INTERVENTION IS ASKED

Missionary to Mexico Wishes Yankee Bayonets to Be Invoked to Settle Mexican Conditions.

St. Louis, May 18.—"Armed intervention by the United States is the only thing, in my judgment, that will restore peace in Mexico," said Missionary R. P. Mahon of Morelia, state of Micoacan, Mexico, in an address before the Southern Baptist Convention today.

"I have been unable to return to my work in Mexico for the last two months because of revolutions. The country is in absolute chaos and without the hope of getting together if led by any of its own people.

"A governor of a prominent state told me he hoped we missionaries would establish a school in every village and town in his dominion, as he believed the missionary schools will redeem Mexico. The Bible is not known to the common people of Mexico, and many of the priests do not allow the people to read the Bible.

"This governor told me that he believed only a system of education like that of the United States would redeem Mexico. He urged us missionaries to begin such a system, and promised to protect us with troops if necessary. Vice, ignorance, gambling and extreme poverty hold the majority of the people in Mexico down.

"In the light of these facts, the only hope I can see for Mexico is armed intervention by this country. More than 50 per cent of Mexico's population has never learned to read or write any language. More than 75 per cent of Mexican men with families are unfaithful to their wives. The missionary work in Mexico cannot be pushed ahead now, and many Mexicans of education would not object to our intervention."

J. W. Low's and A. Y. Napier, missionaries from China, said the new Chinese government welcomes the missionary schools and depended upon the missionaries for much of their knowledge concerning Occidental things.

"In China, at this time, we have the greatest opportunity as missionaries known to the history of the Christian religion," said Rev. Mr. Lowe, "and if we neglect it we will have set backward the cause of Christ a thousand years."

Both missionaries said that with united missionary work among all churches in China the 400,000,000 of Chinese could be made Christians.

E. W. Stephens of Jefferson City, Mo., reporting on foreign field work of missionaries, said that during the year there had been 4,532 baptisms, which was 1,000 more than the total number of baptisms of all the Baptist churches in the mission field during the first 50 years of foreign work.

LURE RUINS CITY MEN

City Men Liable to Failure When Turning to Country, Says Eastern College Professor.

Is the "city feller" necessarily a fool at agriculture, where the rube makes an easy living?

Can a man from the city buy a farm and make it pay?

These questions enter the mind of almost every city man now and then when the farm-owning bee enters the ventilator of his derby.

"Yes, he can make it pay, providing—" answers Prof. O. S. Morgan, who is a specialist on the subject. He is the second man at Columbia University to occupy the chair of agriculture; the first held that distinction in 1894.

"Yes," says Professor Morgan, reported by the New York Evening Sun, "there is a place for the city man on the farm, providing he comes prepared to cope with the questions that will arise there.

"Four out of five city men who go into farming with intentions of making that their future work prepare for it by one or two months of casual reading of farmers' bulletins and like literature, and think they are farm wise. These men are elected to flunk.

"The trouble with city men is that they think that in a few months, or a year's study at the most, they can go out on a farm and teach farming to men who have been at it all their lives.

"It will be generally conceded that city men ought to stay in the city and make good city men and farmers ought to stay on the farm and make good farmers. But when the city man does go on the farm he ought at least to prepare for the work which the farmer has been studying all his life. When countrymen come to the city they always start at the bottom. There are thousands of successful business men in New York who came here from the farm and no one would ever know it, for they all started from the bottom and went to the top. When city men go to the farm they begin at the top and go down to the bottom.

"Most city men going to the farm commit their first piece of folly when they buy their farm land from the agent. Too many agents make it their business to convince people that a piece of land really worth $2,000 is a great bargain at $6,000.

"Many of the deluded chaps who are looking for bargain land near New York have palmed off on them scabby New York state land. They somehow cannot realize that shrewd, long-headed farmers have years ago gone all over New York state with a fine tooth comb and appropriated all the good land. One should not expect to find good land for sale in the hands of a real estate agent. There are no more free or bargain lands. Good New York land now commands an average price of from $150 to $200 an acre. Few New Yorkers seem to know that.

"And then the city man, even if he gets—and pays for—land worth having falls to make himself thoroughly familiar with the whole business for two years or so both from a practical and scientific standpoint. When contemplating buying a farm he should visit the place at least a dozen times at different periods of the year to see just what the land can do. He should consider the crops that the land is adapted to and the accessibility of the land to railroad stations and markets. Does he usually do all that?

"Nevertheless city men of the right kind are in place on the farm and actually needed there. Good business men intent on making the farm their future business and willing to exchange their business abilities for some farmer's practical experience will lend new color and significance to farm life. The farmer lacks the habit of bookkeeping and of accurately computing profits and losses. The business of the average farmer continually has leaks of some sort somewhere, though his figuring always shows him a profit. Accurate accounting figures in his own labor and that of his wife and children, his annual tax and the annual depreciation in value. That is where the city man's business precision would help."

FIRE TO BURN FOREVER

Dedication of Memorial Fireplace at O. A. C. Girls' Dormitory is Impressive.

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, May 16.—The dedication of the memorial fireplace in Waldo Hall, the girls' dormitory of the Oregon Agricultural College, by visiting Portland business men last night was the most impressive ceremony ever held in the hall. Fires were lighted which, figuratively, will burn forever, as O. M. Plummer of Portland said in his dedicatory address.

Miss Lucy Crawford of Ashland, a senior in domestic science, as president of the Waldo Hall Club presented the torch for lighting the fire, saying:

"To light this fire I give you a torch. In it are herbs of the field for health of the body, a fern leaf for grace, a sprig of elm for peace, one of oak for strength, evergreen to show we live forever in the deeds we have done, rosemary for remembrance and pansies for thoughts."

The motto she gave for the hearth is "Tibi splendet focus," which is "For you this hearth shines."

Upon receiving the torch Mr. Plummer turned to Dean Crayne and presented her with a handsome silver match box to be hung on the fireplace. It contained two silver matches, one engraved with the numerals of the present senior class, with which he lighted the torch, the other marked with the 1914 class numerals, to be used next fall by a senior president of the Waldo Hall Club for the new year in lighting the fire for the new year. Every year the outgoing senior girls will provide a silver match for the next class.

The fireplace is marked by a handsome silver dedication plate, engraved "Presented to the young women of Waldo Hall by the Oregon and Portland Business Men's Excursion, April 26, 1912."

The dedication was the finale of the entertainment of 180 guests of the college for the first annual Homecoming Day of the Portland alumni. It followed immediately the banquet given by the domestic science department under Dean H. W. Calvin. The girls of the cooking classes prepared and served a seven-course dinner which included the following. First course—Bouillon and sippets. Second course—Cracked crab with Hollandaise sauce and sandwiches. Third course—Baked lamb, mint jelly, peas in fontage cups and browned sweet potatoes. Fourth course—Creamed chicken in bread boxes. Fifth course—Tomato and cucumber salad with mayonnaise dressing and wafers. Sixth course—Strawberry shortcake with whipped cream. Seventh course—Coffee, cheese and water crackers. The tables were decorated with carnations and asparagus fern.

Rheumatism Quickly Cured.

"My sister's husband had an attack of rheumatism in his arm," writes a well-known resident of Newton, Iowa. "I gave him a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment, which he applied to his arm, and on the next morning the rheumatism was gone." For chronic muscular rheumatism you will find nothing better than Chamberlain's Liniment. Sold by all dealers.
