They also report meeting several parties on their way up as they came down.

Corn Roast a Success.

The corn roast given at the picnic grounds in the upper park last evening by the Epworth League was a big success. A goodly turnout of Methodist young people made merry while roasting the corn, which was partaken of which sandwiches on the side. The evening was spent with games and singing, all having an excellent time.

Entertained Sunday School Class.

Mrs. Ralph Billings entertained her Sunday school class of six girls at a delightful picnic at Kingsbury springs yesterday. The party was taken to the springs by E. A. Estes in his auto and the day was very pleasantly spent, a bountiful dinner being served. The girls participating were Misses Gertrude Barber, Stella Stahlman, Ruth and Helen Estes, Lillian Greer and Minora Cornelius.

Entertain at Parish House.

Misses Edna and Angie Neil entertained a number of their young friends at the parish house Wednesday evening. Cards and dancing were the amusements of the evening. Those present were Misses Pearl Johnson, Bessie Wagner, Ruth Shoudy, Frances Hamlin, Ernestine Edwards, Doris Bagley, Pearl Wamsley and Vera Redman of Portland, and Messrs. Fred Dodge, Ben Bowers, Murray Murphy, Goldwin Herndon, Paul Williams, Carrol Wagner, Chester Tolman and Jesse Neil.

The Congregational Christian Endeavor Society gave a box social on the lawn at the Menze last Friday night. There were about twenty-five young people present and games of all sorts were indulged in and the boxes sold at auction, bringing in a neat little sum for the benefit of the piano fund.

Mrs. O. H. Gilmore of Rogueriver spent Thursday of last week at the E. E. Bagley home in Ashland. Friday Mr. and Mrs. Bagley motored as far as Medford with her and the three spent the day in that city, guests of Mrs. S. W. Streets. That evening Mrs. Gilmore went on to Rogueriver and the Bagleys returned to Ashland.

Mrs. B. Beach entertained the ladies of the Thimble Club very pleasantly last Friday afternoon. After several hours very profitably spent in the manufacture of pretty automobile bonnets the hostess served hot biscuits and honey and cake and coffee. The eight regular members were present. Mrs. U. L. Cunningham will be hostess to the club next Friday afternoon.

Last Wednesday afternoon Miss Doris Bagley entertained informally at bridge, two tables being played. The house was beautifully decorated with flowers and after the bridge course the hostess served a chafing dish supper. Those present were Misses Ernestine Edwards, Elizabeth Wagner, Ruth Shoudy, Peryl Wamsley, Vera Redman of Portland and Mary Williams from the east and Mrs. Hal McNair and Mrs. A. W. Boslough.

Marion and Clem Summers gave a party up the canyon Tuesday afternoon in the form of a corn and wienner roast. Mr. and Mrs. Summers took the young people up in a wagon about four o'clock and brought them back at ten in the evening. They camped just below the lower dam and spent a number of happy hours with games and "eats." The guests were Gertrude Barber, Maria Caldwell, Stella Stahlman, Alward Leavitt and Edmund Barrett.

Elizabeth Earhart was married to Frederick B. Pierce of Los Angeles, Monday of last week, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Etta Stevenson, on the Ashland-Medford road, by the Rev. Weston F. Shields. Miss Mary Stevenson played "The Swan" by Saint-Saens. The bride wore a French embroidered white dress trimmed in ebony lace. The decorations were dahlias, roses and ferns. Those present were the family and a few invited guests. Mr. and Mrs. Pierce left on the afternoon train for Los Angeles, where they will make their home.

Friday night Miss Peryl Wamsley entertained at Five Hundred at her home on Third street. F. L. Camps had a very unusual experience last Thursday evening about nine o'clock, when he came within a hair's breadth of running down two deer—a buck and a doe—with his Ford auto. Mr. Camps was coming into town with L. J. Ferguson and wife in the back seat and when near the Wyant mine about a mile and a half from town he was startled to see the two deer standing in the middle of the road in the glare from his auto lamps, which apparently either greatly interested them or temporarily blinded them. They appeared to be fascinated by the lights and stood looking at them until Mr. Camps was within less than a foot of the buck and nearly as close to the doe. They apparently came to themselves just about that time and leapt into the brush and disappeared.

Don't Fail to Register.

The attention of voters is called to the fact that the period of registration prior to voting on road bonds will close Saturday night of this week. The Record has not looked into the matter of registration in the various precincts of the Ashland district but it is advised that in the largest of the five precincts there are fully three hundred voters who are not registered. The same proportions of unregistered voters probably holds good in the other four precincts. It would seem, in view of the fact that Jackson county will vote on the issuance of $500,000 road bonds on the ninth of September, that every voter should register. It is provided by law that registration shall close fifteen days before a special election. It is true that there will be opportunity to register again after the ninth of September until within thirty days of the general election held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, but it would seem that any voter who expects to avail himself of the franchise this year would want to be in shape to vote one way or another on those road bonds. The Record would suggest, therefore, that those who have not registered—both men and women—get busy at once.

HAS STRENUOUS EXPERIENCE.

R. J. Smith Lost From Camp 26 Hours Recently.

R. J. Smith went through a harrowing experience the past week. He went on a hunting trip with his father-in-law, M. C. Bressler, and C. J. Coburn. They established a camp on Keen Creek in one of the wildest places. Sunday morning at five the three started in different directions to hunt. They were to rejoin at camp about one o'clock but Mr. Smith failed to come in. Mr. Bressler fired his rifle and was answered by Mr. Smith apparently about forty rods from camp.

Messrs. Coburn and Bressler began gathering things up preparatory to moving camp, expecting that Mr. Smith would arrive at any minute. Upon his failure to do so they again fired their guns but got no response. Between the camp and the place from which Mr. Smith answered the first signal gun is a very brushy tract and presumably, in attempting to get around this, Mr. Smith lost account of directions and wandered away from camp.

When he did not return Messrs. Bressler and Coburn began to fear that he had shot himself when he fired the signal and they started out to search for him. In spite of their efforts they could not find trace of him or get any response to signals. In trying to locate the camp Mr. Smith wandered into the wilderness about four miles—becoming more confused, by the utter lack of landmarks, the farther he went. He finally made camp toward evening and decided to stay in it till he figured out "where he was at" or until those whom he knew must be searching for him discovered his whereabouts.

It grew so cold during the night that ice froze along Keen creek. Mr. Smith gathered a large amount of wood for him camp fire but ran short about midnight and had to grope around in the wilderness for more. Being without a coat and without anything to eat since five o'clock in the morning and being unable to locate water he spent a very distressing night and welcomed the early dawn.

During the night he meditated on his movements of the day and figured out that it must be in a certain direction from his camp. His deductions proved correct. He soon found the road and was traveling along it with the idea that it at least did not run in circles and would lead him some place.

About seven-thirty Monday morning he met his father-in-law and Mr. Coburn coming down the same road. He says it was certainly a joyful meeting and he doesn't remember when he was so glad to see his father-in-law.

LANE NOT COMING.

Secretary of Interior Will Not Visit the Valley.

Secretary of the Interior Franklin K. Lane will not come to Southern Oregon at this time. This is definite. Instead of Lane, Assistant Secretary Miller and other members of the Lane party now on the coast inspecting government irrigation projects came down Tuesday. In the party were Mrs. Franklin K. Lane, wife of the secretary of the interior, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Hopkins, who accompany them from Portland.

Mr. Miller was taken on an auto ride through the valley and started for Crater Lake this morning. He will meet Superintendent Steel at Prospect and be accompanied by him to the lake.

Mr. Miller's visit is even more important to this section than Mr. Lane's would be, as he has direct charge over the national parks. He will remain until after the close of the meeting of the Central Oregon Development League at Kiamath Falls Thursday.

Secretary Lane arrived in Portland Sunday. He made the trip up the Deschutes Sunday and Monday was wine and dined by the Portland Commercial Club. Tuesday he left for Colorado Springs, where he will attend a conference of governors August twenty-fourth.

NEED A THIRD MAN.

Two Night Men Needed, Believe Chief and Mayor.

At the council meeting Tuesday night Chief of Police Porter asked for another night man—declaring the cleanup program now under way is too strenuous for himself and Night Officer Hatcher. Chief Porter stated that since the vice crusade started he had had but six nights at home, besides doing day duty.

Mayor Johnson favors an extra man—believing the cleanup of low characters and the pushing along of bums should continue until Ashland is given a wide berth by this gentry. He thinks the city is no worse than heretofore but the police are merely seeing more. He thinks two police were a plenty so long as they saw nothing.

Councilman Sherman has been acting as special night man temporarily but was advised by the mayor that he could not do so longer under the law without resigning as councilman. He promptly agreed to resign and take the job of night officer. Several of the councilmen discouraged the idea and the matter of appointing an extra night man was deferred.

At Work on New Dam.

Clute and Irwin, who were recently awarded the contract for the construction of the cement dam at the upper intake on Ashland creek, began work Monday. They have created a temporary dam above the intake by means of sacks of sand, etc., and have piped the water from it to the intake—thus leaving a dry space in which to construct the new dam.
