SOLDIERS MADE HAPPY.

Only One Pair of Shoes Instead of Three to Be Shined in Future.

Vancouver Barracks, Wash.—Instead of having three pairs of shoes to keep shining and in order, the United States soldier in the future will have but one pair. As it now is, an infantryman has a pair of marching shoes, a pair of garrison shoes and a pair of dress shoes, the former being tan and the dress shoes black, which are worn with the blue dress uniform.

The new shoe is to be tan, perhaps a little lighter than the present marching shoe, and it will be worn on all occasions. This change will make the soldier's kit lighter and will be welcomed by the men. Of course each soldier will be supplied with two good pairs of shoes at all times. It will require about a year to use the shoes already on hand, so the change will not be made until that time.

Announcement

Having failed to make a sale of my stock as I expected to do by this time, and having parties in view with whom I hope to make a deal later, I find it necessary to continue the business a few months longer or through the fall season. With this end in view I have selected from the New York market a beautiful assortment of the latest styles in ladies and children's fall and winter garments, including a complete line of new Fall Coats, Suits, Dresses, Skirts, Waists, Hosiery, Underwear, Gloves, etc.

As these goods represent the best values from the best makers to be obtained for cash and we are not in position to carry anything over, we are going to start right out with values and prices to beat any competition.

The first shipments of the new goods are due this week. Watch this store for the latest at bottom prices.
