquaintance at that time, and did not know the simplest requirements for preparing my manuscript for publication. The poem seemed at once to attract public attention. It raised me from a shy, obscure country girl into public notice, and brings to my side yearly bosts of new and de-lightful friends. Wherever I go, my friends are there before me, and the poem-which I gave to the public with "right reserved"-while it has made a fortune for others and dropped France, still the crop is harvest d and pure, honest medicine; not a cheap golden coins in other pockets, has reserved for its author a wide circle of admiring friends.
