Sinking Fund For Electric Light Plant

A recommendation by Superintendent Butterfield of the electric light system that a sinking fund of $200 per month, based on depreciation figures, be established generated considerable debate at Tuesday night's council meeting. His report in the matter shows that the electric light system now has a very substantial surplus in addition to paying its running expenses and that besides this it has been contributing for about one year to a sinking fund which will take care of bonds and interest. It was stated by Chairman Cunningham of the finance committee, and the statement was endorsed by Mayor Johnson, that the electric system could take care of the sinking fund of $200 per month for depreciation without straining its income.

$5,000 Raised to Boost Klamath

Klamath Falls has succeeded after a ten-day campaign in raising $5,000 to finance the Commercial Club work. The women are helping some, as evidenced by the following from the Northwestern: "The first woman member of the Chamber of Commerce was added to the rolls when Mrs. Cora Sanderson, widow of the late Mayor Sanderson, signed the list of members and gave her check for $5. She was asked to join by Mrs. G. W. White, one of the membership committee, who is doing good work among the women of the city in an effort to induce them to join the local body. Mrs. White reports the women generally are much interested in the Chamber of Commerce and she hopes to see a large number become members."

Central Point vs. Ashland Friday

Ashland will "get back" at Central Point tomorrow, it is to be hoped. Three games have already been attempted this year, with the following results: A. H. S. 7, C. P. H. S. 8; A. H. S. 3, C. P. H. S. 4; A. H. S. 3, C. P. H. S. 3. The first was called a tie on the eighth inning, the second game had twelve innings, and the third was called on account of the rain. Tomorrow will probably be a fine day. Come out and see it. High school field.

"WHERE YOU DO BETTER"

Having Trouble Over Bad Tires

The fire committee has taken up with A. G. Long of Portland—coast agent for the American-La France mechanical engine and hose motor truck—the matter of making good the company's guarantee on two tires which have become badly worn. The outfit was guaranteed for one year and the two tires have been in bad shape for some time. Mr. Long suggests that the city buy one new reserve tire and use same while the worn tires are being sent in to the Dayton Rubber Company for retreading. The fire committee believes Mr. Long or his company should simply ship the necessary new tires. The cost per tire is $100. Mr. Ashcraft, who has been intimately connected with the installation of Ashland's new fire-fighting apparatus, is of opinion that Ashland's granite hills are much harder on tires than are the levels of Medford and Grants Pass, where similar apparatus is used and where tires have held up better. Mayor Johnson believes, after careful investigation, that the worn tires were defective and should be replaced by the company without quibble. The city will probably act on Mr. Long's advice later and keep a reserve tire on hand for use in case of accident, but will hold the American-LaFrance Company to its year's guarantee nevertheless.

A Diabolical Plot

By MARGARET C. DEVEREAUX

A lady and a gentleman stood on the deck of an ocean liner about to depart for the Mediterranean. "Upon my word," said the latter, "if there isn't my old chum Dick Thurston coming aboard loaded down with hand baggage. I haven't seen him in four years. He's going across, sure. I wish I were going." "Introduce him. He'll serve to lighten the annul during the voyage." "I'll do it on one condition." "What condition?" "That you go for him. I'll let him think you're my wife instead of my cousin, and you must keep up the deception. He's always prating about honor in not making love to a friend's wife and all that sort of thing, while I claim that if a woman can get a man in love with her she can turn him over to Satan, body and soul. Do you agree?" Miss Katherine Maryweather in her heart snapped at the idea, but she occupied the few minutes to spare in declaring that she would do no such abominable thing. Thurston was brought up and introduced to her, Frank Waters having given him the impression that he had been married since they had met and he wished him to take charge of his wife for the voyage. "Remember," said Dick, giving his cousin a parting kiss, much to the envy of Thurston. "I'll remember nothing," was the reply. Miss Maryweather was an unscrupulous flirt, and this request of her cousin especially appealed to her. She had brought many a man to her feet, as Waters well knew, but she had not experienced the zest attending making a man a traitor to an intimate friend. As to deliberately stating to Thurston that she was Waters' wife, she repelled such a sin with horror; she would merely suffer him to suppose she was.

Another Check Forger Arrested

The police force rearrested a sailor check forger Monday morning in the person of George McCullen. The local police force previously arrested him and sent him to Jacksonville, but Lawyer Lemery procured his release on the plea that he would have to appear on naval duty in thirty days. However, as soon as he returned to Ashland he was rearrested by Chief Porter, because Porter had the sworn statement of the forger that he had sold his discharge papers to a friend in Seattle, some time ago. He had passed the check in Fort Jones, Cal. The Yreka sheriff came and took him to that place for trial Tuesday. McCullen passed under the name of Thomas Frame at Yreka.

Road Bad Over Siskiyou Mountains

G. H. Myers and D. M. Lamb of Los Angeles and Fred Morlett of San Rafael were in the city today on the way north on a motorcycle trip. They came the entire distance over the proposed Pacific Highway and say the roads are in very bad condition in many places owing to the lack of work in view of the permanent work. They say many places have been hard-surfaced along the road but little has been connected up. The road over the Siskiyou is the worst they encountered on the trip. In places it is almost impossible to get over the road even with a motorcycle, to say nothing of teams and cars.

In Chicago one of the heads of a small order house has confessed that he has an income of $1,320,000 a year, and yet he is supposed to be at the head of an institution which is working and selling goods for the benefit of the poor man who has thought and been made to believe he has been oppressed by his local merchant.

up with you." "If you accuse him of such a thing I'll never speak to you again." "I won't do it if you assure me he didn't." "You had no business to introduce him to me, letting him suppose I was your wife." "Why didn't you disabuse him?" "Why didn't I? Why, because—" He looked at her with an amused smile, then continued: "Dick Thurston is a mighty good friend of mine. When I saw him going aboard the ship in which you sailed I knew you would expect an introduction; that you would flirt him all the way over and send him off with the rest of them on reaching Italy. What I did I did for his protection." "How for his protection?" "In the first place, if he believed you to be my wife it might help him to resist you. In the second, if you succeeded you would be so tangled up in your deceptions that you could be managed. I'm going to confess the matter to him—my past and yours." "You'll do no such thing!" "What shall I say to him? He is at Lucerne, and I'm going to run down there tomorrow to see him." "What shall you do? Why, let him discover that I'm not your wife without saying anything about your detestable plot." "Or yours."

This thrust was received in silence. "If I do as you say will you treat him honorably in future?" "Yes, I will!" The former Miss Maryweather is now Mrs. Thurston.

ST. LOUIS AS A VILLAGE.

In 1767 it Had Forty-five Houses and as Many Families. Captain Philip Pitman, an officer in the engineering corps of the British army, was selected by General Gage in 1767 to make an expert report on the territory just acquired from France on the east side of the Mississippi river. Pitman came to the Mississippi valley, the Illinois country it then was called, and traveled about for several months. Here is what he wrote of St. Louis in the early part of 1767: "This village is one league and a half above Kaskaskias, on the west side of the Mississippi, being the present headquarters of the French in these parts. It was first established in the year 1704 by a company of merchants, to whom M. D'Abbadie had given an exclusive grant for the commerce with the Indian nations on the river Missouri, and for the security and encouragement of this settlement the staff of French officers and the commissary were ordered to remove here, upon the surrendering of Fort Chartres (forty miles south of St. Louis on the Illinois side) to the English, and great encouragement was given to the inhabitants to remove with them, most of whom did. "The company has built a large house and store here, and there are about forty-five houses and as many families. No fort or barracks are yet built. The French garrison consists of a captain commandant, two lieutenants, a fort major, one sergeant, one corporal and twenty men."—St. Louis Times.

Might as Well Have Seen Him. Awakening with a bad headache the morning after a banquet, a suburban dentist mused, not unpleasantly, on his last evening's spree. But suddenly his wife appeared and, advancing to his bedside, shouted hysterically: "You wretch! What will the neighbors say at your coming home drunk last night?" "But, my dear, nobody saw me," the dentist protested. "Nobody saw you! What if nobody did see you? You know well enough they all heard the way I carried on when you got back."—New York Tribune.

Flustered. It was Smith's first Sunday as usher in church and he was a bit flustered. Turning to a lady who entered he said, "This way, madam, and I'll sew you into a sheet."—Boston Transcript.

Oklahomans on Long Auto Trip

A. R. Furman and family were auto visitors in the city this week from Oklahoma City. Mr. Furman has just retired from the chief justiceship of the Oklahoma supreme court and is making a trip over the Pacific coast by auto with his family. They will go as far north as possible. Mr. Furman says Ashland looks like the best place on the coast to live and he may decide to return with his family.

Saloons in certain sections of Illinois seem to be bad losers. Not content with being voted out of business by a large majority, they started suits in the courts to the end that they might defeat the will of the people. Such a course is certain to react on them. He who would buck the majority in this country opens a perilous game. We all have to take medicine, once in a while.

Looking for Good Place to Live

Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Bushorr arrived in the city yesterday from Pawnee, Okla., with a view to locating in the valley. Mr. Bushorr has been postmaster of his home city for many years and is anxious to find a comfortable place to pass his remaining years. He is greatly impressed with Ashland and may decide to make this his home. They have taken temporary quarters at 27 Pine street.

The Siskiyou male quartet will sing at the Fourth Street City Mission Friday evening at 7:30.
