Candy Factories Cleanest in State

The inspectors who have been delving into the sanitary conditions of the various stores and factories where food is handled in Ashland returned to the north on Saturday. They say that wonderful improvements have been made here and that throughout the state the work of the inspectors and the publishing of their findings is working a wonderful improvement. As soon as the figures have been listed at Salem headquarters they will be published in this paper. This is the first inspection in over a year and a great change in conditions has been made during that time, says Chief Inspector Duncan. The inspectors are very thorough, and to watch one of them at work is to get many new ideas as to where dirt may be found. The inspectors say that a dirty place is much harder to inspect than a clean one, because if a place is unclean it is generally unclean throughout, while it is their duty to do their best to find traces of unsanitary conditions and they must be very thorough with the cleanest places.

A recent birth at Hornbrook will be of interest to many Ashland friends of the proud parents. Last week twins, a boy and girl, were born to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wheelless—Chauncey Allen, weighing 7 1/2 pounds, and Virginia Allen, five pounds. The mother will be remembered as Miss Grace Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. K. Anderson. The family is living temporarily at Hornbrook. Mr. Wheelless is in the employ of the Dupont Powder Company and is at present in the east.

Klamath Falls to Have Chautauqua

Klamath Falls Northwestern: That Klamath Falls people will be given the accommodations of a chautauqua course next summer was assured by the enthusiastic meeting held at the Christian church, at which time a board of directors and officers were elected and constitution and by-laws were accepted. A contract with the Ellison-White Chautauqua Company has been under consideration since last September, but the proposition was not made certain until last evening. The officers elected were: President, Herbert Gale; vice-president, S. D. Harlan; secretary, W. S. Slough; treasurer, J. W. Siemens. The board of directors consists of M. D. Coats, Herbert Gale, W. S. Slough, O. E. Willy, S. D. Harlan, W. E. Faught, Mrs. Beebee, J. W. Siemens and A. R. Campbell.

By the contract the Ellison-White Chautauqua Company will bring its large tent used for the purpose and erect it on a suitable location to be decided upon by a committee. It is planned to hold the chautauqua some time in June. It will be in session six days.

The Medford Sun of a late date printed the following: "At a meeting of committeemen from Ashland and Medford, held in this city Tuesday, the advisability of the co-operation of these two cities in advertising of the valley was discussed, and while no decision was reached, it is thought Ashland will unite in this project. Material for the advertising has been prepared by Engineer Frank Kittridge, H. L. Walthers and Secretary of the Commercial Club F. W. Streets.

Lincoln Program Friday Evening

Several hundred people, including the local company of the Coast Artillery Corps, the G. A. R. and W. R. C., attended the meeting at the armory last Friday evening to honor the greatest of all presidents, Abraham Lincoln. The local Grand Army people had the program in charge and the meeting was presided over by J. W. Hicks, commander of the Post.

The program opened with an invocation by Rev. Blackstone, after which the newly organized city band rendered a stirring march.

J. S. Smith, chairman of the program committee, gave a brief talk and read Lincoln's autobiography, commenting on the same.

E. L. Raser, accompanied on the piano by Professor MacMurray, rendered a delightful baritone solo, which was well received and encored. Mr. Raser has a beautiful voice and is a trained singer.

The Crater Lake Quartet was supposed to be the next entertainers, but the quartet had failed to appear and two little girls played a piano duet.

Rose Thomas and Alberta Knowles gave readings suitable to the occasion, both of which were well rendered and highly appreciated by the audience.

J. W. Hicks then read that immortal piece of literature, Lincoln's Gettysburg address, and the stirring voice of the veteran soldier carried the words of the famous address to the farthest corners of the building.

The band was then called upon and rendered an overture consisting of a medley of old songs which brought back many remembrances to the old soldiers present.

Rev. Carnahan gave the address of the evening and delivered a talk which will be long remembered by his hearers as being a clear, concise and coherent talk containing ideas which gave the listeners food for thought, and which was far different from the usual flowery oratorical splurges which are generally heard on such an occasion.

J. W. Hicks then thanked the participants and the audience, after which all arose and sang "The Star Spangled Banner." Rev. Carnahan offered closing prayer.

Mayor Johnson had the only distinctly patriotic window in town on Lincoln's birthday. The jewelry store window was artistically arranged with a drawing of the White House in the background and a miniature reproduction of Old Abe in the act of splitting rails in the foreground. A partly built rail fence and miniature trees and so forth completed the artistic whole. The little figure was an admirable reproduction of Lincoln and even to the clothes was the work of Mr. Johnson.
