WITNESS' VISIT FLEETING.

'Big Jim' Gallagher, Seen About Oakland, Again Disappears.
San Francisco.—James L. Gallagher, known as "Big Jim," an important witness in the San Francisco graft prosecution, who disappeared about two years ago, was in Oakland Saturday and Sunday. He left Sunday night and his present whereabouts is not known.
District Attorney Charles M. Flickert gave the disappearance of Gallagher two years ago as the cause of his inability to proceed with the graft cases. It was learned about a year ago that Gallagher was living in Canada and he was reported to have said he never would return to San Francisco.
Gallagher left Oakland soon after the dynamiting of the Schlenk residence when he and Mrs. Gallagher were present, and the destruction of some flats which he was building.

GRANTS PASS WINS.

Ashland Ball Tossers Meet Defeat By 7 to 6 Score.
The Ashland schoolboys again proved themselves able to hold their own with the valley teams by playing the veteran Grants Pass aggregation to a standstill last Sunday, only losing by a couple of fluke decisions. The final result was 7 to 6 in favor of the team which defeated the Portland Northwesterners.

The game was replete with healthy swatting and clean fielding on both sides. Ashland's infield hit its pace for the first time this season, only one error being chalked up against the inner gardeners. Sayles had Kid Mohler of Frisco backed off the map in a comeback role, successfully accepting seven chances and annexing four singles and a tripple out of five times at bat.

Phillips was freer than usual with his safe hits, allowing eleven in all, but kept them well scattered.

Grants Pass started the fireworks in the first canto by landing on Phillips for three hits, which, together with a costly error and a stolen base, netted the vets three runs. No more serious damage was done by them until the sixth frame, when two singles, a double, a tripple and a sacrifice counted three more scores. In the eighth another was counted when Schmidt singled. The flying Dutchman then set sail for the midway cooling station, but Master Plymate had the pill waiting for him when the old boat was still two fathoms from port. What was the surprise, horror and incredulous amazement written on the faces of the Ashland crew when Deputy Sheriff Empire Caburn announced Schmidt's safe arrival to the dock! Even the rabid Grants Pass fans were disgusted. Somebody shouted, "If you're going to cheat, cheat fair." However, the deputy's badge of office made his decision law and Schmidt was scored a minute later by Hopkins' tripple.

Ashland's first score came in the fifth inning, when Fordney singled, went to third on an error and was scored by Eastman's sacrifice. In the next frame Sayles reached first on a safety, stole second, advanced to third by an error, from whence he tallied when Phillips drove a safe one through third. In the lucky seventh, with one down Moody was presented free transportation, Skeen drove one to the second sacker which said would be big leaguer was glad to do so. Sayles rode a liner over the shortstop so fast that it was invisible to the man in the left garden. The pill was located by a rustling in the leaves, but, alas! the fleet-footed Sayles had completed the circuit and was peacefully at rest under the canopy. But now in a very rude manner the Grants Pass tossers notified us that the runner had followed the example set by one Merkle in New York and had failed to tinkle the second bag with his yam. Both umpires said they did not see the play, but after various modes of persuasion had been used by the Grants Pass silver tongues on the deputy sheriff he softly muttered that some time in history an Ashland player failed to touch second base; he would not tell who it was nor where. At this juncture of the proceedings a gentleman who slightly resembled Abraham Lincoln climbed over the ropes and made his way toward the center of the hubbub, announcing his intention of quelling the disturbance. When approached as to his authority he manfully threw out his chest, displaying a large star which bore the legend, "DOG CATCHER NO. 15." His intervention was appraised to a superior and he was led from the field by a husky policeman. The Ashlanders again came near tying the score in the ninth when Skeen singled, was advanced on an error and scored on Klum's one-base single. Klum was scored when Sayles lit on the ball for his fifth safe hit. The ump's decided that Sayles had made a three bagger, but the G. P. bunch didn't agree, and during the ensuing argument Sayles endeavored to steal home and was only prevented from tying the score by the heady work of Pitcher Hopkins. Thorn was hit by a pitched ball but was caught off first on a rather questionable play. Score: Grants Pass 7, Ashland 6.

HAS NARROW ESCAPE.

Train Collides With Motorcycle at Street Crossing in Medford.
The engineer of southbound Southern Pacific passenger train No. 13, Sunday afternoon, looked out of his cab window at the Jackson street crossing in Medford and saw a man on a motorcycle speed to safety. He told the fireman busy at his valves that he had nearly hit a man. It was Charles Verbie. His partner, John Adkins, was struck by the train, who saved his life by hanging onto the brace rod of the cowcatcher. The crowd on the depot platform thought he was beating his way, and an officious brakeman ordered him off, before finding out that he was injured. Adkins himself informed the crowd of his predicament. Then the engineer received the first intimation of an accident.

Adkins and Verbie were riding west on Jackson street, Verbie in the rear. The track at this point is "blind," and Adkins says he did not know the train was so close until it was too late. Verbie, looking backwards, saw the wrecked cycle and started for aid. When he reached the depot he found his companion.

A physician was called and attended to the injured man. His right leg and knee were broken and bruised severely.

A Splendid Reunion.

The United Confederate Veterans have accepted the invitation of the Grand Army of the Republic to join in a reunion at Gettysburg next year, on the fiftieth anniversary of the battle. What a meeting that will be—the getting together of those who fought on opposite sides in the greatest battle of the Civil War! The hurrying years will not allow many more reunions of the blue and the gray.

Lecture at I. O. O. F. Hall.

The Truthseekers' class has secured Mr. Waterman for Sunday night, when he will deliver his splendid illustrated lecture, "God Created the World in Six Days." The public is invited. 7:45 sharp.
