TALENT NEWS ITEMS.

E. E. Cook was at Ashland Tuesday looking after business matters.

Elder Overholser and family expect to leave the last of the week for Bandon, Ore., where he goes to take charge of a church. Their many friends hate to see them leave but wish them much prosperity in their new home.

Charles Adams of Delta, Colo., who arrived here recently to visit his friend, F. T. Guyer, has accepted a position with the Buckeye orchards and may remain here permanently.

Miss Marie Carnahan is at the Bear Creek orchards assisting at the work of packing apples, at which she is an expert.

J. S. Spitzer and wife have returned from a five hundred mile tour by team. They visited Crater Lake and also drove to Crescent City, being gone about five weeks altogether.

Will Stump is home from a trip to Klamath Falls, where he went by team.

Train No. 14 was held fifteen minutes at Talent Monday evening loading peaches being shipped out by express.

Miss Edith Tryer, who has been sick the last week with appendicitis, is slightly improving.

Miss Weiss and Miss Smith of Griffin Creek are here assisting in packing apples for the Houston Bros.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Foss were visitors at Tehland Tuesday.

LOBSTER AND BUTTERFLY. Widely Apart In Appearance, They Are Close Relatives.

You would hardly think it to look at them, yet the lobster is a relative of the butterfly. The kinship is not merely that of two members of the animal kingdom. The lobster and the butterfly are actually in one and the same great group of the kingdom, like the clam and the snail or the whale and the giraffe, whose spheres of activity are so widely separated.

It is simply, as Darwin pointed out in the case of all other creatures a great many years ago, that the lobster and its friends, the crab, the prawn and the shrimp, chose one method of life, while the butterfly and its set chose another.

So the first group developed characteristics suited to the conditions in which it lived, including as one of the most important, as its members do not move rapidly, a coat of armor to protect them from their innumerable enemies, while the butterflies and the great host of other winged insects shed every bit of superfluous weight, trusting to swiftness to carry them out of danger and to protective coloring to conceal them when flight is unavailing.—London Family Herald.

When Dead Men Eat. In the medical press is a story of a man who believed that he was dead and who for that reason refused to take nourishment. "How can the dead eat and drink?" he asked when food was pressed upon him. It was obvious that unless something were done to bring him to his senses the delusion must soon become actuality—he would die of starvation. The strange ruse was tried. Half a dozen attendants, draped in ghostly white, crept silently in single file into the room adjoining his and with the door open sat down where he could see them at a heary meal. "Here, who are these people?" inquired the patient. "Dead men," answered the doctor. "What!" said the other. "Do dead men eat?" "To be sure they do, as you see for yourself," was the answer. "Well," said the corpse, "if that is so I'll join them, for I'm starving." The spell was broken, and he sat down and ate like forty famished men.

A Matter of Gender. The bell of a Scottish church was giving out a very poor tone, and a committee was appointed to inquire as to what was wrong and to report on the best means of putting it right. After an examination the members were divided in their opinion, and the kirk officer, who was in attendance with the keys, was asked his view. "Fine. A ken what's wrang w' the bell," he remarked. "It's a she-yin," meaning that it was of the feminine gender. Pressed to explain, he added, "Its tongue's owre lang—it's needin' to be clipped!" And this turned out to be really the fault. The tongue had become loosened to the extent of an inch or so and was overlapping the curve at the rim and therefore not striking truly.

Dogs of Belgium. Belgian dogs that are harnessed to carts often work themselves to death. They may enjoy their work for a time, when they hurl themselves into the collar to drag the milk cart (and often the lazy milkman as well as his cans), but they do not enjoy the ensuing paralysis. The sight of a dog dying of starvation in the streets because his paralysis jerked him away from food every time he attempted to take it is not conducive to happy memories of Belgium.

WILL START SOON.

Bagley Cannery Only Waiting Ripening of Crops.

The Bagley cannery opened a few days the last of the week to put up some beans which were contracted and is now all ready for operation on peaches and pears, which will be ready for the pickers in a few days now.

They report that there is a demand for more women and girls, as this kind of help appears to be scarce.

Dr. Bagley was out in the surrounding country the first of the week looking up and making contracts for peaches, pears and apples.

SANCTUARY IN ENGLAND.

The Principle Still Survives to a Limited Degree.

Much water has flowed under London bridge since the British criminal could defy the strong arm of the law by the single expedient of escaping to the nearest church or hospital and claiming the protection of the "sanctuary," for down to the early Stuart days Great Britain had thousands of just such refuges for the criminal, from cathedrals and royal palaces to scores of towns and cities, where the man guilty of felony could laugh with impunity at the officers of law and justice for a period ranging up to forty days. If within that time he chose to go before the coroner, clothed in penitence and sackcloth, and confess his guilt, he was free to quit the realm without any hand darning to stay him.

Although no such asylum exists today for the criminal, the principle of the "sanctuary" still manages to survive. This privilege refers only to civil offenses and not to crimes as in the olden days, and yet the privileges are of considerable value.

No clergyman can be arrested within the walls of his church or while he is going to or returning from his duty. Bishops and archbishops are still more protected, for not one of them can be haled before a magistrate even though the cause is a crime, unless the king especially commands it. Nor even up to the present time has any warrant an effect within the precincts of any of the king's palaces.—Chicago Tribune.

FEROCIOUS DOLPHINS.

Marine Monsters That Are Known as Whale Killers.

There really is such a sea monster as the whale killer. It is one of the largest and most ferocious of all the dolphin family. It also is known as the grampus. It is characterized as a genus by its large size and the conical and depressed head, devoid of a beak. The back fin is of great length, especially in the males, and the flippers are large and broadly ovate.

The teeth are comparatively few in number, varying from ten to thirteen on each side of the jaw, and are much larger than in any dolphins yet noticed, being often an inch or more in diameter and having an oval section. The coloration is striking, the upper parts and fins being black, while the lower jaw, chest and under parts are whitish.

The white area of the under parts does not, however, extend to the flukes, but ends posteriorly in a trident, of which the lateral and shorter prongs extend obliquely upward on the flanks. There is a large white streak above and behind the eye, and frequently at least a purple crescentic area extends across the back behind the fin. The killer attains a length of at least twenty feet.—St. Louis Times.

Much Worse. "Oh dear," pouted the pretty girl in irritation, as the trolley car came to a standstill. "What is worse than waiting on a switch?" "Trying to pass on the same rail, madam," responded a gentleman beside her.—Judge.

A New Business Law

Chapter 154, Page 270, Oregon Laws, 1913.

Regulating Persons Doing Business Under an Assumed Name.

"No person or persons shall hereafter carry on, conduct or transact business in this state under any assumed name or under any designation, name or style, corporate or otherwise, other than the real and true name or names of the person or persons conducting such business or having an interest therein."

The law in brief is: Such person or persons shall file a certificate in the county clerk's office in the county in which said business is conducted, with the names of all interested persons in said business and their postoffice address.

All persons now conducting any business, as is stated above, shall file and have recorded and indexed in a book kept for that purpose a certificate, as above required, within 30 days after this act shall take effect. (Law became effective June 3.)

Non-compliance with this law will prevent and debar any person or persons conducting, carrying on or transacting business as aforesaid from maintaining any suit or action in any courts of this state.

"Any person violating any provisions of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $100."

Blanks necessary to conform to the above law can be had from the Tidings for 10 cents each or three for 25 cents.
