HOUSE PASSES WOOL BILL.

President's Veto Ignored in Decisive Vote Tuesday.
Washington, D. C.—By grace of a ruling made by Speaker Clark, the house Tuesday passed the wool tariff revision bill over President Taft's veto by a vote of 174 to 80. Nineteen republican insurgents voted with the democrats.
On the vote as at first announced by the speaker the democratic-insurgent alliance apparently had failed to pass the bill by two votes. Ten members who had paired with absentees voted as present.
Clark ruled that it took only two-thirds of the members voting "aye" or "no" to pass the bill and ruled that two-thirds had so voted "aye" and that the bill was passed.
A violent dispute followed, the republicans bitterly attacking Clark. On this Underwood made a point of order, thus finally enabling the speaker to declare the bill passed.
Before the vote was taken, Congressman Cannon of Illinois, Hill of Connecticut, Greene of Iowa and Utter of Rhode Island defended President Taft's veto of the wool bill.
Utter accused the democrats of playing politics in foisting responsibility for the wool bill on the president.
Fitzgerald of New York took a hand in the debate and called the wool report of the tariff board mere guesswork. Hefflin of Alabama also spoke, denouncing President Taft and the republican party generally.

Equal Suffrage Banquet.

Everything was "just right" for the banquet scheduled for Wednesday noon. Old Sol had a good-natured grin on his face. It was reflected on the countenance of all who wended their way to the park club house. The ladies of that useful organization had decked the tables with bonny yellow blooms. Even some wore the colors themselves, and we are sure they never prepared a better dinner than that which they served to the Equal Suffrage Club and its guests, which approximated 150 and might have been doubled had there been time to hunt for more chicken. Brother Gillis informed us he had some "anti chickens" penned up at his place that were "mighty fine," but of course we never patronize that breed of fowls.
Mr. and Mrs. Robert Conklin were the guests of honor.
Shortly after the first tables were filled Dr. Mattie B. Shaw, our charming little president, introduced the exercises, with an invocation by Rev. Stephen A. Douglas.
Mayor Neil gave a brief speech of welcome to one and all, including our various visitors, particularly to Mrs. Conklin, president of the Southern Oregon Equal Suffrage Association. He incidentally said that he had always been a believer in the movement and prophesied that suffrage would win at the coming election by a majority of 7,666 votes.
Mrs. Conklin responded in a dignified manner. It is no wonder that her own town appreciates her and has put on a banquet for next week to which they have invited the official members of the Ashland Equal Suffrage Club.
Mr. B. J. Greer was next called upon to speak. He said that since woman has been forced out, by circumstances, to supply herself with the necessities of life, she has a right that must be recognized by every fair minded citizen, to regulate laws that pertain to her welfare in the labor markets. While he did not prophesy a great reform fifteen minutes after she began to vote, he did believe that a great energy for the uplifting of mankind would be set in motion that would redound to the welfare of our nation.
Mr. Robert Conklin confessed to the fact of having been converted to the woman's suffrage cause but two years, but so effectively that there was no "backsliding" for him.
Mrs. Lambkin, one of our vice-presidents, responded gracefully at the call and made her initial speech for the movement.
Mr. Burns added to the amusement by citing a case where women sat on the jury, where a woman was accused of throwing a stone with malice aforethought and breaking a window. The jury went straight to the heart of the matter and decided that was impossible, as a woman never hit anything at which she aimed. He was almost eloquent when he referred to the fact that the balance of voting power was tipping slowly but surely toward the enfranchisement of women.
Mr. Gillette confessed he had always voted for women to have the ballot, and always should.
Mr. Briggs, president of the Commercial Club, was too modest to voice his sentiments, but introduced in his stead Dr. Edwards of California, who made a splendid impression as he voiced what his state had accomplished since women vote, and said the proudest day of his life was when he escorted his wife and daughters to the polls and they cast their votes for civic righteousness.
Dr. Shaw's remarks are too humorous for this scribe to produce—but he struck the high keynote in his last remarks for that great moral reform which they would bring to pass.
Mr. Campbell gave a most delightful reading, delicately dedicated to the anti's, which provoked enthusiastic applause.
Mr. Lemery strongly urged that women be given the ballot because of their upholding of all those principles that make for civic righteousness.
Mrs. Shaw then closed this happy affair with an announcement of a business meeting in the park. Thus closed an event not soon to be forgotten by those participating.
MRS. M. M. EDMUNDS,
Press Cor. Equl Suffrage Club.

EARTHQUAKE DISASTROUS.

3,000 Killed and 50,000 Homeless in Turkey.
Berlin.—Three thousand persons are known to have been killed in an earthquake which rocked southeastern Turkey, according to a message just received here by the Tageblatt, from its correspondent at Constantinople.
More than 50,000 persons are homeless and starving. An active crater is also reported to have appeared on the Atlantis side of the Sea of Marmora.
Later dispatches received here indicate that conditions are much worse in the disturbed region of Turkey than the earlier advices stated. Supplementary messages received say that many persons caught under the tottering walls are still alive but slowly starving to death.
The Turkish government is said to be doing its utmost for the relief of the sufferers, but officials admit their inability to cope with the situation.
Unless outside aid is extended at once, it is feared thousands will perish from exposure and lack of food.

MINISTER IS SHOT.

Rev. J. K. Howard of Glendale Hit By Companion's Bullet.
Glendale, Ore.—Rev. John K. Howard, pastor of the Presbyterian church of this city, was accidentally shot by his companion, Frank W. Redfield, also of this city, while hunting in the mountains near Anchor, about 30 miles from Glendale, early Tuesday morning. It seems the accident happened 20 miles from the nearest telephone, and as several hours elapsed before medical aid could be summoned, it was feared the injured man would not live until the arrival of physicians. Advice from the scene of the accident, however, states that Rev. Howard is not dangerously wounded.

FIVE EXECUTIONERS WANTED.

Nevada Prison Warden After Men to Shoot Convicted Slayer.
Reno, Nev.—If there are five men willing to undertake the grewsome task of shooting to death a man who is to suffer the death penalty in Nevada state prison, Warden George W. Cowing is anxious to obtain their services.
He has made efforts to find the five, but has met with no success, and the date for the execution has been set for August 29.
The man to be executed is Andriji Mirkovich of Tonopah, who took advantage of the choice of death, having asked to be shot.

Americans Fight.

El Paso, Texas.—Trapped by United States soldiers while trying to smuggle ammunition across the international boundary from Columbus, N. M., a band of rebels gave battle, and as a result an American soldier was shot through the body and the hand of a Mexican torn from his arm. The above report received by Colonel E. Z. Steever also stated that the troops captured about 50,000 rounds of ammunition, the Mexicans retreating in disorder.

Special Services.

Rev. L. S. Bauman will conduct special Bible services at the Brethren church, corner Fifth and Main streets, every evening this week. Everyone cordially invited to attend.

GAY OLD FASHIONS.

Dandies of Past Centuries Would Make Solomon Look Sad.
Compared with the gay apparel worn by the dandies of the past ages the youths of our time in the gayest of gay raiment make but a poor show.
The bishop of Ely in the fourteenth century had a change of raiment for every day in the year. The Earl of Northumberland boasted no less than sixty cloth of gold suits at this time.
In the time of Chaucer the men wore clothes as many colored as Joseph's coat, so that while one leg would be a blaze of crimson, the other would be tricked out in green, blue or yellow without any regard for harmony or contrast.
Even as late as the middle of the eighteenth century, a dandy would dress himself in a vivid green coat, a waistcoat of scarlet, yellow breeches and blue stockings.
And the gentleman of a few years later wore, among other vagaries, a coat of light green, with sleeves too small for the arms and buttons too big for the sleeves; a pair of fine Manchester breeches; clocked silk stockings; a club of hair behind larger than the head which carried it; a hat not larger than a sixpence.
It was a common thing in the early part of the eighteenth century for a man of fashion to spend several hours daily in the hands of his valet. Among the many operations which took up this time was "the starching of the beard and the proper perfuming of the garments, the painting of the face and anointing with oils, tinctures, essences and pomatums.—London Standard.

TRAMPS OF THE SEA.

Their Work in Developing the Ocean Carrying Trade.
There are land tramps and sea tramps, but whereas the former lives by the labor of others, the world's business "would be in great straits were the latter to be swept from the face of the ocean. While there have practically always been tramp ships since men have sailed the sea, it remained for the Yankee skippers to develop this phase of ocean carrying to its highest degree. Tramping on the ocean is only another name for trading, and many are the stories extant of Yankee skippers swapping beads, mirrors, calico, knives and other trifles for ivory in Africa, and for commodities equally as valuable in other lands.
The tramp steamship came into existence during the war between the states, and it is to this type of vessel that England primarily owes her supremacy on the sea, she having encouraged the building of tramps more than any other nation. In times of peace they add to her prosperity, and where they enjoy a subsidy, as they do in some instances, they are used as transports and other auxiliaries in times of war.
Next to England comes Norway as a nation which encourages sea tramps, and as her maritime laws are more elastic than those of Great Britain, many British tramps are sold to Norwegian owners, who make them pay after they have outlived their usefulness under the British flag.—Marine Journal.

Rook and Crook.

The rook appears to have become the bird whose name stands for swindlers in a distinctly unfair way. At first "rook" meant a dupe, then the verb "to rook" came to mean to cheat, and out of this was evolved "rook," a cheater—a complete topsy turvy process. It is curious that the same thing has not happened to "gull." Here also the verb came from the substantive meaning a dupe, and as the gull strikes one as rather a knowing bird one might have expected the same evolution as in the case of the rook. It should be observed, however, that "gull," a dupe, did not refer specially to the sea gull, the word having formerly meant a young bird of any kind. In Elizabethan English it signified a callow youngster who wished to be thought smart.—London Chronicle.

The Salamander.

In Andrews' "Anecdotes Ancient and Modern" (1789) one reads, "Should a glass house fire be kept up without extinction for a longer term than seven years there is no doubt but that a salamander would be generated in the cinders." This probably accounts for the popular idea that a salamander lives in the fire, a fallacy so far removed from the truth that the curious lizardlike beast so called cannot endure even the heat of the sun, but skulks away under stones to avoid it. It will never lose its reputation for fire eating, though, which lingers still in the heating utensil that is named after it.

Card Marks.

It is conjectured by some writers on the subject that the marks upon the cards designating the four kinds in a pack were originally symbolical and intended to signify the different classes of society. According to this supposition, the hearts represented the clergy, spades the nobility, some old packs of cards bearing a sword or lance head instead of a spade; clubs the serfs and diamonds the burghers or citizen classes.

Sunny People.

The world delights in sunny people. The old are hungering for love more than for bread. The air of joy is very cheap, and if you can help the poor on with a garment of praise it will be better for them than blankets.—Henry Drummond.

A man of integrity will never listen to any plea against conscience.—Tome.
