History of Becker Murder Case in N. Y.

The end of the celebrated Becker murder case which has kept a front page place in the newspapers for the past three years came Friday when Becker paid the penalty of his life for the murder of Herman Rosenthal three years ago. A skeletonized history of the case follows:

1912.

July 11—Herman Rosenthal, a gambler, accused Becker publicly of grafting.

July 16—Rosenthal shot to death as he stepped from the door of the Metropole hotel in West Forty-third street, shortly before 2 o'clock in the morning.

July 29—Becker indicted. "Bald Jack" Rose, "Bridgie" Weber and Harry Vaion confessed.

August 20—"Gyp the Blood" Harowitz, "Lefty Louis" Rosenberg, "Dago Frank" Cirofici, "Whitey" Lewis, "Jack" Sullivan and William Shapiro indicted for murder.

October 6—"Big Jack" Zelig, alleged to have hired the gunmen who murdered Rosenthal, shot to death in Second avenue.

October 7—Becker's trial begins before Justice Goff in supreme court.

October 24—Becker convicted of murder in the first degree.

October 30—Becker sentenced to die in Sing Sing electric chair during week of December 9.

November 19—"Gyp the Blood," "Lefty Louis," "Dago Frank" and "Whitey" Lewis convicted of murder in the first degree and sentenced to be electrocuted.

December 1—Becker's case appealed, the appeal acting as a stay of execution.

February 24—Court of appeals set aside verdict on Becker and ordered new trial. Affirmed verdict in others.

April 13—Four gunmen electrocuted at Sing Sing prison.

May 6—Becker's new trial begins.

Court Upholds Roseburg Bonds

The state supreme court has upheld the city of Roseburg in the suit commenced to enjoin the municipality from participating in the construction and operation of a railroad. The citizens recently held an election at which they authorize the issuance of $300,000 in bonds for the purpose of assisting in building a railroad. The decision of the court was received with an informal celebration in Roseburg. With the favorable decision of the court the last big obstruction to the Roseburg railroad is considered to be removed.

Future in Mines In State of Oregon

Oregon Building, Panama-Pacific International Exposition.—Oregon's exhibits continue to win prizes. This time it is the much-coveted gold medal for the best collective exhibit of mineral resources, six silver medals for individual exhibits and four bronze medals. Considering the fact that Oregon provided a fund of but $10,000 for this work, that as a matter of necessity the exhibit was installed so late that the original jury of awards had finished its work, and that no winnings were anticipated, this capture of the grand prize comes almost in the nature of a miracle. However, when the exhibit had been set up in anything but its perfection of today, the exposition people were asked if they could not do something. It being urged that the awards had not been announced, the officials agreed that they would send a sub-committee over to the Mining building and size up the situation. This committee found such a complete and altogether satisfactory collective exhibit that in all fairness they could not ignore it, and in the final test Oregon won the big prize. That more individual prizes were not landed was due wholly to the lack of time for satisfactory preparation.

The Oregon mining exhibit occupies a space 50x100. Plate glass floor cases filled with specimens are around the outside, and a relief map of Oregon, 8x10 feet, occupies the center. The latter is the work of Prof. H. M. Parks and Prof. Solon Shedd, who were awarded silver medals for this fine piece of work. Besides the showcase exhibits of precious metals, the exhibit consists of large pieces of representative quartz specimens from the different mining sections, together with granite and marble, coal, stone and moving pictures of mines and mining in Oregon. Coal from the Beaver Hill mine in Coos county, fine big blocks, is there, a black marble table from the Wallowa marble district, native copper specimens from the famous Waldo district of southern Oregon, and eighteen ounces of platinum from the Logan River placer mines in Josephine county—the largest individual platinum producer in the world—bring many questions. The Josephine County Bank has a pretty collection of gold nuggets, and Mrs. A. B. Cornell of Grants Pass has a beautiful showing of necklace and earrings made from nuggets. The Belmont mine in the Greenhorn district shows crystallized gold, and the Northwestern Granite Company of Baker has a large slab and cubes of fine building granite. A $1,500 gold nugget found at the Buck Gulch placers in Grant county is a sight for weary eyes, the seventy-ounce daily output of the Powder River Dredging Company at Sumpter looks mighty fine worked into the words "Made in Oregon," and a Pine creek boulder weighing about 200 pounds and valued at $1,500 by the finder, Taber Reed, appeals to many. Rhodinite, in handsomely polished and mounted neck chains, brooches and scarf pins, is the offering of Mrs. E. M. Wheeler of Grants Pass. The Cornucopia Mines Company of New York and the Baker Mines Company, allied concerns producing about $25,000 a month each, have a large special exhibit of normal and high grade ores, copper mat and the chemicals used in extracting gold. The Rainbow gold mines of Baker, producing about $35,000 a month, shows some superb specimens, and there are some good samples from the Bohemia district in Lane county.

Among the stones is that from the once famous Pioneer quarry at Toledo, and great effort is being made to revive the stone industry at that place. This stone is in many of the California and Oregon skyscrapers. Some stone from a quarry at Monroe, Benton county, is shown. Coal from a new discovery at Squaw creek, Coos county, attracts attention. There are two veins in this property, seven and ten feet in thickness, and good exhibits are made by M. C. Anderson of Grants Pass, who is manager. The Williams creek, Josephine county, marble shows to advantage.

According to Fred Mellis, in charge here, there is tremendous opportunity in Oregon for the investment of capital with every prospect of satisfactory return. In gold production the state brings forth about $1,600,000 with scarcely more than a half dozen producers, but there are fully 100 now-making mines making a sufficient showing to warrant the confidence of a very large production if the capital was but available for development. In southern Oregon the Waldo copper district promises great things, as a railroad is now being built into the camp. The Reddy and Grinnell holdings in southern Oregon are now under examination by responsible mining men. Among the big properties awaiting reopening in eastern Oregon are the Balsley, Elkhorn, Eureka Excelsior and the Red Boy Bonanza. The Oregon Bureau of Mines and Geology, under whose direction the winning exhibit here is made, is bending every proper effort to direct the public's attention to the many sections of Oregon where there is undeveloped natural resource of the character set forth in the exhibit. There is constant inquiry at the Oregon building about Oregon mining possibilities and the booth is visited daily by many hundreds. It is conceded by other exhibitors in the great mining palace that Oregon's exhibit of gold specimens is unquestionably the best on the floor. Now that the exhibit floats the big purple banner giving the official notice of the capture of the grand prize the Oregon showing looks particularly good to Oregonians.

Irrigation Need Is Recognized

After years of agitation by those who realize the benefit which widespread irrigation would be to the valley, the farmers and orchardists of the Medford district seem to be awakening to the urgent need for irrigation. The Valley Water Users' League has had offices in Medford for the past two weeks and report the signing up of 5375 acres for irrigation. These acres have all been signed up without any sort of a campaign being made by committees. All of those who have signified their desire for irrigation under the league and the plan which it will formulate have done so of their own initiative.

The Water Users will keep the offices in the Garnett-Corey building at Medford open all this week and many more land owners are expected to sign up.

Of the land so far signed 2,061 acres is farm land and 3,314 orchard. The largest land owner to sign up is W. H. Gore, who signs for 600 acres of farm land.

The Tidings is on sale at Poley's drug store, 17 East Main street.

WHAT CATARRH IS

It has been said that every third person has catarrh in some form. Science has shown that nasal catarrh often indicates a general weakness of the body; and local treatments in the form of snuffs and vapors do little, if any good.

To correct catarrh you should treat its cause by enriching your blood with the oil-food in Scott's Emulsion which is a medicinal food and a building-tonic, free from alcohol or any harmful drugs. Try it. Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J.
