Restitution After 44 Years

This is the story of W. H. Judson of Portland, Ore., whose conscience hurt him after 44 years, and secured easement therefor from County Judge F. L. Tou Velle.

In 1870 Judson lived in Ashland. A sick man was in the Ashland Hotel and he was given the task of nursing him. The sick man died. Judson took from his purse his wages, at $2.50 per day, and what was left he turned over to the county court, but there was not enough to pay the undertaker, the doctor and the druggist.

At a camp meeting of the Apostolic Faith in the Rose City last week Judson became converted and his memory recalled the selfish act of nearly half a century before, when he received full tithes but others did not. He forthwith began to take steps to right himself with the world and the future, and wrote the county court a letter, asking Jackson county to forgive him. Forgiveness was extended to him by County Judge Tou Velle. Judson's letter is as follows:

"Portland, Ore., June 28, 1914. To the Honorable Judge of Jackson County.

"Dear Sir: In the year 1870 or 71 I was living in Ashland. There was a sick man brought there to the Ashland Hotel, and I was given the job of nurse to him. In three or four weeks he died, so I took of his money just what would pay me $2.50 per day for taking care of him, and it took most of the money that he had. There was a little change left that was turned into the county, and the doctor and the hotelkeeper turned in their bills. Now God has saved me of my sins and the Word teaches me that I will have to make restitution for all of my back life before I can have a pure heart, and that is what the word of God teaches and I know that I did not do right, I taking my wages out of his money, but should have turned it all into the county and shared with the others. So enclosed I send what we believe and a stamped envelope with my address, asking that the county will forgive me for taking the law into my own hands instead of letting the county do it."

Southern Oregon Exhibit in 1915

Klamath Falls Northwestern: Contingent upon appropriation of $500 by each of the county courts of Klamath, Jackson, Josephine and Douglas counties, the Oregon commission of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition will give to each of these counties $500 to prepare suitable exhibits of southern Oregon for the exposition at San Francisco next year. This is the word brought by Lewis Wyde, who returned last evening from Ashland, where he attended a meeting of the Southern Oregon Association for the San Francisco exposition.

The meeting was held Monday afternoon with the following present: H. O. Frohbach, president of the association; Sam S. Josephson, secretary of the Roseburg Commercial Club; F. W. Streets, secretary of the Medford Commercial Club; George W. Sager, secretary of the Ashland Commercial Club; W. P. Quinlan, secretary of the Grants Pass Commercial Club and of the newly formed association, and Lewis Wyde, secretary of the Klamath Chamber of Commerce and vice-president of the association.

The county court of Jackson county already has appropriated $500, and if the courts of the other three counties appropriate a like amount $4000 will be available for use in collecting exhibits of southern Oregon. A space just at the right of the entrance into the Oregon building at the exposition six feet deep and sixty feet long has been set aside for exhibits from southern Oregon and it is the plan of the new association to make this space one of the most attractive in the building.

It is the plan of the association to have each of the four counties involved make a specialty of those products to which said counties are best adapted. Klamath probably will specialize on grains, grasses and potatoes, Jackson on fruits, Josephine on fruits and mining, and Douglas on timber. Douglas will have an unique exhibit of 200 specimens of timber of that county, each specimen being a different variety.

At its meeting at Ashland Monday the association chose one assistant to help the representative of each county in preparing the exhibits. Max A. McCall was appointed for Klamath county to assist Mr. Wyde, F. W. Streets to assist H. O. Frohbach for Jackson county, B. J. Stewart to assist Sam S. Josephson for Douglas county, and C. L. Hobart to assist W. P. Quinlan for Josephine county. Sincere appreciation for the excellent manner in which the delegates to the meeting at Ashland Monday were treated was expressed last evening by Mr. Wyde.

"The meeting was held in the quarters of the 'Commercial Club,' said Mr. Wyde. 'Tuesday morning we were put in automobiles and taken over Rogue River Valley and out east of Ashland to the lithia springs. George W. Seager, secretary of the Ashland Commercial Club, acted as host and a royal entertainment did he provide."

The woman suffragists are kind-hearted. They send a delegation to wait on the vice-president.

Accidents on land, sea, underground and in the air swell the news.
