Take Bad Boys to Portland Home.
As the result of entering the Medford candy factory and stealing a goodly supply of sweets, Julius Wattenberg and Walter York, ringleaders of a squad of would-be bad boys of that city, were sent to the Boys' and Girls' Aid Society at Portland. The boys have been up before District Attorney Kelly several times and at the time of the stealing were out on probation.
They entered the Medford candy factory a week ago last Sunday through a window and got away with a shoe box full of chocolates. Later they entered the Washington school and raided pigeon nests in the attic. They were taken to Portland by Charles Gay.
