Northwest Fruit Exchange Adds 13 Carloads to Previous Orders From Johannesburg.

Portland, Ore., Aug. 11.-Is 13 an unlucky number? Officials of the Northwestern Fruit Exchange of this city do not believe that it is. In fact, they have documentary proof to show that after all the so-called "bad luck" number is in reality a sign of the greatest prosperity.

Today the exchange secured an order for 13 carloads of apples to go second direct order ever received from the former land of the Boers. Together with the first order it 36 cents for Bourne & Benton In- one of the greenest looking Norwe- delicacy blunted by the very nature coast which may not mean much pos- so, it will include about five minutes makes a total of 15 carloads of ap- trod. The order is for Lessons Prim. Grades. Jonathans and will effectively introduce Pacific northwest fruit into the so-called "Dark Continent."

The price paid for the last lot of apples will be more than doublein fact, will be within a fraction of three times as great as the average price secured for similar fruit by many shippers last season. South African consumers have heard of the great merits of Pacific northwest apples and they intend to get a very good taste of them this season with the promise that the orders will be greatly increased next season.

This last order completes a chain of orders for Pacific northwest apples that extends from one end of the earth to the other. Europe, Asia, Africa, North America and South America have now been invaded by the peerless fruit from the Pacific coast.

The exchange today also secured an order for seven carloads of Pacific northwest apples from South America. . Three cars of these will be Jonathans and will be supplied by the Rogue river district, and the remainder will consist of Rome Beauties to be forwarded by Wenatchee and Yakima, Wash.
