The World's Mineral Production. Economic and industrial statistics are always fascinating reading for thoughtful people. Such will be glad to receive the latest published volume of The World's Mineral Industry, edited by Mr. R. P. Rothwell of The Engineering and Mining Journal. The present volume brings the subject up to the close of 1894.

There are over 100 minerals known to commerce, without counting the separate varieties of many of the general divisions. Mr. Rothwell's book deals not only with mining methods, but also with the range of prices and dividends paid from year to year. We find that 1894 will go down in history as the year of low prices in the whole industrial world. For this reason, while the production of some minerals decreased very little, if at all, their money value decreased very considerably. In copper, for instance, there was in production an actual increase of 26,250,000 pounds, but the price was so low that the copper industry fell off in value $1,639, 508. During 1894 the production of pig iron fell off about 400,000 tons, but this was in the early part of the year. At the close of 1894 the furnaces were running full time, and this year the promise is that the high water mark of pig iron production, 9,000,000 tons, will even be exceeded.

The United States decreased the mining of silver last year by 18 per cent, but the decline in value of the product was 33.6 per cent. In spite of this the United States still remains the greatest silver country of the world. Last year we mined about 50,000,000 ounces of

The gold outlook is, on the whole, encouraging. The actual increase of production in this country was last year not quite $4,000,000 over 1893. There was a gain of $6,749,727 over 1892. We find one point of especial interest in the fact that the mining of gold has been reduced to bottom cost-lower than ever before. Gold ores can now be reduced for $3 per ton, with miners' wages at $2.50 to $3.50 a day. Another cheering fact is stated by Mr. Rothwell | nar theory. If we, the people, are such as follows: "The time is evidently ripe for applying improved processes to the treatment of low grade gold ores, of which we have great quantities at many different points in the Rocky mountain region and on the Pacific coast as well as in the southern states."

Will Not Enlist In the Navy. The number of our cruisers appears to be increasing faster than the willingness of American boys to become seamen aboard of them. In fact, our new navy threatens to be manned almost entirely by Scandinavians, except as to its officers. The ordinary seamen are well treated. When a man first enlists, he receives $19 a month, with food, clothes and lodging. Experienced seamen get $24 a month and have three months at home on land out of a three gears' cruise.

Still the native American boys will not enlist aboard our beautiful new warships. The reason is a credit to their heads and hearts. They will not accept places in which there is no chance to rise. A common seaman in our navy, although he have the brains of a Farragut, will never be promoted to any rank higher than that of boatswain or gunner. The officers' places are reserved for the spruce young graduates of Annapolis Naval academy. As a sailor said of American jealousy would have blazed these: "Before they can tie a rope yard properly they give orders to old seamen. In any sort of a blow these kids become so rattled that they don't know what they are about."

Plainly congress next winter needs to pass a law making any place, even that of admiral, open before the enlisted seaman who studies navigation and fits himself to take command. He ought to be in regular line of promotion to the very highest rank.

It is to the interest of the United States to cultivate the friendliest relations with Japan. If there were no other reasons than the low down one of pocket considerations, that of itself would be sufficient. Japan is one of the best markets for our export trade. Japan is going to have some of the ships of her new navy made here. She calls constantly for American teachers, mechanics, engineers, electricians, military men and scientists to enter her service, paying them the highest price therefor. Japan has now the friendliest feeling toward us. In the very unlikely case of any dispute between us and any of the powers of Europe Japan would be sure to be on our side, and it must not be forgotten that Japan is to be a great power in the future. The little brown men have the pluck and intellectual force of giants. The man, therefore, who endeavors to stir up a feeling against Japanese immigration into this country is an idiot.

The Russian government had better luck than our government did in the test of American made armor plate. All that the Bethlehem company sent to Russia was of such excellent quality that the czar's experts accepted the full amount ordered Perhaps the makers were honester toward the Russian government than they were toward their own country.

On "peach day" at Grand Junction. Colo., not only did the Hon. W. J. Bryan make an address, but the crowd ate 15 tons of fruit. Good gracious!

Senator Peffer thinks that when a man is compelled to pay twice as much interest for the money he is compelled to borrow as he is able to save from his earnings he is not getting ahead much. But half the people are not compelled to borrow when they think they are. They could get along without it.

GLASSMAKING.

Thebes' Artisans Were Proficient In the Industry Forty Centuries Ago.

The glass blowers of ancient Thebes are trying various remedies and physi- known to have been as proficient in that particular art as is the most scientific craftsman of the same trade of the present day, after a lapse of 40 centuries of so called "progress." They were well acquainted with the art of staining glass and are known to have produced that commodity in great profusion and perfection. Rosselini gives an illustration of a piece of stained glass known to be 4,000 years old, which displayed artistic taste of high order, both in tint and design. In this case the color is struck through the vitrifled structure, and he mentions designs struck entirely in pieces from a half inch to three-quarters of an inch thick, the color being perfectly incorporated with the structure of the piece, and exactly the same on ooth the obverse and reverse sides.

The priests of Ptah at Memphis were depts in the glassmaker's art, and not only did they have factories for manufacturing the common crystal variety, but they had learned the vitrifying of the different colors and the imitation of precious stones to perfection. Their imitations of the amethyst and of the various other colored gems were so true to nature that even now, after they have lain in the desert sands from 2,000 to 4,000 years, it takes an expert to distinguish the genuine articles from the spurious.

It has been shown that, besides being experts in glassmaking and glass coloring, they used the diamond in cutting and engraving glass. In the British museum there is a beautiful piece of stained glass, with an engraved emblazonment of the monarch Thothmes III, who lived 3,400 years ago. - Jewelers' Circular.
